Truman Housing Bill Wins First Test

Palm Beach Men's Suits Cut $7.75 in Stores Here

Washington men who may have been sweating out a $7.75 reduction in the price of Palm Beach suits, scheduled for July 11, won't have to wait any longer.

They may thank a news leak from New York for the fact that retailers here and in other parts of the country generally decided there was no point in waiting for the date set by the manufacturer, the Goodall Co.

The hot-weather garments were reduced from $27.50 to $19.75 yesterday afternoon here after several retailers, both here and in other cities, had notified Elmer L. Ward, Goodall Co. president, that they were in an "untenable" position.

While they did not receive official permission, retailers here said Ward had "tacitly recognized the need for the immediate reduction," as one expressed it.

The news leak of the imminent price reduction forced the Goodall Co. announcement of last Friday, retailers said, which was followed by a Sunday advertisement by a Chicago store, Rothschild's, that their price would go down yesterday. Locally, the retailers are advertising the cut in today's papers.

They emphasized that the reduction is not permanent, but is for "seasonal clearance" purposes. It was also said that most stores have large stocks purchased at the previous wholesale price of $17.75, rather than the $12.25 cost effective last Wednesday.

News Industry Hit by Eubanks At Guild Session

Columbus, O., June 27 (U.P.).—The executive vice president of the CIO American Newspaper Guild told the organization's 16th convention today that the newspaper industry was "almost mentally sick."

American publishers, said Sam B. Eubanks of San Francisco, "react to criticism in a psychopathic fashion."

Eubanks devoted most of his speech at the convention's opening-day session to charting any future tasks. The Guild, he said, must face in 1949 two major tasks:

(1) Obtaining retirement income for employes of the newspaper industry;

(2) Improving the performance of the American press as a task of public welfare.

An adequate retirement plan, said Eubanks, would cost 75 million dollars a year for the entire industry.

"The industry can afford, and we have proved they can afford, the 75 million dollars a year," Eubanks said.

Joe Palooka Weds Anne Howe Today

The 18-year betrothal of Joe Palooka and Anne Howe culminated today in their marriage.

The two-fisted champion of the comic pages of The Washington Post withstood the marriage ceremony like the man that he is, and all of his steadfast and famous friends are on their way to the reception.

The years have seen Palooka and his bride-to-be, a cheese heiress, separated by war, disaster, adventures in the tropics and the other events that are part of the life of the greatest man in the history of boxing.

Witness the ceremony today in The Washington Post.

Girl, 2, Falls 25 Feet, Hurts Knee, Kills Cat

Boston, June 27 (U.P.).—Two-year-old Mirmian Dervishian fell 25 feet from the third-floor window of her home yesterday, struck a clothesline and then bounced onto a cat napping in the sun.

The child suffered only a bruised knee. The cat was crushed to death.

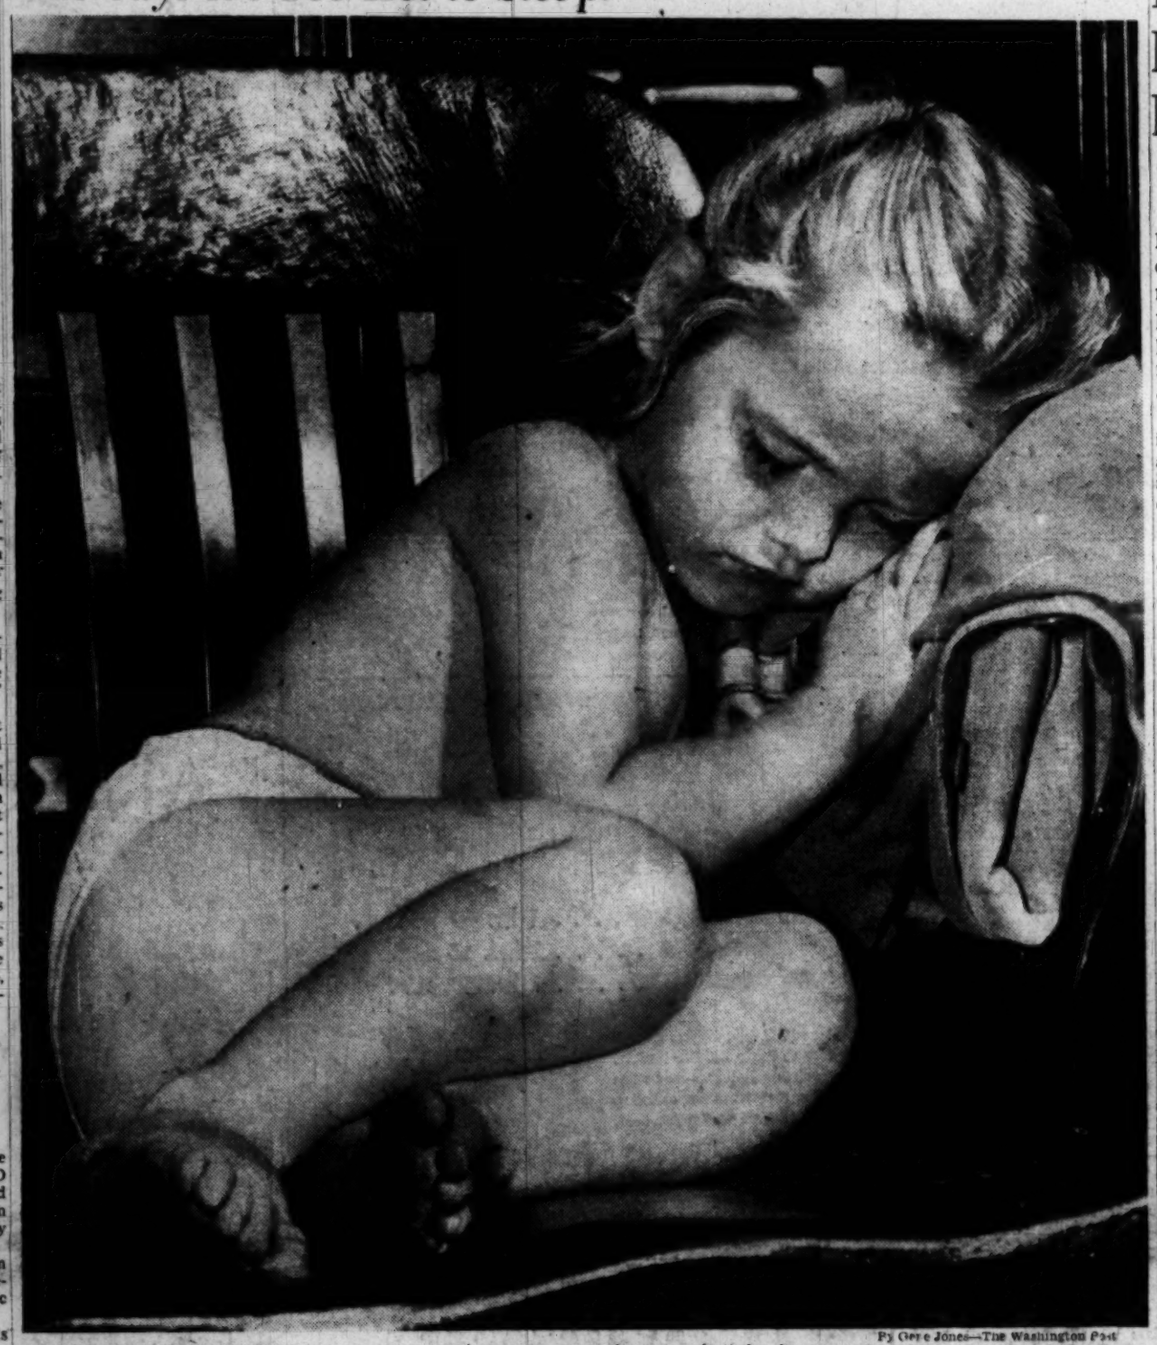
Who Says It's Too Hot to Sleep?



By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

SLUMBERER—This little blonde was found wandering in Stanton Park at 4th and C sts. ne. shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday, and she is shown catching a nap on a chair at Park Police headquarters. When the picture was made by flashbulb she opened her blue eyes momentarily, sniffed and went back to sleep. After she snoozed at headquarters for almost five hours the Park Police removed her to the Women's Bureau, where her father, Edward Fitzgerald, 424 5th st. ne., retrieved her. He identified her as 3 years old, name of Sherry Ann Fitzgerald. Sherry Ann herself told the matron: "I am my father's pride and joy"

Woman, 45, Mother, 65, Found Hanged

A mother and her recently widowed daughter were found hanged in the basement of their home at 4124 Branch ave., Silver Hill, Md., about 5:10 p. m. yesterday.

The two women, Mrs. Ruth Crook, about 65, and Mrs. Ruth Sonntag about 45, were found by the daughter's son on the basement floor of the bungalow, broken clothes lines about their necks.

The victims were, respectively, the mother and sister of Detective Sergt. Bernard Crook of the Metropolitan Police Homicide Squad.

Mrs. Sonntag was found on her back. Her mother was face down, one leg against a chair.

The bodies were discovered by William Sonntag, about 21, on his return home from work.

Neighbors said Mrs. Sonntag had been despondent since the death of her husband, William Sonntag, an ice cream salesman, about two months ago.

County Coroner Dr. James Boyd issued a certificate of double suicide late last night. He said the ropes supporting the two women had apparently been cut, but could not explain why or by whom. He said police were still investigating.

Cripps Sees Harriman on Dollar Crisis

London, June 27 (A.P.).—A new dollar crisis threatened Britain tonight.

Fear of an even more glum life brought:

1. Heavy sales and a price fall in government securities and stocks.

2. An unscheduled meeting between Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Averell Harriman, roving American Ambassador for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

3. A meeting of the economic policy committee of the British Cabinet.

4. Strong official hints Britain may be forced to further cut down its buying from dollar areas.

[The United Press quoted "well-informed sources" in London as saying that the finance ministers of all the British Commonwealth countries had been invited to England to discuss the drain on gold and dollar reserves.

[The same news service also quoted political observers as believing a political crisis may result and bring a general parliamentary election this fall.]

The stock market selling was blamed directly on Britain's recent losses of gold and dollar reserves. Since the first of the year, the

Heat May End Wednesday; 90 Due Today

Washington will continue to swelter in 90-degree heat today.

However, there is a 50-50 chance that a cold air mass moving eastward from the northern Rockies may offer relief Wednesday, the Weather Bureau said yesterday.

"Some chance" of scattered showers was seen for tonight or Wednesday with a high of about 90 today.

A two-year-old boy was among four persons overcome by the heat yesterday as the mercury soared to 91.

The child was Raymond Wise, 662 24th st. ne. He was admitted to Children's Hospital for heat prostration shortly after noon. His condition was reported as fair.

The name of only one of the other three, all treated at Gallinger, could be ascertained. He was Gladdin Burham, 35, of 723 4th st. sw.

The eagerly looked—for cold air originated in Washington State and Oregon, the weatherman said. By yesterday it had moved eastward to the Northern Rockies and Northern Plain States.

Hot as it was yesterday, the high of 91 was still two degrees under the 93 chalked up for the same date last year and five degrees under the year's record of 96 set Sunday.

Record for the date was set in 1875 when the thermometer touched 97.

Yesterday's high of 91 was registered at 4:40 p. m. Low was 76 at 6:10 a. m.

Truman Prefers Heat To Air-Conditioning

The heat doesn't seem to bother President Truman.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters yesterday that Mr. Truman was "thoroughly habituated to heat," having grown up in sun-scorched Missouri.

The President's office is air-conditioned, but Ross said he doesn't like air-conditioning. He throws open the office doors, letting in the heat and the humidity.

Mr. Truman does have one advantage over the average Washingtonian. He has a swimming pool in the White House and uses it when the pressure of his work permits.

Christoffel Set Free by Ruling Of High Court

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday freed former labor leader Harold R. Christoffel because a congressional committee did not have a quorum present when he told a lie for which a jury later convicted him.

The 5-to-4 decision was one of 17 written opinions handed down as the court finished its 1948-49 term and quit until October. Of the 17, nine were decided 5 to 4.

The court split, also 5 to 4, on what to do about the contempt of Congress case of Gerhart Eisler, Communist leader who fled behind the Iron Curtain. The majority decided to delay action on the case, argued before he fled, presumably until he should be apprehended.

The justices refused to accept an appeal filed by Eisler in a second passport-fraud case for which he also is under jail sentence. The court did agree to review, next fall, the conviction of Eugene Dennis, Communist Party secretary now on trial in New York. Dennis was convicted here of disobeying a subpena of the House Un-American Activities Committee by failing to show up at a hearing.

Christoffel, left-wing leader of the United Auto Workers, CIO, during the long Allis-Chalmers strike, was convicted in District Court here of falsely testifying before the House Labor Committee that he was not a Communist. He was sentenced to from two to six years in jail and the Court of Appeals upheld the conviction.

For the majority, Justice Frank Murphy declared the question was whether the committee was a "competent tribunal" when Christoffel did the lying. Murphy said the trial judge had allowed the jury to assume it was competent, that is, that a majority of its members were present, even though this was not established in court by the Government, and with considerable evidence that the opposite was true.

Murphy made it clear the court feels it is entirely up to Congress to set its own rules, but that once set they must be followed.

"The House insists," Murphy said, "that to be such a (competent) tribunal a committee must consist of a quorum." The court agreed that to convict Christoffel the jury "had to be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that there

Court Holds Man Justified In Forsaking Impure Bride

New York, June 27 (U.P.).—A domestic relations court judge has ruled that a husband was justified in leaving his wife when he discovered that she was not a virgin at the time of their marriage.

Justice I. Montefiore Levy, in a decision revealed today, also denied the woman an application for support money from her husband. He said that society condones the fact that most men have had sex relations before marriage, but that it is customary for women to be pure.

He used fictitious names in referring to the couple involved in the case, calling them "Jane and Gil Burdes."

"Thus is posed a problem which has affected the philosophy of mankind for many years," Levy said. "In the ages gone, there were double standards both in the morals and conduct of the sexes. That exists today in many sections of the world.

"In the United States, both in personal and property rights, man and woman are substantially equal. Usually the law is behind convention, but in sexual standards the reverse is true. The law sees no difference if an act is committed by either man or woman. Society does.

"Thus it is taken for granted that at marriage the major number of men are not continent. Not so women—it is assumed the large percentage of women are pure."

Levy said both the man and the woman in this case admitted they had sex relations before

Hiss Repeats Denials to Prosecutor

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 27.—Alger Hiss today held to his denials of participation in Communist spy-ring activities as the prosecution jabbed and probed at his testimony in more than four hours of cross-examination.

Employing his own legal training, Hiss at times appeared to be almost enjoying himself as he parried many of the attempts of Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy to shake his story.

His principal concession in this opening day of cross-examination was that he erred last December when he told a Federal grand jury he had a Woodstock typewriter until some time "subsequent to 1938."

'Best Honest Recollection'

The 44-year-old Hiss said he was stating his "best honest recollection" at that time, and did not realize until later that that typewriter left his house in 1937, as the defense contends.

The Government charges this typewriter was still in the Hiss home in 1938 and was used to copy secret State Department documents which Hiss supplied to spy-ring courier Whittaker Chambers.

In the two perjury counts against him, Hiss is charged with lying to the grand jury last December 15 when he denied he ever gave these papers to Chambers, or even had seen Chambers after January 1, 1937.

Murphy today also confronted Hiss with grand jury testimony in which he said three of four memorandums in Chambers' possession were in Hiss' handwriting. Hiss said he was not sure if the fourth was his writing.

Acid Exchange Provoked

Demanding to know why he now admits all four are in his writing, Murphy asked why he has changed his testimony. Hiss said it was in large part due to the prosecution's introduction of a State Department document with the same information as that shown on the fourth memorandum, and noted with some acidity:

"I knew three of them were in my handwriting. What difference did it make whether the fourth was in my handwriting or not?"

"I'll ask the questions from here on in, Mr. Witness," retorted Murphy sharply.

Murphy questioned him sharply, and at frequent intervals throughout the examination, about the 1929 Ford which Hiss said he gave to Chambers in 1936.

The prosecutor stressed that when Hiss testified last August before the House Committee on Un-American Activities he gave conflicting testimony on this subject.

Questioned About Rug

Hiss today insisted that he appeared there without checking records and was not able to recall the transaction completely. He said he still does not remember all the details.

Hiss was also examined at length about a red Oriental rug which Chambers gave him, but held to his statement that Chambers told him it came from a "wealthy patron" of Chambers', and was apparently in part-payment for rent which Chambers owed Hiss.

Chambers, in his seven days of testimony here, stated that he presented the rug to Hiss as a gift from the "Soviet people" in acknowledgment of Hiss' work in the Communist underground.

The cross-examination of Hiss began after Chief Defense Attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker completed the direct examination of Hiss at 11:08 a. m.

Stryker, turning to Hiss, in the closing minute of that examination, declared in his most impressive manner:

"You have entered your plea of

$100,000 Fake Bills Seized; Five Arrested

By Judith Spivak
Post Reporter

Five alleged members of a counterfeiting ring which manufactured about $100,000 in bogus $20 notes across the street from the World Bank were seized here yesterday by Secret Service men. All but $2000 of the fake notes were recovered.

Washington agents, who have hunted the gang since April, seized all five persons within 24 hours, picking up the last two at 1:30 a. m. yesterday.

Those arrested and arraigned yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence, were:

Eugene Hammond Creighton, 25, cab driver, of 1315 Delafield pl. nw.

Walter Wilbur Kidwell, 30, cab driver, same address.

William F. Hughes, 28, driver for Thompson's Dairy, and his wife, Josephine, 25, both of 6000 13th st. nw., apt. 207.

Arthur M. Bebar, 35, employed in the Adjutant General's Office in the Pentagon and a part-time offset printer, 1013 17th st. ne.

All were charged under a Federal statute forbidding the manufacture, possession or passing of counterfeit money, with intent to defraud. Penalty for conviction under the act is 15 years or $5000 fine or both.

Both Hughes and Bebar entered "not-guilty" pleas. The hearing was continued until 1:30 p. m. Friday at request of Creighton and Kidwell, who were not represented by counsel and did not enter pleas.

Coplon Case Arguments Due Today

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

In an atmosphere of almost uncanny quiet the defense in the Judith Coplon espionage case rested yesterday.

Past was a stretch of more than nine weeks of seething trial sessions, two million words of testimony, in which the prosecution has sought to show, and the defense to counter the charge, that the 28-year-old Miss Coplon used her Department of Justice job to pass her Nation's secrets to Russia.

Ahead was an expected explosion of final arguments from both sides, due today in District Court, starting at 9:30.

It was agreed each side should have two hours for its arguments.

Opening for the prosecution will be Raymond P. Whearty, assistant prosecutor, who was once Miss Coplon's boss in the Department of Justice, used to call her "Judy," and once helped give a luncheon for her. Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., will rebut.

There was every prospect that the case would go to the jury Wednesday.

Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer opened yesterday's session by complaining that Columnist Drew Pearson, in a broadcast Sunday night, had "predicted this girl was going to be convicted."

The defense attorney asked that Judge Albert L. Reeves denounce this as "outrageous."

"It is rumored the Department of Justice gives top secrets to Pearson," Palmer shouted. "And since Mr. Pearson claims to be the ear of Washington Government, he has no right to try to reach the ear of the public, including the jury, with such conclusions."

His instructions to the jury, Judge Reeves said, would cite that they were to pay no attention to anything they might have heard over the radio.

As his final witness, Palmer called Arthur Shimkin, of the publishing firm of Simon and Schuster.

This was in relation to Miss Coplon's claim that some of the House Votes To Reject 4 Substitute Measures

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman's huge, long-range housing bill cleared its first hurdles in the House yesterday, with the defeat of four substitutes in rapid order.

A substitute by Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) that would have provided 350 million dollars for slum clearance and veteran and farm housing aids, but would have dropped the public housing program, was the first to go down on a teller vote of 137 to 99.

Next to fall, by a division vote of 110 to 78, was a bill by Representative Frederic R. Coudert, jr. (R., N. Y.), providing for two billion dollars in Federal grants over a period of 10 years for slum clearance.

The House then rejected, 150 to 50 on a division vote, a substitute introduced by Mrs. Frances Bolton (R., Ohio) and nine other Republicans, embodying most of the provisions of Mr. Truman's program, but proposing to go further with a program of Government low-interest, long-term loans for private construction of 350,000 dwelling units.

A fourth substitute by Representative William Lemke (R., N.D.) was defeated 116 to 61.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) predicted that the housing bill would pass by tonight, but there are still many amendments to be considered.

Final passage of the measure, substantially the same as that adopted by the Senate in April, will give the Administration its first real victory in President Truman's "fair deal" program. He made housing one of his prime campaign issues.

Principal provisions of the Administration bill include:

1. The Federal Government would contribute up to 400 million dollars annually for 40 years to permit the construction, through local housing authorities, of 1,050,000 publicly owned dwelling units. House Democrats already have agreed to cut this back to 810,000 in conformity with the Senate-passed bill.

Tenants in publicly owned housing would pay rents in accord with their incomes. Federal contributions would be used to meet the difference between rental income and the amount necessary to pay off the cost of building and operation.

2. A five-year slum clearance program, with one third of the cost to be met by the Federal Government, the balance by local communities.

The bill authorizes one billion dollars in Federal loans and 500 million dollars in grants for this purpose.

3. A $262,500,000 farm housing program. This would provide housing loans for farmers who could not get credit elsewhere, and grants are provided in some cases for housing on farms that are not self-sustaining.

Man, 80, Grows New Teeth, Hair With Youth Elixir

Isleworth, England, June 27 (U.P.). Eighty-year-old Sam Taylor, who is growing new hair and cutting new teeth, revealed today the secret of the youth elixir his grandmother taught him to make.

The key ingredients are elderberry blossoms or berries, and red clover blossoms, he said.

Add these two items to a stew of "good healthy" stinging nettles, dandelion blossoms and roots and fresh green shoots from a may hedge, Samuel said.

"After two hours stewing, you strain the liquid, add sugar or honey, with the juice of three lemons, and when the liquid is cooling, add one and a half ounces of liquid yeast.

"Next morning skim and bottle," he said.

Sam's family doctor said he doesn't know what there is about the brew that does it, but the old man is spry, takes long walks and actually appears to be growing younger.

D. C. Recreation Board Insists On Segregation at Six Pools

The District Recreation Board yesterday voted 3 to 2 to withdraw its support from the free swimming pool program at six GSI-operated pools unless it is allowed to continue its segregation policy.

A special meeting of the Executive Board of the Federation of Citizens Associations last night unanimously adopted a resolution demanding that Secretary of the Interior Julius A. Krug turn over all District recreation facilities to the D. C. Recreation Board.

Notification of the Recreation Board's action goes to Government Services, Inc., today for action by its board of trustees. They must decide whether to grant the Recreation Board ultimatum or stick by the nonsegregation policy which the Interior Department has laid down in its contracts with GSI.

An Interior Department official said the department was prepared to take over operation of the pools if GSI turns back its contract, but will have to ask Congress for the money.

GSI now operates six pools. Of these, the Recreation Board has segregated programs for white children at Takoma, McKinley, Anacostia and East Potomac. It maintains similar programs for Negroes at Francis and Banneker pools. The programs are in the morning. Afternoon GSI operates the pools for an admission fee.

Yesterday's action by the Recreation Board followed withdrawal of four Recreation Department paid life guards at McKinley Tech pool when a group of 45 children, mostly Negroes, appeared for a

Transit Wage Talks Bring No Solution

Representatives of the Capital Transit Co. and of its employes made no progress yesterday in a 2½-hour discussion of disputed wages, working conditions and arbitration procedure, spokesmen declared after the meeting.

With only three talking days left before the present work contract expires Thursday night, another meeting—which may turn out to be the last before a strike vote is taken by the union—was fixed for 11 a. m. Wednesday.

Spokesmen for both sides were pessimistic. William F. Simms, president of Division 689, AFL Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, said, "If the company continues its stand, it looks like a strike."

A strike of the transit company's 4300 operators and maintenance employes would mean stoppage of streetcar and bus service.

A strike vote will be taken at a union meeting called for Thursday midnight if the company's position does not change before then, Simms said.

The company is said to have offered to pay 5 cents an hour more in wages if certain efficiency economies are put into effect. The union is reported to have asked 10 cents an hour increase instead of the original demand for 25 cents. Both offers were informal.

While both sides have agreed to arbitrate the differences, they have been unable to agree on an arbitration method.

Plea to Truman

Morse Asks Arbitration In Hawaii

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) yesterday proposed that President Truman appoint an impartial arbitration board to hear the evidence in the Hawaiian shipping strike and call on both sides to agree in advance to accept the board's findings.

The executive board of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union promptly offered to recommend immediate return to work by the Hawaiian longshoremen if Mr. Truman acts on the proposal.

Morse made his proposal in a Senate speech in which he criticized an editorial in The Washington Post of June 25. The editorial depicted the plight of Hawaii after a virtual blockade of the islands through a strike of 2000 longshoremen that has continued since May 1. Then it called on President Truman to seek an injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act to end the strike.

Sees "Anti-Labor Bias"

Terming The Washington Post "a great newspaper," the Oregon Senator nonetheless accused it of having maintained "for a great many months," an "anti-labor bias" in its editorial policy. He suggested that the "bias" might spring from The Washington Post's "own labor difficulties in recent years."

Morse said "one cannot read The Washington Post editorial without recognizing that the editorial writer recognizes what the effect of the injunction would be in the Hawaiian strike. It would bust it, and The Post knows it.

"But do we find in the editorial of The Washington Post an unbiased pro and con statement of the strike in Hawaii? We do not. We find that great newspaper seeking to poison the minds of its readers, dragging across its pages again the old Communist bugaboo in the stevedore industry."

Admits Bridges Hurts Cause

Morse said he conceded that the "leftism" of Harry Bridges, head of the longshoremen's union, "is a distinct disservice to organized labor in this country." He conceded, also, that "of course, Hawaii is about prostrate" as a result of the strike.

But after quoting from The Washington Post editorial, suggesting an injunction "applying to companies as well as the union and on the West Coast as well as Hawaii," Morse commented:

"What nonsense, Mr. President! What deceit, Mr. President, of reference to the injunction applying to the company. What would the effect of the injunction be on the company? . . . . . It would have no effect on the company under the Taft-Hartley law, but it would restore the status quo before the strike, and under the American flag it would send the ships in there and break the strike. . . . . .

"It would have effect on the company all right. It would be right in the company's corner."

Blames Hawaiian "Big 5"

Morse said The Washington Post "was not fair enough" to "make the record clear."

Further, he said:

"Why does not The Washington Post put heat where it belongs, on the Big Five of Hawaii? (He did not identify the "Big Five.") The Big Five are spending huge sums of money to convince the American people that arbitration of the Hawaiian dispute would be what? Communist tactics. Imagine it, Mr. President . . . Did Senators ever hear of anything more nonsensical than that? What the Big Five in Hawaii want to do in this economic showdown is to break the union and win the strike. They want the United States Government on their side of the table, by way of an injunction. The Washington Post is asking that that weapon be placed in the hands of those employers."

In proposing presidential appointment of an arbitration board "to hear the case as a judicial tribunal," the Oregonian said that "if the employers of Hawaii are so sure of the merits of their case so far as their economic position is concerned, then they should have no cause to be afraid of fair arbitration before a board appointed by the President of the United States."

Urges Special Message

He urged that Mr. Truman send a special message to Congress, or address a joint session, to announce appointment of the arbitration board, commenting that "the little fellow" is the one who is suffering "as the union and the Big Five reach for each other's throat."

Two thousand stevedores in Hawaii struck May 1 for an increase of 32 cents in their hourly pay of $1.40.

Union officials have said they offered last Friday to whittle down their demand but that the proposal brought no response from the employers. The stevedoring companies offered an increase of 12 cents an hour before the srike began but have since withdrawn that offer.

Most of Hawaii's 500,000 inhabitants are reported feeling the effects of the walkout as food prices continue to climb and wage cuts and in some cases layoffs in businesses affected by the strike were on the increase.

No comment had come from the employers last night on Morse's proposal.

Lone Star Steel Expansion Loan Refused by RFC

The Reconstruction Finance Corp. yesterday turned down a request for a $74,103,000 loan for proposed expansion of a war-time steel plant in Texas.

However, the RFC left the door open for a possible loan of half that amount to the applicant, the Lone Star Steel Co., Dallas, whose principal officers include the Texas financier, E. B. Germany.

Rejection of the initial application was explained partly on grounds that the RFC is "not making 100 per cent loans."

Lone Star Steel's plant, situated at Daingerfield, Tex., originally was owned by the Government, which invested approximately 30 million dollars in it and supplementary facilities, including some coal mine property.

3 Bakeries Selling Pies Despite Strike

Three of the city's four major pie bakeries, whose driver-salesmen have been on strike for 25 days, are turning out pies again on a limited basis and selling them on a cash-and-carry, over-the-counter basis.

Since June 3, when the 100 driver-salesmen struck for a $4 increase, the city has had some 15,000 fewer pies per week, and about 200 pie bakers have been out of work.

Crusty, Perfection and Colonial bakeries declined to say how many bakers are back at work, but one manager believes the three could put out 10,000 to 12,000 pies a week if they could be sold over the counter.

GOP Split Gives Lucas Chance To Beat Taft on Injunctions

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Senate GOP split last night offered the Administration its only real chance to cut the injunction heart out of the Taft-Hartley act.

With the outcome a toss-up, Democratic leaders were claiming ten Republicans will part company with Senator Taft (R., Ohio) to vote against use of injunctions in critical strikes.

Republican leaders, however, predicted they will hold their desertions to six or seven.

So close was the contest that this three- or four-vote difference in estimates may tell the story of whether there is to be a new labor law significantly different from the Taft-Hartley Act.

It could determine whether there will be any new labor law at all.

The decision will be reached in a series of three test votes in the Senate today. These pivot around a motion by Senate Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois to eliminate from the Taft substitute bill a provision for 60-day injunctions in national emergency strikes.

That would still leave intact for the time being Taft bill authority for the Government to seize struck plants in an emergency.

But Taft warned the Senate last night he will vote against his own substitute if the Lucas amendment should win "because only seizure would remain."

"I consider that seizure by itself, without the right of injunction, is completely one-sided and ineffective," Taft said.

Taft took the floor, in an eleventh-hour appeal, after Lucas won a White House nod for his anti-injunction move.

Confers With Truman

Following a legislative conference with the President, Lucas told newsmen Mr. Truman "does not object to my amendment—it is in line with his thinking."

Lucas added that this did not mean Mr. Truman approved of seizure of struck plants.

"That's a separate proposition, and will be voted on separately," said Lucas.

The Lucas anti-injunction amendment, which had a magic uniting effect on prolabor Senators, will go to a Senate vote at 2 p. m., in the second of the crucial series of three votes.

The first round will come at 1 p. m. on an amendment offered by Senator Holland (D., Fla.), with the backing of Taft, to authorize specifically 60-day injunctions (without seizure) in national emergency strikes.

Then at 3 p. m., Taft's own substitute, combining use of injunctions with seizure authority, will go to a Senate vote.

If Lucas wins, the Taft amendment would be stripped to seizure authority, and the Senate could take or leave that.

Needs All Doubtful Senators

To win, however, Lucas would have to capture virtually all of the doubtful Senators. He would have to cut into Republican voting strength for the largest defection yet on a key labor issue, and hold his own Southern Democratic desertions to a maximum of 14. Even then, he would only squeak through by one or two votes.

If he loses, for all practical purposes, the drive to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act may be over for this session. Lucas indicated as much when he said the outcome will decide the fate of new labor legislation and how long Congress will remain in session this summer.

In a terse speech, just before the Senate recessed, Taft attacked the Lucas strategy as "an attempt to amend our substitute so that the Senate cannot vote on the double-barreled proposal of injunction and seizure."

Urging Senators to vote for the Holland amendment and his own, Taft hit at the argument of some Administration Senators that Mr. Truman already has the power to enjoin in emergencies, and if not seizure authority implies the right to enjoin.

"How ridiculous," he said, "is the position of the Administration, which objects to spelling out this (injunction) right clearly, simply on the ground that you have it already.

"If you have it already, what possible objection can there be to spelling it out clearly? An injunction given by law is no more a reflection on labor than one granted by the Constitution, if there is any such grant."

Without the clear right to enjoin to protect the Nation's "health and safety," Taft said the President would be left "in a futile, ridiculous and humiliating position if his requests are defied and he has no remedy except to call Congress together."

New England Gets Heat Relief, But N. Y. Drought Continues

Chicago, June 27 (U.P.).—A mass of cool air rolled south along the Atlantic Coast tonight, bringing a break in a 17-day heat wave and promising relief for millions in New England and New York City.

The Weather Bureau said, however, that the cool air which would send temperatures into the low 50s in some areas would be only temporary and the mercury would climb again Tuesday into the high 80s.

At Hartford, Conn., the temperature dropped from 90 degrees at 5:30 p. m. to 69 at 8:30 p. m., and forecasters predicted it would hit a low of 50 there before daylight.

During the night the cool air mass was expected to sweep across heavily populated southwestern Connecticut and Westchester County, which borders on the Metropolitan New York area. But weather observers said that only parts of New York City—the Bronx and parts of Queens—would get relief.

Hot air moving up from the south will dissipate the cool air mass Tuesday, weather observers said.

Throughout the rest of the Nation the weather was mostly hot and muggy.

In metropolitan New York and the surrounding area, the drought had clear skies and no rain, forecasters said.

Scattered showers were forecast, however, for parts of drought-seared Pennsylvania, and for Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee and other areas which also could use moisture.

Heat Brings Off Wigs In House of Lords

London, June 27 (U.P.).—Officials at the House of Lords were allowed to remove their wigs when the temperature reached 86 today, the hottest of the year.

Britain has had no rain since June 12. If none falls by Tuesday, the country will be in a state of "absolute drought."

was in its thirty-second day with no relief in sight.

The New York metropolitan area reported at least 11 deaths from the heat.

At Chicago, the Weather Bureau reported that in the last 24 hours some rain had fallen in the southeast and in the northwest, from the Dakotas and Nebraska to Washington State.

Lewis' Plan Is Reported Turned Down

Pittsburgh, June 27 (U.P.).—John L. Lewis's negotiations with the Nation's soft coal operators tonight were on the verge of a strike-producing stalemate.

Proposals of the United Mine Workers' chief apparently had met rebuffs on two fronts.

The key segment of the northern operators—western Pennsylvania, northwestern Virginia and Ohio—reportedly rejected Lewis' proposal to delay a walkout pending extending negotiations, if production were limited to three days a week.

Meanwhile, a southern operators' group, which has been in independent negotiations with the UMW for five weeks, refused Lewis' invitation to join in a National coal conference.

The "Big Three" group of Northern operators, headed by Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. President George H. Love, caucused here today on Lewis' proposal to forego the union's traditional "no contract, no work" policy after the June 30 deadline, if production was limited.

While they made no announcement following their meeting and headed for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to resume talks with Lewis Tuesday, reports from industry-wise sources said they had rejected the plan.

Italian Rationing to End

Rome, June 27 (U.P.).—Rationing of pasta and bread will be abolished next month because of the prospects of a bumper wheat harvest this year, informed sources said today.

Mid-Year Review

Economist Trio Reports To Truman

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, yesterday submitted to President Truman the council's mid-year review of the Nation's economy.

This will be the basis for a message Mr. Truman will send to Congress the second week of July. In this he is expected to tell the lawmakers whether he has changed his mind about his January request for four billion dollars in new taxes. He also is expected to answer the question of what the Administration proposes to do about mounting unemployment.

Dr. Nourse, who was accompanied to the White House by Leon H. Keyserling and John D. Clark, the other two members of the council, refused to comment on the contents of the mid-year review.

Production Drops Again

Meantime there were these developments in the economic situation:

The Federal Reserve Board reported industrial production dropped in May for the sixth consecutive month and was going farther down in June. The board's production index showed the drop was due primarily to sharp cutbacks in the iron and steel and machinery and nonferrous metal industries.

In Richmond, the State Unemployment Commission said a "slackening off" of employment in Virginia had resulted in a sharp increase in unemployment compensation claims. For the week ending June 19, the commission had 41,389 claims on hand—compared with 17,821 for the corresponding week in 1948.

In Stamford, Conn., the 3100 employes of the Yale & Towne hardware plant were put on a uniform four-day, 32-hour week. Officials of the concern said frankly it was a "stretch-the-work" plan to keep as many of its skilled operatives on the payroll as possible. They explained that a decline in building construction was responsible for the new arrangement.

Foundry Shut Down

In New York, the American Brake Shoe Co., announced that it would close permanently its foundry in Atlanta, Ga., because of a lack of orders. The plant, which manufactures freight car wheels, employs 57 persons. Some will be transferred to jobs in other plants. American Brake Shoe, which has operated the Atlanta foundry for 36 years, plans to sell the property and its equipment.

Out of New York also came an announcement by the Sloane-Blabon Corp. that it was ordering price cuts of from 5 to 8 per cent on its line of linoleum and felt base floor coverings. It was explained that the price cuts were made possible by lower costs of raw materials.

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, predicted unemployment is going to grow worse unless the Government does something about it.

He said in letters to CIO national unions and city and State industrial councils that unemployment has risen 50 per cent in a year "and the end is not in sight." He made these proposals:

Increased and extended unemployment compensation benefits; increased relief payments; tax relief payments; tax relief for low income families; public works in "hard hit areas;" increased minimum wages; loans to new and small businesses; transportation of unemployed workers to places where they might find work.

Lane Asked to Act

In Cumberland, Md., the mayor and the council called on Governor Lane to do something about the unemployment situation. Approximately 5000 workers have been furloughed from the plant of the Celanese Corporation of America since January 1.

Governor Lane was asked in a resolution to name a committee composed of members of the General Asembly, the State Labor Department and the Unemployment Compensation Board to study Cumberland's need for the coming winter. He was asked, also, to start as many public works as possible in western Maryland.

The Federal Reserve Board, in reporting a continuing decline in industrial production, said its production index fell five points in May to 174 per cent of the 1935-39 average—the lowest since February, 1946, when the prolonged General Motors strike pushed it down to 151.

The board said steel production dropped from 103 per cent of capacity in March to 84 per cent in the week which began June 20.

Machinery production also has dropped since the beginning of the year and now is 20 per cent less than the rate which prevailed at the end of 1948.

The board's report was not altogether gloomy. Automobile production, which fell off in May, has since climbed to record peaks, reaching a 20-year high last week. Construction awards expanded slightly in May due to increased public building. Private awards in the same month were less than in April and well under a year ago.

In the first half of June department store sales were 7 per cent below the high level of a year ago.

Sixty-one Senators, or nearly two-thirds of the Senate, yesterday lined up behind a move to require the President to cut Congressional appropriations 5 to 10 per cent below his own budget.

A petition, bearing the signatures of 24 Democrats and 37 Republicans in favor of the cut, was formally presented yesterday to leaders by Senate Expenditures Chairman John L. McClellan (D., Ark.).

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), who had balked at calling up the McClellan resolution, promised to take it up with his policy committee, but was noncommittal on Senate scheduling.

Sponsors of the resolution have warned they will move to tie it to an appropriation bill as a rider unless Lucas schedules separate action. A two-thirds vote is required to write legislation into a money bill. The petitioners claim three supporters who have not yet signed up will give them the necessary two-thirds.

Lucas termed the petition "slightly premature" in view of the fact the Senate hasn't yet approved four big appropriation bills involving nearly 30 billion dollars.

Another three money bills are still tied up in conference in the worst log jam on appropriations in two years.

With few if any of these likely to become law before the new fiscal year starts Thursday midnight, leaders yesterday discussed with the President the possibility of passing a "stop gap" continuing resolution if necessary to keep Government agencies in funds.

Lucas said he "certainly" wouldn't expect to schedule action on the McClellan move until Congress had passed all the appropriation bills.

He termed it "rather strange" that some members of the Appropriations Committee "should want to petition the President, even before doing their own cutting."

The resolution directing Mr. Truman to make the 5 to 10 per cent cuts was originally offered as a 5 per cent proposition by Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.).

Republicans, led by Senators Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) and Clyde M. Reed (Kans.), introduced a similar proposal, and the now "bipartisan" bill was approved by the Expenditures Committee.

McClellan said Senators from 40 States, representing 94 per cent of the population, signed the petition. Both Senators from each of 21 States signed it.

Soldiers to Be Pageant Actors

Sixty soldiers from Fort Belvoir and the Engineer Center are in the cast of Alexandria's bicentennial pageant "Alexandria—Thy Sons," which will be presented the week of July 11.

Dressed in French military uniforms of the colonial period, they will spar with red-coated members of Alexandria's National Guard unit in a reenactment of Braddock's defeat.

The drama, a recital of the city's history, will climax the bicentennial celebration. It will be played in an outdoor theater now being erected in the 500 block of S. Lee st.

N. Y. Area Bankers Believe Depression Will Be Avoided

New York, June 27 (AP).—Northeastern bankers believe the business recession will end before it becomes a severe depression, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said today.

The bank noted, however, that bankers of the Second Federal Reserve District reported an "unfavorable turn" in the area's general business conditions over the past three months. The district consists of New York State, northern New Jersey and Fairfield County, Conn.

The average banker of the District believes "this is a good time to be just a little more cautious in his investment and lending policies," the reserve bank said.

The bank reported, the decline in business activity was not uniform. In some larger communities retail trade was said to be 5 to 15 per cent below 1948 levels, while in many other places it was termed merely "spotty."

Conditions in agricultural areas, generally were fairly stable.

There were further signs of softening of activity and prices in the residential real estate field and little evidence of the usual sharp seasonal upturn in building. Houses priced at more than $10,000 were reported moving very slowly.

Police Rescue 2 Girls, Man Three Times in Canoe Upsets

Pvts. Alfred Capasso and Carroll W. Shoemaker of Park Police became very weary last night of pulling the same three young persons out of the Potomac River.

Jones

Twice the officers pulled them out and loaded them back into a canoe, they said.

The third time the canoe overturned, the patient policemen took the three ashore and summoned help to send them home.

The three, clad only in bathing suits, were in a rented canoe in the Georgetown Channel, about halfway to Hains Point. Reason for the repeated upsets, the officers said, was obscure. But they called help of Metropolitan police.

The Metropolitan officers loaded Rosanne Dubois, 22, and her sister, Evelyn Coble, 20, both of 2107 O st. nw., into a scout car until they could be transferred, still wearing only their wet bathing suits, to a taxicab for home.

And Harbor Police in a boat took aboard Walter Jones, 27, 2112 O st. nw., towed the canoe back to the rental dock where Jones got his clothes. Then he went home.

Senate, House Groups Move To Enact Part of Brannan Plan

By The Associated Press

Senate and House committees yesterday moved to enact at least part of the Truman Administration's controversial farm program—on a "trial run" basis—before Congress adjourns.

The issue is expected to reverberate in farm-belt congressional election campaigns next year.

In the Senate, the Democratic Policy Committee decided to seek approval of a bill which would permit the Administration to experiment with hogs, as a starter, in its revolutionary proposals.

House Group Drafts Bill

Newsmen asked Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) whether this meant the Democratic leadership was abandoning hope of passing the whole program at this session of Congress.

"I don't want to make that broad statement," Lucas replied.

On the House side, the Agriculture Committee completed the final draft on a bill which would authorize Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to conduct a three-crop experiment next year.

Brannan is the author of the much-disputed farm program which would allow consumer prices of perishable food and farm products to drop below Government price-support levels when supplies are plentiful. On the other hand, the Government would offer "production payments" to farmers to keep their income at fair levels.

Chairman Cooley (D., N. C.) said the House Agriculture Committee will formally approve the three-crop bill Tuesday. It was introduced in the House by Representative Pace (D., Ga.).

Senator Lucas said the Senate Democratic Policy Committee discussed the possibility of broadening its "hog test" verson to apply to other farm products. But he said the majority of the lawmakers present at the meeting opposed such a suggestion.

Goes Into Effect January 1

Lucas said the policy group also hopes to get action on legislation which would shelve the Aiken-Hope farm law enacted by the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress. This is scheduled to go into effect next January 1.

The Aiken-Hope measure provides for a flexible system of Federal price support, ranging from 60 to 90 per cent of parity on key commodities. Parity is a price calculated to give farmers a fair return for crops in relation to the prices of things they buy.

The House committee bill would repeal the Aiken law. It would create a new parity system as proposed by Brannan and support major crops by this standard. For most crops this would mean higher price supports.

Brentwood, University Park Elect

Town officials were reelected in Brentwood and University Park, Md., yesterday in seven hours of light voting.

Mayor James L. Russell, 42-year-old Federal Works Agency engineer, was reelected to his second term in rBentwood along with the three incumbent councilmen, Elbert Brown, J. Milton Stanford and the treasurer, William Bischoff. They were unopposed.

In University Park Melvin Herbert was elected councilman from the second ward, in a write-in race for the post vacated by Councilman William Bowie. University Park councilmen reelected were Dr .Charles E. White and Albert B. Heagy, first and third wards respectively. Only 49 votes were cast.

Britain, Argentina Sign 5-Year Trade Pact; State Department Tones Down Objections

Buenos Aires, June 27 (AP).—Britain and Argentina today signed a five-year trade pact calling for exchanges of 500 million dollars the first year and looking to at least an equal volume the other years.

In Washington the U. S. State Department toned down objections it had voiced to the pact.

The pact commits the two nations to virtual barter. Originally the U. S. said this violates the spirit of free competitive international trade.

However, the U. S. State Department in a formal statement tonight said it was "gratified to observe that substantially more flexibility" has been incorporated into the text of the trade pact. At no point did the statement say the United States now approves the pact. The statement was issued after top State Department officials had consulted most of the day on what the U. S. attitude would be.

Marking the end of negotiations lasting four months and five days, President Juan Peron sharply rapped "outside criticism" in a short speech at the ceremony.

"It is not possible to hide the evil intentions and evil designs behind this criticism," he said. "This type of economic warfare is a sign of incapacity.

Sir John Balfour, British Ambassador, did not refer directly to American protests, but said the two countries had found bilateral trading was the only possible course. He said both countries were free to buy from the United States when they have dollars available.

Since 1947 the British have stopped the free convertibility of pounds.

London Faces Paralysis in Dock Strike

London, June 27 (AP). — The sprawling port of London faced complete shutdown tonight as stevedores went out on a sympathy strike in support of the striking crewmen of four Canadian ships here.

About 4000 dockmen quit work today. Strike leaders predicted thousands of others would join the walkout Tuesday and paralyze activity in the port.

Unloading was halted today on 19 ships carrying urgently needed meat, fish and fruit for England's millions.

The walkout began after union representatives of the Canadian seamen claimed Canadian shipowners violated an agreement reached last Friday.

A month-long strike of British dockworkers which tied up more than 100 ships along England's West Coast and nearly 20 in London ended June 14. This earlier strike began as a protest against unloading of other Canadian ships involved in a strike of the Canadian Seamens Union.

Cripps Confers With ECA Aide

total value of all government, stocks has fallen about 500 million pounds (two billion dollars).

The gold-dollar crisis was also the chief reason bringing Cripps and Harriman together.

Harriman was here to confer with United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas. At Cripps' invitation, Harriman and Douglas called on him at the treasury. They conferred for an hour.

Their problem is an involved financial one. It is how to get free exchange of currency—and more trade—among the ECA nations in Europe.

For the past year, the United States has made some of its Marshall aid money grants conditional upon such trading.

If, for instance, Britain used such dollars to give France and Belgium sterling, Britain still kept the dollars. France and Belgium could spend the sterling either in Britain or anywhere else in the sterling area.

The new result was that Britain ended up with the dollars. The other countries ended up with goods bought in sterling areas.

Other Marshall-aid countries also used conditional dollar grants to give credit.

Now, Belgium and France are proposing that the Marshall-aid countries among themselves should give convertibility to each other's money.

Want Freer Exchange of Money

Convertibility has grown to mean that a country could ask its debtor to pay in dollars or gold. It is time, say France and Belgium, for Europe to trade more widely in its own area. And to do it, money must be freely exchanged.

Broadly, the United States supports this view. The United States would not necessarily insist on convertibility. It would accept transferability.

Transferability, in simple terms, means the European Marshall aid countries would freely trade their currencies with each other but would not insist upon getting dollars for them.

New South Wales On Emergency In Coal Strike

Sydney, Australia, June 27 (U.P.). The new South Wales cabinet approved extreme emergency measures today to cope with the worst industrial crisis in Australia's history caused by the strike today of 23,000 Communist-led coal miners.

The ministers met in a room lit by oil lamps because of the power shortage.

More than 500,000 men already were laid off with the figure mounting hourly as a result of the government's freezing of coal supplies three days ago in anticipation of the strike.

The miners demand a 35-hour week, a $4.40 pay raise and a paid, three-month vacation every seventh year.

Parliament is expected to empower the state to commandeer and control distribution of food, fuel and stoves and maintain essential services.

Virginia Bankers' Head Warns Against U. S. Usurpation

Hot Springs, Va., June 27 (AP).—Steps to oppose what he called the "socialization" of banking were urged here today by C. Francis Cocke, president of the Virginia Bankers Association.

He spoke at the opening of the 56th annual convention of the association. General George C. Marshall, former chief of staff and Secretary of State, is scheduled to address Tuesday's session.

Cocker, in his speech, urged the development of clear recognition of Federal and State government regulatory functions; strengthening of the banking system to render services needed; development of a stronger bankers association, and creation of better public relations all as means of forestalling the "socialization trend.

He charged that "under the guise of centralization of monetary and credit policy, our banks are being subjected to more and more control by our banking advisory agencies." He added that, when control is achieved, "operation and even ownership of our banks by the government would not be too difficult to accomplish."

He termed "basically unsound under our present economic system" the direct extension of credit by Government agencies in competition with privately owned banks.

A Washington attorney, D. J. Needham, general counsel of the American Bankers Association, also called for united action against centralized Government control and extravagant spending in Washington.

Needham scored the Federal housing program of the Truman Administration, calling it "the most sinister political movement I know of that has ever been undertaken by our Government." The most iniquitous part," he said, "is that no one knows how much they are going to spend."

Warning that the Nation is on the threshold of deficit financing, he urged the bankers to unite in an effort to get Congress to reduce appropriations to keep the deficit in hand.

Speakers Tuesday will include, besides General Marshall, Robert Lindquist, vice president, LaSalle National Bank, Chicago, and Earl Butz, Purdue University professor of agricultural economics and rural sociology.

Some 500 delegates, out-of-State guests and their wives are attending the convention.

Education Bill Sets Off Name-Calling Spat

By the United Press

Two leading House Democrats today got into a name-calling feud over Federal aid to education.

Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) of the House Labor Committee accused Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.) of sponsoring an "anti-Catholic and anti-Negro" education bill.

Barden retorted that Lesinski's "abusive language" smacks "too much like Czechoslovakia." He implied that Lesinski, a Catholic, is attacking his measure because high Catholic officials have denounced it.

Lesinski brought the long-smoldering battle over the education program into the open after Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) of the Senate Labor Committee sharply criticized Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for opposing the 300-million-dollar-a-year aid to education bill already passed by the Senate.

Thomas said it was amazing that Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, should be afraid of "Federal" influence in education since the General himself was educated at West Point at Government expense and has been on the Government payroll "all his life."

Eisenhower had said he opposes Federal grants for all States, wealthy and poor alike, but would "heartily support Federal aid to poorer States if safeguards were erected against bureaucratic "interference" with education.

Barden, chairman of a House labor subcommittee handling education matters, is backing a measure which would bar all Federal funds for parochial schools. He said yesterday he will seek a "showdown" vote today in the full committee where the bill has been tied up for several weeks.

Lesinski told reporters Barden's bill doesn't have a chance of winning committee approval because it is "antireligious."

"His bill is anti-Catholic and anti-Negro," said Lesinski. "It is my opinion that he drew it up that way purposely because he didn't want any aid to education and wanted to kill it."

Barden expressed himself as being "utterly astounded" when informed by reporters of Lesinski's attack. He said he did not want to engage in a "name-calling" contest.

"But God forbid that it ever reaches the point in America where a conscientious difference of opinion is the signal for name-calling, abusive language, questioning of character and even questioning of one's patriotism," he said. "That's sounds too much like Czechoslovakia to me and I want no part of it."

Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York denounced the Barden bill as "un-Catholic" and "Un-American" a week ago.

Maryland Boys Start Study Of Politics

Port Deposit, Md., June 27 (AP) High school boys from throughout Maryland today started practicing politics.

The 222 boys, all juniors, were picked by their principals to attend the third annual "Boys State" at the Bainbridge Naval School.

They'll be here for a week, holding elections on all levels of government and setting up model governing bodies.

They started off by getting some advice on the functions of political parties from Theodore McKeldin, former Baltimore mayor.

The boys were separated into two municipal groups, "Key City," named for Francis Scott Key, the author of the Star-Spangled Banner, and "Legion City," in deference to the American Legion, sponsor of Boys State.

Two parties, "Constitutional" and "Federalist," were formed in each city. Then the parties held elections to pick candidates for mayor and city council.

Baltimore boys won both mayoralty elections. Ralph Evans was chosen mayor of Legion City and Robert James mayor of Key City.

Trade Board Holds Dinner For Chatelain

The Washington Board of Trade last night honored its immediate past president, Leon Chatelain, jr., in a testimonial dinner at the Statler Hotel.

Chatelain

Chatelain, a Washington architect, served as president from May 1, 1948, to April 30 of this year. His successor Frederick P. H. Siddons, vice president of the American Security and Trust Co., presided.

The affair, an annual Board of Trade tradition, was attended by 62 board officers and friends of the guest of honor.

Commissioner Guy Mason lauded Chatelain for "a magnificent job in carrying out community activities," and recalled how Chatelain "needled us for a solid year" in the performance of his duties.

Mason thanked the former Board president for the help proffered in the fuel and coal shortages which occurred during Chatelain's administration.

Other speakers who praised the 47-year old architect were A. Hermann Wilson, president of the Washington Kiwanis Club; Thomas A. Locraft, a fellow architect; H. Randolph Maddox, president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. and Robert V. Fleming, a past president of the Board of Trade.

Thomas J. Groom, second vice president of the Board, presented Chatelain with a scrapbook of newspaper clippings and photographs covering his administration.

March of Dimes Got $25,728,000 In '49, a Record

New York, June 27 (AP).—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis reported yesterday that a record total of $25,728,000 was raised in the 1949 "March of Dimes."

Last year's total was $21,600,000.

Basil O'Connor, foundation president, said the need for funds "still remains extremely critical."

Last year's polio epidemic—the worst in 32 years—depleted emergency reserves of the foundation, he said, and costs of care and hospitalization have increased.

Half of the "March of Dimes" funds will be used by the foundation for research, education and training programs. The other half remains in local chapter treasuries for fighting polio outbreaks and caring for victims.

marriage. The judge said chastity is not necessarily a qualification for marriage, but that it may be if it is insisted upon.

He said that man still looks to the woman as of a finer breed.

"As the bride walks to the marriage altar, one thinks of her as pure, unsullied, a dainty person to be treated with understanding and respect—reminding us of Wordsworth's lines:

"She was a phantom of delight
When first she gleamed upon my sight
A perfect woman, nobly planned
To warn, to comfort and command;
And yet a spirit still, and bright
With something of an angel-light."

In this case, Levy said, the man declared he would not have married the woman if he had known that she was not a virgin. Under the law, he said, she violated a civil contract.

"Chastity," he added, "is a quality that lies at the foundation of marriage."

Corporal Held in Death Of Sergeant in Crash

A coroner's jury yesterday held Corpl. James Dunlap, 35, 738 9th st. se., for action of the Grand Jury in the death on June 4 of Sergt. John H. Price, 27, 526 7th st. ne. Both were stationed at Fort Belvoir.

Dunlap was driver of an auto which crashed into a tree on Bladensburg rd. near Earl pl. ne. Price was hurled through the windshield and his skull crushed. Three other occupants of the car were injured, including Dunlap and his wife. She is still in Walter Reed Hospital, but reported in good condition.

Greek Government Proposals Retarded

Athens, Greece, June 27 (U.P.).—A last-minute reversal by the Liberal Party leader today prevented Premier-designate Constantin Tsaldaris from forming a new government.

Sophocles Venizelos, who assumed leadership of the Liberals upon the death of party chief Premier Sophoulis Themistocles, initially agreed to Tsaldaris' proposals.

But 30 minutes before Tsaldaris was to tell King Paul he had succeeded in forming a government, Venizelos changed his mind.

Canadian Liberals Win by Landslide

Toronto, June 27 (AP). — Prime minister Louis St. Laurent's liberal party won a landslide victory in today's national elections. Canadian voters told the liberals to run the government five more years—for a total of 19 since they took over in 1935.

The main opposition party, the progressive conservatives, failed to convince Canadians they should make a change at a time when Canada is prosperous with only hints ofrecessi on. The result was a parallel, in some aspects, to what happened in the United States elections last year.

The election was for 262 members of the House of Commons, where the dominant party names the government. With relatively few districts still to report, the Liberals had won more than 60 per cent of the seats, and had a good chance of geting the greatest parliamentary majority in Canadian history.

At 10:15 p. m. (EST) the Liberals had 171 seats to the Conservatives' 34. The Socialist CCF (Cooperative Commonwealth Federation was a lame also-ran with seven. In the popular vote across the country, the Liberals ran their preliminary ratio against the Conservatives to about 2 to 1.

The trend to the Liberals became evident a few minutes after the polls closed in Newfoundland, and continued as voting stopped in the progresstive time belts across the country.

First the Maritimes, then Quebec fell into the liberal lineup. In Quebec the Liberals tool all but two or three of the 73 seats. Then the Liberals took Ontario, the home province of the Conservative leader George Drew.

They continued strongly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, where minor parties control the provincal governments.

Manitoba and British Columbia added to the Liberal totals.

Drew had campaigned in Quebec with the backing of the political machine of Premier Maurice Duplessis. Conceding defeat, Drew called upon his followers to "start building for the future."

The party that controls the House of Commons names the Prime Minister—Canada's nearest equivalent to the U. S. Presidency—and the cabinet. St. Laurent and Drew ran for office only as members of the House—and both won reelection in their own districts.

Various members of the cabinet also were reelected in their home constituencies. These included C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who shares with St. Laurent most of the control of the Canadian government.

St. Laurent, 67, has been in politics only eight years. He was Minister of External Affairs (Secretary of State) under Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, and succeeded King when the latter retired because of ill health last August. He campaigned on a platform of prosperity for Canada, and pointed to record figures on trade and employment to back up his party's bid for a return to power. He also promised more social security measures, including a contributory health plan.

Mayor Houde of Montreal won election from a newly formed Montreal district. Running as an independent, he defeated J. L. Meunier, liberal, by a narrow margin. Houde was interned four years during the war after he spoke against conscription, but won reelection as Mayor of Montreal a few months after his release.

Houde was the only non-liberal winning today in Montreal, Canada's largest city.

Rightists Lead in Belgian Vote

Brussels, Belgium, June 27 (AP). Belgium joined the swing to the political right in its general elections Sunday, final official returns showed tonight.

The Liberal Party, which corresponds roughly to Britain's Conservatives and the United States Republicans, increased its popular support by about 65 per cent over its showing in the 1946 elections. It displaced the Communists as the country's third party.

The Social Christians, only a little less conservative, made some gains also. However they failed to get the parliamentary majority they had called for to clinch holding a referendum on the return of exiled King Leopold 3d.

The Communists suffered their worst ballot box disaster in recent European history. The party lost about 40 per cent of its popular vote of 1946 and almost half its seats in the Chamber of Deputies.

Final official returns for the 212-member Chamber of Deputies, chosen under a proportional representation plan based on popular vote, showed:

Social Christians 104 seats, a gain of 12 over their 1946 showing.

Socialists 66 seats, a loss of 3.

Liberals 30 seats, a gain of 13.

Communists 12 seats, a loss of 11.

Social Christians 54, Socialists 34, Liberals 14, Communists 4.

Provincial councils (legislatures) will elect another 46 senators July 11. The two groups will meet the following day and pick an additional 23 senators.

An interior ministry official said there will be no further figures until Wednesday on the popular vote in yesterday's balloting.

Oosterhous Named To Takoma Council

Lawrence A. Oosterhous, 904 Glazewood ct., Takoma Park, a consulting economist, with the National Federation of America Shipping's research department last night was appointed to succeed Dr. Sherwood Githens on the Takoma Park City Council.

The council made the appointment in a session that lasted until after midnight.

In other actions last night, the Council authorized its corporation counsel to proceed with negotiations for purchase of property on Ritchie avenue for the establishment of a playground for Negroes.

Such a playground has been advocated for more than two years by several civic leaders and organizations in the municipality. The property is part of the Dixon estate in a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

The council paid high tribute to Dr. Githens, and presented him with an engraved gold badge. Dr. Githens will leave the Johnskins laboratory at Silver Spring to become head of the physics department at Baylor University, Waco, Tex.

Municipal officers reappointed for the fiscal year beginning July 1 were C. E. Thomas, police chief; Melvin A. McBride, fire chief; Harold Hilliard, city clerk and treasurer; Hugh Hegarty, city engineer and Vincent A. Gingerich, corporation counsel. All officers of the police and fire departments also were reappointed.

The council voted to give trash collection service, on a proportional payment basis, to 75 business houses, which hitherto employed independent collectors.

D. C. Young Democrats Elect J. R. Foley

John R. Foley, attorney, was elected president of the Young Democratic Club of the District of Columbia last night, succeeding Miss Rita E. A. Dery, who resigned because of ill health.

Foley won out over two other candidates, Elijah Stewart and I. H. Fredericks, both of Oklahoma, in the election held at the Women's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire ave. nw.

The young Democrats also indorsed unanimously the Kefauver home rule bill.

Chiang Seen En Route For Nationalist Talks

Canton, China, June 27 (AP).—A high Nationalist official today said that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was expected to fly here from Formosa this week for discussions with acting President Li Tsug-Jen.

Chiang was leaving his island retreat to try to patch up the rift between the two men, in order to present a united Nationalist front against the Communists, this source said.

In Falls Church

Curbs on Use Of Water Stiffened

Falls Church residents found watering their lawn or washing cars in violation of a city water ban will be fined up to $25 for the first offense, City Council decided last night.

The emergency order limiting use of water was issued this spring. Last night Orme told the council the water shortage is serious and will continue so until the town's new million-dollar water supply system is completed this fall. Second offenses against the water ban will bring $50 fines.

Guardsman Sentenced

Sentence of a year on probation was imposed yesterday on a delinquent District National Guardsman by Judge Ellen K. Raedy in Police Court on a charge of violating the militia laws.

Defendent was Melvin Duncan, 19, of no fixed address. Lieut. Lucien H. Minor, adjutant of the 171st Military Police Battalion of the Guard, testified Duncan has failed to attend drills and failed or refused to return clothing and equipment issued to him. Much of the clothing, Lieutenant Minor said, has been worn out.

Judge Raedy made a condition of the probation that Duncan attend drills and summer camp, and devote his pay to reimbursement for the clothing and equipment. Maximum penalty is two months imprisonment or $100 fine.

Flanders Asks Use of A-Bomb Only in Case of an Attack

By The Associated Press

Congress was asked yesterday to declare the atomic bomb a weapon of self-defense for the free Nations—not to be used unless an aggressor hurls it first.

But if an atomic attack is launched, the proposal laid before the Senate by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) would let the President order an A-bomb "retaliation" without waiting for a declaration of war.

[The New York Herald Tribune quoted Chairman Brien McMahon of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee as expressing doubt that the resolution would be brought to the floor. He said "the policy of this Government in the field of atomic energy is crystal clear, and with that policy I concur wholeheartedly."—Editor's note.]

Flanders resolutioin would class the bomb as "not properly a military device" but "a means for the mass murder of citizens." It would bind the United States to this national policy:

"Until satisfactory means of control are agreed upon and put into complete effect through the United Nations the armed services of this Nation are directed to prepare themselves in readiness to retaliate with overwhelming force against any Nation which initiates the military use of atomic energy."

This would mean that the United States armed forces—the only ones now known to be capable of atomic warfare—would build strategy on the concept that the atom is a reprisal weapon only.

Flanders told a news conference his resolution might speed the U. N.'s efforts to write an agreement on world-wide control of atomic energy.

When asked whether it might not also arouse criticism that this country is denying itself its foremost weapon, the Senator replied:

"I don't think we should sell our immortal souls to the Devil."

The resolution, he explained, will be tied in with a second now in preparation by himself and other Senators.

The forthcoming resolution, he said, would authorize the United States to collaborate with those powers in creating an armed force ready to "go into action in defense of the pact."

Study These Photos Of Lamb Chops

(They Can Help You Save Money On Meat)

Chops Trimmed These Two Different Ways Were Bought In This Area At The Same Price Per Pound In Recent Test-Purchase Survey

TIP END OF CHINE BONE STILL ON EACH CHOP (customer must pay full per-pound price for this piece of bone . . . even though no one can eat it!)

"TAIL" OF BONE AND EXCESS FAT STILL ON EACH CHOP
(sometimes this waste part is cut off or partially severed AFTER chops are weighed and charged for . . . which saves you exactly nothing!)

RIB LAMB CHOP UNTRIMMED BEFORE WEIGHING
...as some markets here weigh lamb chops for pricing

DO MANY MARKETS HEREABOUTS still retail meat this old-fashioned way . . . untrimmed BEFORE weighing? Findings in recent survey by an independent research organization indicate you should CHECK YOUR MARKET! Women investigators bought chops at markets all over this area. They discovered that 94% of these markets (other than Safeway markets) DID NOT TRIM THE RIB LAMB CHOPS BEFORE WEIGHING. Some markets trimmed the chops AFTER weighing—but this after-weighing trim didn't save the customers from paying for chine bone tips and bony tail pieces. Have YOU been buying your meat this expensive way? If you can't get your market to trim BEFORE weighing, come to Safeway and get the money-savings modern meat-trimming offers you!

TIP END OF CHINE BONE REMOVED FROM EACH CHOP BEFORE WEIGHING
(so you don't pay for this piece of bone)

"TAIL" OF BONE AND EXCESS FAT REMOVED FROM EACH CHOP BEFORE WEIGHING
(this not only saves you money—it gives you tender-eating chops that fit better in the pan and on a platter!)

SAFEWAY TRIMMED-BEFORE-WEIGHING RIB LAMB CHOP
...trimmed so you pay for only main "meaty" part of each chop

MONEY-SAVINGS OF 21¢ TO 67¢ per typical 6-chop purchase are secured by many housewives who purchase trimmed-before-weighing meats, the test-purchase survey reveals! In just a few weeks of meat-buying such savings can go a long way to cut down the high cost of living for your family. You are rightfully entitled to GET THESE SAVINGS . . . because every market should trim meats BEFORE WEIGHING. No longer do you need to buy rib lamb chops, for example, on somebody else's say-so. The chop photos printed here show you exactly what kind of trimming to look for. Take these photos to your market. Use them to check the next rib lamb chops you buy BEFORE your chops are put on the scales!

SAFEWAY'S OFFER: We will give you at no cost DOUBLE the number of rib lamb chops you buy if ever you get from us any rib lamb chops NOT trimmed before weighing! Just show the meat to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. We won't quibble or argue. We want you to have extra rib lamb chops without cost if we fail to trim as we say!

Safeway believes all markets should retail meat this common-sense way—with excess bone, fat and waste-parts trimmed off before the meat is weighed. More and more good markets are doing it. Why don't you ask your market man to trim your next rib lamb chops before he weighs them?

SAFEWAY trimmed-before-weighing chops include more of the kind of meat people want when they buy chops. NOT the bony tail piece — which isn't rightly part of a chop you expect to eat and enjoy! NOT the chine bone tip—which should be cut off and thrown away.

Most every good cook and good market man knows all chops should be trimmed as Safeway does it . . . before weighing!

The savings cited here on rib lamb chops are typical of the savings you make on every cut and kind of meat that's trimmed as Safeway does it—before weighing. You save on rib roasts and steaks, on leg of lamb and other cuts—when each cut is trimmed before weighing according to its special requirements. Wherever you buy, insist on pocketing for yourself the money-savings this better trimming method brings you.

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. All Safeway meats are properly aged—brought to you at peak perfection.

Secrecy Can Curb Progress—Compton

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Hemming in scientific thought with a hedge of secrecy is "like application of a brake to progress," Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman of the Armed Forces Research and Development Board declared yesterday.

Speaking at dedication ceremonies at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, White Oak, Md., Dr. Compton aimed a shaft at those who have "the desire to criticize or to seek self-advancement at the expense of someone else."

This, he said, "is the sign of a demoralized team and . . . its stimulation could be the subtlest of all subversive un-American activities."

The scientist's remarks yesterday paralleled, to a degree, comments he made last week in which he criticized Congressional investigation of Senator Bourke Hickenlooper's charges against Atomic Commission Chairman David Lilienthal as doing "much to slow down atomic research."

(Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) has accused Lilienthal of "incredible mismanagement' and charged the latter with failing to adopt adequate security safeguards).

Compton was among a number of speakers yesterday at ceremonies dedicating new research facilities including two German wind tunnels giving speeds five times that of sound. These will be used to develop supersonic missiles.

"True security," stressed the scientist, "consists in being as far ahead as possible of any unfriendly competitor.'

Compton declared that in the "public and even the military mind, security has come to mean secrecy."

While admitting that secrecy is "one aspect of security," the speaker asserted "if we simply sit tight and lock up our secrets, it will not be long before our active, competitor forges ahead of us."

He declared that of prime importance is the "positive aspect" of security, which he said could be gained by making rapid advances in our own science.

"Unfortunately," he said, "secrecy and progress are mutually incompatible . . . science flourishes . . . in an atmosphere of free inquiry and free interchange of ideas . . . any imposition of secrecy in science is like application of a brake to progress."

Admitting the difficulty in drawing a rigid line between oversecrecy and too-little, Compton continued:

"I am sure the pendulum has swung so far in the direction of concern over secrecy regarding even little details and unimportant people that our real security is suffering . . . from the slowing up of progress because attention is being diverted from the really big things that need to be done.

"If major attention is focused on suspicions and criticisms rather than on confidence and encouragement we may really find ourselves in serious danger from a security standpoint."

Campaign Begun For Handsomer D. C. Lawns, Yards

A campaign for more attractive lawns, yards and homes in Washington will be launched at a dinner at 6:30 p. m. today at the Hotel Statler.

The dinner is sponsored by the Washington Yardville Committee, and the Cleanup Committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The campaign will include a contest for the most attractive yards. Details of the campaign and contest will be announced tonight, officials said.

John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation, is chairman of the Yardville Committee, and Karl K. Gower, chairman of the Federation's Clean-up Committee, is secretary of the Yardville Committee.

Reds Ban Beran's Pastoral Letters

Appeal Won By Christoffel

were 'actually physically present' a majority of the committee." It would be "unthinkable" to convict a man because of testimony before a tribunal not "competent," the majority said.

To agree that it is enough to prove a majority of the committee was present when the committee session began would be "contrary" to House rules and deny Christoffel "a fundamental right," Murphy added.

Agreeing with Murphy were Justices Hugh L. Black, Felix Frankfurter, William O. Douglas and Wiley Rutledge. The dissenters were Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson and Justices Robert H. Jackson, Stanley F. Reed and Harold H. Burton.

Jackson, writing the dissent, declared Christoffel had not raised the "no quorum" question when he was testifying and it was unlikely that "although he told a falsehood to 11 Congressmen, he would have been more honest if two more had been present."

Assistant Attorney General Alex Campbell said the Justice Department will study the possibility of trying the case again next fall.

At his home in Milwaukee, Christoffel was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that "American labor has defeated another attempt to destroy its fighting unions."

"The Supreme Court decision is a victory for the entire labor movement and is especially a victory for the Allis-Chalmers workers," the bespectacled former head of the UAW-CIO union at the vast heavy-equipment manufacturing plant said.

"This frameup was part of the plan which all but destroyed Local 248 (the Allis-Chalmers local) and which was to be used to destroy all fighting unions throughout the country in a similar fashion."

Christoffel at present is unemployed. He was a skilled electrician at Allis-Chalmers.

Christoffel told the alleged lie about 5 p. m. on a Saturday afternoon in March, 1947. The session had begun at 2:15 p. m. with 14 of the 25 members answering a rollcall, the only one of the afternoon.

Jackson contended the House operates not only under rules such as the majority requirement cited by Murphy but also "by its custom and practice." Here he presumably referred to the congressional habit of coming and going at committee hearings.

The dissenting judges held that a quorum, once present, is assumed still to be present until a point of no quorum is raised, as is the case on the House and Senate floors. Jackson said Christoffel would have been "at liberty" to walk out of the committee hearing if there were no quorum and if he had raised the point and was overruled.

Jackson said the majority decision "raises the question" whether the opinion "will also apply to the House itself."

In a footnote, Jackson referred to the case of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, convicted of perjury before another House committee. Jackson said "Meyers' conviction rests on a basis which this court says is 'unthinkable' as to Christoffel whose conviction is reversed."

But Murphy, also in a footnote, pointed to what he considered a difference. In the Meyers case, the Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal.

Jackson suggested, in his dissent, that "each House may spell out a formal rule that a committee shall constitute a competent tribunal to take sworn testimony if a majority of its members shall be present at the beginning of the session at which the testimony is taken and that such competency shall continue, during the committee's session, to some smaller number."

He said that under yesterdays' decision "repeated, useless roll calls will be necessary before every action" of a committee.

In the Eisler case, the majority consisted of Justices Black, Reed, Douglas, Rutledge and Burton. They decided to take the case off the Court's docket "until a direction to the contrary shall issue."

Vinson and Frankfurter were for accepting the Government's plea to dismiss Eisler's appeal now that he is outside United States jurisdiction. Jackson, however, said he did not think "we can run away from the case just because Eisler has," and Murphy said the issues involved "did not leave when Eisler did."

Jackson declared "it is due to Congress and to future witnesses before its committees" that the Court hand down a decision. Eisler was sentenced to a year in jail after he refused to be sworn as a witness February 6, 1947.

Fine Blended Whiskey. 90.5 proof. 60% grain neutral spirits. Frankfort Distillers Corp., N.Y.

Prague, June 27 (U.P.).—The Communist Czechoslovak state today banned Catholic pastoral letters, the last link between Archbishop Josef Beran and the public, and prohibited all meetings of church officials without special permission.

A special issue of the Catholic Clergy Gazette, published now by the government, also declared that the excommunications and suspensions imposed on priests and laymen by Vatican City were "invalid."

The Gazette said the government will give its "full support" to priests who incur church punishments if these priests show "a positive attitude to the (Communist) regime."

[The Associated Press quoted Catholic informants as reporting that the government and its "Catholic Action" committee also had seized virtually all church consistories in the country.

[The consistories are the mightiest administrative offices in archdiocese and diocese and usually are situated in or near the palace of the archbishop or bishop. They print and distribute pastoral letters and directives of the hierarchy and handle such administrative matters as assigning of priests.]

The government acted in swift reprisal following two pastoral letters, issued on two successive Sundays, which gave in detail the church's side of its 16-month-old struggle with the state.

Both the pastoral letters of June 19 and 26 charged the government with muzzling the church. It said the pastoral letter was the single official means of communication left to the church and to Beran, who has led the Catholic fight.

The decision that the excommunications decreed by the holy office were illegal bolstered the view of some observers that the government may try to break the connection between the Czechoslovak Roman Catholic Church and the Vatican and found a "National" Catholic Church of its own.

The Vatican's excommunications were ordered for all voluntary members, both priests and laymen, of the government-founded "Catholic Action" organization. Priests who supported the government group were labeled "renegades."

Yesterday's letter declared Archbishop Beran's freedom was "completely curtailed" and that secret police were in control of his palace.

Meanwhile, a prominent Czechoslovakian priest, one of the Communist regime's most active supporters, has disappeared and may have fled the country rather than face excommunication, church sources said today.

2000 Just Freed

Repatriated Japs to Join Communists

Maizuru, Japan, June 27 (A.P.).—Russia today repatriated 2000 more Japanese war prisoners who showed every evidence of having been well indoctrinated with communism.

Half of those interviewed said they intended to join the Communist Party at once. All were obviously well-fed and clad in rough but sturdy clothing.

The repatriates tended toward vagueness on any other subject but communism. But on that subject they were voluble.

4 Berlin Deputies Meet Today

Berlin, June 27 (A.P.).—Four-power talks are being revived here Tuesday for a new try at thawing out the cold economic deadlock in divided Germany.

The deputy military governors of the United States, Britain, France and Russia scheduled their first meeting of this series for 2:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EST).

They are acting on orders issued by the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council when it ended a month-long Paris session a week ago today.

The decision of the foreign ministers was to lay the basis for at least "a way of living together" that will afford economic traffic between the East and West zones of Germany and sectors of Berlin.

The deputies' meeting coincides with the scheduled ending of the 37-day strike of anti-Communist union workers against the German railway system's Soviet management.

The last previous meeting was on March 17, 1948, when East-West tension was leading up to the Soviet blockade of Berlin, since ended, and the Allied airlift, a year old yesterday.

The deputies are Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, United States; Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. MacLean, Britain; Maj. Gen. Roger Noiret, France, and Lieut. Gen. Mikhail I. Dravin, Russia.

Bill Rules Out False Fur Advertisements

The House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday approved a bill requiring furriers to call a spade a spade and a rabbit a rabbit.

It sent to the House a measure by Rep. O'Hara (R., Minn.) making it unlawful to misbrand or falsely advertise or invoice any fur product.

Testimony to the committee was that rabbit fur is sold under some 50 names, and that skunk often has acquired odd and exotic names by the time it reaches the shop window.

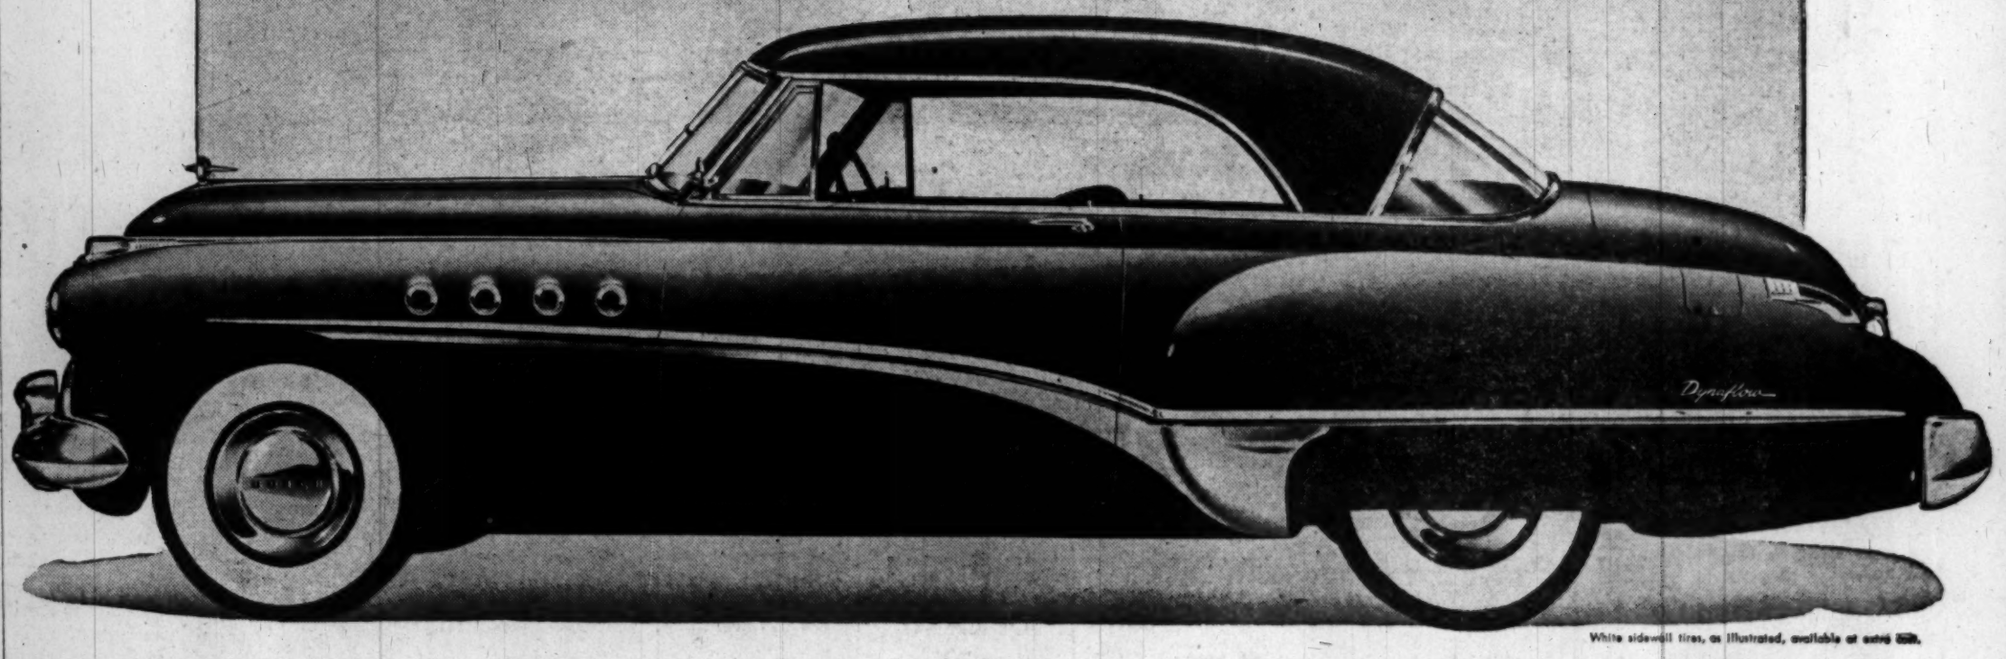
Who'll be First with the Last Word?



White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

Act quickly—and in your neighborhood it might be you.

For there's no doubt that this exciting new Riviera model — styled and executed by Buick—is the very last word in new body types.

It has, as you see, the swift and racy lines of a Convertible, made even more distinctive by a bold new sweep of chromium along its fenders.

But the top is solid—a single sheet of stout steel, neatly finished off inside with chromium bows. And a broad rear window curves gracefully around, giving really abundant rearward vision.

Push-button controls drop all windows out of sight at a touch, leaving not even a doorpost to block your outlook. And the interior trim is the richest yet — a really stunning creation inside as well as out.

As pictured here the Riviera is now in production on the Buick ROADMASTER chassis —which means 150-hp Fireball power, the silken luxury of Dynaflow Drive, and the matchless levelness of the Buick "dream ride." That means "the last word" in brilliant performance as well as in luxurious dress and styling.

Production on this high-styled road star is limited, as you might expect.

To be "first with the last word," therefore, it is wise to see your Buick dealer soon about getting your order in.

Muscling Machines

The reported attempt of the Frank Costello gambling syndicate and three other mobs to invade Prince Georges County is the logical consequence of the recent referendum legalizing slot machine payoffs in the neighboring Maryland jurisdiction. The experience of virtually every locality that has tried legalized gambling has been that it is impossible to keep out the racketeers. Legalized slot machines are used as an entering wedge for more lucrative forms of mulcting the public, and usually the underworld succeeds in corrupting politics and law enforcement as a part of the process. The California Crime Commission has listed Costello, a New York former convict who wields considerable political power, as boss of a national syndicate doing a two-billion-dollar business annually.

For the time being the Prince Georges operations have been stopped—on the surface at least—by a ruling of Circuit Judge Charles C. Marbury that the county law is unconstitutional. The ruling, which may affect other Maryland counties, is on the technicality that the title gave insufficient notice of the real intent of the law. Merchants are stuck with a reported $100,000 worth of slot machines they had purchased in preparation for unrestricted operations.

Meanwhile—and this is the significant part—the Costello syndicate is alleged also to have invested $100,000, presumably for the purpose of greasing palms and acquiring "fronts" through which to carry out operations.

Let no one think the gambling interests will remain quiescent under the court order. Already local groups are pressuring the county commissioners to grant licenses despite the ruling. The test of the power of the gambling fraternity will come when the matter is presented to the Legislature. Technically the 1950 session is intended to consider merely the budget, and it will be interesting to watch whether slot machines are maneuvered into this category.

In actuality the court decision serves as a happy respite for Prince Georges County. The legalization measure was sold in the first place on the ground that it would increase county revenues. The big-time syndicate intrusion illustrates some of the other angles that were not mentioned in the sales talk. Perhaps antigambling forces in the county can use the interlude to convince residents that they have bought a mess of pottage.

Arbitration In Hawaii

Senator Morse has cited this newspaper's plea for an injunction to end the strike that has throttled Hawaii as evidence of The Washington Post's antilabor bias. Our record on labor will stand—and, contrary to Senator Morse's, it at least is not doctrinaire. The Senator has suggested that the President offer arbitration between Hawaii's "Big Five" industries, which operate the stevedoring companies, and Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. This newspaper has consistently favored arbitration as a principle; but a condition and not a theory exists in Hawaii, and there are compelling reasons why arbitration at this juncture would be unfortunate.

Arbitration, to be successful, implies substantially equal conditions existing between the parties to a dispute. The conditions in Hawaii are not equal today. For two months Mr. Bridges has been enforcing a blockade against Hawaii's half million people. They, and not the "Big Five," are the real victims of Mr. Bridges' power. Under these circumstances, arbitration would virtually confirm Bridges' position as economic dictator of the islands.

The Washington Post holds no particular brief for the "Big Five." It may well be that the employers were foolish not to arbitrate in the first place, inasmuch as the union offered to arbitrate. But the fight has been over for more than equalization of wages between Hawaii and the mainland; it has been a battle for economic control of the islands. We don't like that kind of control whether exercised by the "Big Five" or by Mr. Bridges. Mr. Bridges has stated publicly that he is out to break the "Big Five," and he intimates that a sugar strike is forthcoming. Nor has the record of arbitration with Mr. Bridges elsewhere been such as to command it as a device for labor peace. Since the waterfront employers in San Francisco began arbitrating with the ILWU there have been five major strikes, and these certainly have contributed to the dwindling of San Francisco's commerce. Whatever may be said of the "Big Five" in Hawaii, their labor record in recent years has been relatively good. Since the war there has been no instance of an unfair labor practice in Hawaii filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

Senator Morse makes a big point of the contention that an injunction would break the strike and injure the union. He shows a curious indifference, it seems to us, to how the strike has been and is breaking Hawaii. Indeed, the situation may well invite antitrust scrutiny, for with 35,000 members the ILWU has more adherents than all the other island unions combined, and the strangulation of Hawaii shows how absolute is its control.

The issue is one of National importance, and it is one of obtaining more responsible leadership in the longshoremen's union. There is no easy way to attain this end, but certainly it will not be advanced by arbitration of the sort requested by Senator Morse that would play into Mr. Bridges' hands.

The best hope for early settlement is in the report of a fact-finding board appointed by the Governor of Hawaii. That report is due this week, and it may furnish a pattern for accommodation—unless, of course, Mr. Bridges is given reason to stall by virtue of indications that a request for arbitration is imminent. If the fact-finding report is rejected, we do not see how the President in good conscience and out of regard for the welfare of 540,000 American citizens can avoid asking for an injunction.

Intangible China

Twenty-one Senators have insisted that Communist China shall not be recognized as the government of China. Presumably what is meant is recognition in the immediate future. In this context the warning, surely, is superfluous. No government has yet been set up in Nanking in the Western sense of government, and the Communist Party is running the areas over which its armies have gained control through local administrations. It has, to be sure, offered to negotiate recognition with the Western powers provided that they meet certain specifications of conduct. However, that is its way of speaking, and the Western powers would be foolish to make any bid for recognition, so long as conditions remain organically chaotic. This, as we have said before, does not exclude the kind of contacts that have always been maintained locally since the days of the Canton hongs.

When the facts of international life have dawned on the Communists, they will climb off their perch, and the Western powers can afford to wait a while, even if Soviet Russia does get ahead of them. In this connection, however, a word of wisdom is reported from Australia. The Minister for External Affairs, Mr. Herbert Evatt, speaking in Parliament, said: "If by dogmatism about the present position in China, we were to give the Communists reason to think they might never expect any aid from us, we might drive them, but for that very fact, into the arms of the Soviet Union." What the 21 Senators should have done was to request the State Department to build up a Western unity toward a China that in the Western sense is totally incomprehensible let alone recognizable as a government entity. The Westerners have valuable cards in their hands for reconstruction in war-torn China, but they will remain valuable only if the powers play them together.

What is called for in relations to China is a return to the diplomatic correctness that marked those relations prior to the disastrous military intervention in the civil war in behalf of Chiang Kai-shek. The right policy was laid down by Daniel Webster a generation or so before John Hay formulated it. It was equality of treatment, which grew into the open-door policy that McKinley's Secretary of State enunciated. This would stop any foreign power from stealing a march upon the others because there would be no favoritism. The Communists are banking, however, on a lack of solidarity. They will doubtless try to promote a break by appealing to the Western need for trade. All indications are that the fall guy will be the Briton. And so at him the American diplomacy should be directed. It is true that the flirtation with the Communists which the British in Hongkong and Shanghai are practicing is a repetition of the American flirtation with Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists 20 years ago. But times are different, and much more serious, for the British no less than for the Americans in the Far East.

A hundred years ago Henry Clay put the issue of recognition of new governments succinctly: "Whatever form of government any society of people adopts, whoever they acknowledge as their sovereign, we consider that government is the one to be recognized. So far as we are concerned the sovereign de facto is the sovereign de jure." That should apply to present-day China. In the meantime no notice need be taken of the nonsense about recognition of a Nationalist blockade of Communist China's ports. Not having the sea craft to make such a blockade effective, the Nationalists have not the slightest standing in international law to warrant any notice being taken of their declaration. The present fact is that governmental authority in China—in the sense that the West knows it—has ceased to exist, and this is not an unusual situation in republican China. These are delicate days for the Western case in all Asia, and it can be handled wisely only if it is handled in common, and strictly on the basis of realities, not might-have-beens or interventionism. The best thing for the Western powers to do is to stand clear, stick together, and protect their security lines in Asia from aggression.

Condon Vs. FBI

Dr. Edward U. Condon's temperate personal letter to Mr. J. Edgar Hoover merits a response which was made impossible, as he now acknowledges, by the intemperate nature of his public demand for an apology a week ago. Perhaps the response should come from Attorney General Clark, rather than from the director of the FBI, since the Attorney General bears the principal responsibility for investigative policies. Or perhaps it should come in the form of the setting up of a committee to inquire into the defects in FBI methods that Dr. Condon alleges. The defects, according to Dr. Condon, are these:

> I do not believe that the welfare of our Nation is served when slanderous material about decent Americans becomes a part of official documents. It does no good to say that these documents are "unevaluated," because they are, in fact, used as official reports, as they are in such matters as Federal employment and loyalty cases where they are used as though the contents were truly factual and evaluated . . . It appears to me that the fact-finding procedures fail seriously in ignoring the information that can be obtained from the person under investigation.

It is undeniably true that some slanderous material, as well as some material that is trivial, irrelevant and innocently erroneous, does get into FBI files. This has been officially acknowledged and has been one basis for refusal by successive Presidents to grant access to the files even to congressional committees. The FBI denies that this undigested material goes in its raw form to loyalty boards. This is not the usual understanding, and it should be made absolutely clear that data are not passed on without being sifted of items that have not been investigated. It is true, too, that the FBI refrains meticulously from evaluating its reports in the sense of passing formal judgment on the guilt or innocence, loyalty or disloyalty of the subjects it investigates. Such evaluation would be grossly improper on the part of any police agency. And no one has been more conscious of this consideration or more articulately respectful of it than Mr. Hoover himself. But investigation is something quite different, and needs to be insured in view of what happened in the Coplon case.

When he took office as Attorney General in 1924, Harlan F. Stone reformed the FBI, which had played an inglorious part in the deportation delirium following the first World War, made Mr. Hoover its director and laid down the following rule as to its policy:

> The Bureau of Investigation is not concerned with political or other opinions of individuals. It is concerned with their conduct and then only such conduct as is forbidden by the laws of the United States. When a police system passes beyond these limits, it is dangerous to the proper administration of justice and to human liberty, which it should be our first concern to cherish. Within them, it should rightly be a terror to the wrongdoer.

This wise and sound doctrine is not easily adhered to in a time when some American citizens, on the pretext that they constitute a bona fide political party, are serving as a fifth column for a foreign government. The FBI's task, involving as it does the responsibilities of counter-espionage, is an immensely difficult one. It would seem that the agency has passed beyond the limits prescribed by the late Chief Justice. The perils of such trespass can be countenanced only if checked by the most painstaking regard for individual rights and reputations.

Ray Lyman Wilbur

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur was an outstanding exemplar of the rugged individualism which his close friend, Herbert Hoover, designated as the distinguishing characteristics of the American system. An inveterate critic of the New Deal, of the welfare State, of the whole concept of social security through governmental action, he must be set down as a thoroughgoing conservative. "It is common talk," he once wrote, "that every individual is entitled to economic security. The only animals and birds I know that have economic security are those that have become domesticated—and the economic security they have is controlled by the barbed-wire fence, the butcher's knife and the desires of others. They are milked, egged, skinned, or eaten up by their protectors."

But if he was unregenerately conservative in his political views, he was signally progressive in some of his approaches to the administrative problems he met as an educator, physician and public official. Stanford University grew greatly under his guidance; he strove to keep it a place of learning rather than a social club. As a doctor, he pioneered in the fight against venereal diseases. As Secretary of the Interior, he reformed that department's treatment of American Indians, enhancing their dignity and sense of independence by forcing responsibility upon them. He made an important contribution to the conservation of natural resources, bringing a number of areas under the supervision of the National Park Service. As Secretary Krug observed yesterday in comment on his death, "With the faculty of inspiring his associates in the department, with his high concept of the responsibility of government for our natural resources, Dr. Wilbur established the conservation cause as a major activity of the United States."

McMillan's Letter

We have today written to Representative John L. McMillan to take exception to certain statements in his letter dated June 18, which was reprinted in Sunday's Washington Post.

Mr. McMillan's inference that the majority of persons interested in securing home rule for Washington have "communistic tendencies" we find highly objectionable, particularly in view of the fact that we are among those who have previously written him, as a member of the D. C. Committee of the House, to request his favorable consideration of the Auchincloss bill which came before the Eightieth Congress.

As long-time residents of Illinois we enjoyed there the rights and privileges of citizens and voted in national, State and local elections for 20 years. During the war years we lived in California where, after fulfilling the year's residence requirement, we continued to exercise our prerogative and responsibility as American citizens, by voting.

It comes, therefore, with something of a shock now to be classed as "communistic" simply because, as residents of Washington, D. C., we desire to continue to enjoy the rights and privileges of American citizenship to the extent of having a vote in local governmental matters.

One of our early experiences in Washington was to go to the polls along with many other thousands of citizens of the District of Columbia, to participate in a city-wide referendum in which a large majority indicated their desire for local suffrage.

Mr. McMillan's careless statement is clearly far from the facts. The damage it has done could only be rectified by public apology to the many thousands of law-abiding, self-respecting, patriotic citizens whose homes are in Washington and who earnestly desire the right accorded other American citizens to have a voice in their local government.

China's Fate

Thirty odd years of police and intelligence work in India and China, mostly the latter, mean that I am equipped to express a view on current events there. I went on record that further aid to China was a waste of material and money, and, before the Communists crossed the Yangtsze, predicted that Nanking and Hankow would put up nothing more than a token resistance, that Shanghai would be taken just as soon as the attackers had decided upon how to feed its six million or so inhabitants.

This means the end of a control which was unpopular in the extreme and its termination will not only be welcomed by the Chinese in general but also Chiang Kai-shek himself. Despite promises of a last-ditch stand, he has for the last 20 years been anxious to get out of the country but has been prevented doing so by his officials, who have always insisted that he must first disgorge the large sums of money which he has banked abroad.

Some sort of coalition government will eventually evolve and may possibly include Marshal Yen Hsi-sheng, governor of the "model" province of Shansi. What effect will this have on world politics? None at all, as I see it, for, like George Bernard Shaw, a lot of Chinese may call themselves Communists but have no intention of taking orders from the Politburo.

In this connection it must be remembered that Chinese have, on the whole, very little esteem for foreigners in general, and for Russians in particular they have a profound contempt. It will be many years before they put their own house in order and, long before they have been converted to a real belief in Moscow and are trained and equipped as an adjunct to world conquest, Red Russia will either have experienced a change of heart or gone down in utter defeat.

Refuse Collections

As an apartment dweller in a building without janitor service, I should like to express my agreement with the June 19 letter on Washington's refuse collection.

This is indeed a serious problem now that summer is here. Garbage collection twice a week and trash collection once a week are not sufficient for good health and uncluttered living.

Before the war the Sanitation Department collected refuse frequently during the week and I see no reason why this policy should not be reinstated. It would be a boon not only to those of us in small apartment buildings without janitor service or incinerators, but it would also go a long way toward cleaning up cluttered back yards, alleys, and kitchen areaways that are such an eyesore.

"Statism"

In an editorial of June 22 I notice that you used the word "statism" without the letter "e" This is a new word not yet in the dictionary, and is being frequently used as you spelled it.

The first time I saw the word was in the House report on the Full Employment bill (December 5, 1945) by Mr. Whittington in which he said: "It is either private enterprise or stateism." This is the spelling of the Government Printing Office. In Mr. Byrnes' address at Lexington from which you quote it is also spelt "stateism" as appears from the text in the Congressional Record of June 20, 1949. I think you will find that General Eisenhower likewise spells it "stateism."

This is an important word. It is short like "fascism" and "nazism" and the "ism" denotes a doctrinal implication. It is a new concept in a country which professes to embrace the republican form of government. But it is more descriptive than such jaw breaking words as "totalitarianism" and "egalitarianism."

AAUW Withdrawal

I see that the Washington Chapter of the American Association of University Women has withdrawn in a huff from the national organization during a dispute over the segregation issue.

It is a known fact that you cannot legislate tolerance, that it can be achieved only through education and understanding.

It seems a hopeless pity that such a group of university-educated intellectuals should stoop to such a public indorsement of bigotry and ignorance. Every time a bunch so enlightened pulls a boner like this civilization and interracial accord take a long stride in the wrong direction.

Future Of Central High School

In its June 23 account of the proceedings of the meeting of the Board of Education, The Washington Post reported that a petition had been presented, proposing that the Central High School be "transferred to use by Negro students," to relieve "the present overcrowding in the Negro high schools."

The board of directors of the Central High School Alumni Association desires to supplement the objections to that proposal made at the meeting by Superintendent Corning.

The board wishes to indorse the recommendation made in the Strayer Report that a curriculum be established for Divisions I through IX which would add grades 13 and 14 to the present 10 through 12 system. This plan would grant to those divisions the same educational opportunities already instituted for Divisions X through XIII in the "technical institute" of the Armstrong High School.

If such a program were indorsed, Central High School would be an eminently proper place for it, having such excellent facilities: shops for mechanical and technical work; gyms, tracks, stadium, and swimming pool for training of athletic coaches; kitchens and workrooms for extended courses in domestic art and science in nursing, etc. In the event of a recession, advanced work in practical and applied arts and sciences would undoubtedly meet a real demand. At present, Washington youth, seeking such work, must pay tuition in private institutions, except those included under the Armstrong Plan.

Nor would it seem desirable to limit the advanced courses in Central High to technical courses only. Washington, the Nation's Capital, has no public junior college such as is becoming increasingly popular in the States for education beyond the twelfth grade in academic and scientific subjects. The Wilson Teachers College offers four years of post high school education, but primarily for preparation for the profession of teaching. Each year, Central's college bureau and guidance councillors see advanced education denied to some of its worthiest "college material" because parents are unable to meet college tuition expenses.

While such a program is being organized and effected, it would seem highly advisable that Central should continue to operate as at present: serving an immense geographical area (from the Potomac River to Spring rd. and from the eastern border of Rock Creek Park to North Capitol st. For this area Central provides instruction on both the junior and senior high school level. Every one of the school's classrooms is in use, at present; its operation seems remarkably efficient even without junior high school principalships. The morale of its student body is excellent.

Frankly, the alumni board of directors became interested in the lively question of "Central's future" through reasons of sentiment only, but it is gratified that its investigations have revealed the reassuring fact that, as herein set forth, there is no logical necessity whatever for so unhappy an event as the demise of the school. Central is Washington's oldest high school and its most beloved. Its traditions are a goodly heritage to be cherished and added to by each succeeding class.

President, Alumni Association of Central High School.

Accident Pictures

Permit me to defend the policy of The Washington Post in printing realistic pictures of automobile accident[illegible] Years ago, when I first started to drive, I had no idea of and could not picture the results of careless driving. Wrecked cars could be seen in garages and elsewhere, but a notion of what it could mean to the passengers was very remote. I might have taken many less chances than I did if these things had been always before me.

Roosevelt's Legacy

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—The license plates on the cars in the big, paved parking area are from States in every corner of the country—Maine, New Jersey, Georgia, New Mexico. The walk leads past the massive hemlock hedge and there, in an opening in the hedge, is the block of marble that marks the grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The groups of tourists pause. They talk in low voices. They look at the block of marble with its inscription—the name and the years of birth and death. Just beyond is the rose garden, now in its last, fading bloom.

Then they go on to the big house in its setting of ancient trees and green lawns. If it is a weekend or a holiday, the line waiting for admission stretches way back onto the driveway.

This is an extraordinary phenomenon of our time. Four years ago this was a private house. Today it is a national shrine, and as the tourist season warms up in July and August new thousands will make it one of their goals.

On Memorial Day, 9979 people visited the Roosevelt estate. Only about 2700 of this total could be admitted to the house, and many of them stood in line for hours for that privilege. It takes not less than 15 minutes for the visitor to get a glimpse of the rooms on the first and second floors.

IN 1947 the National Park Service, custodian of the house and the 50 acres which the late President gave to the Nation, counted 516,000 visitors. That dropped in 1948. But it is climbing again, and 1949 may be nearly as big a year as '47. The total on Memorial Day was the second largest on record.

The Park Service has been remarkably successful in preserving the atmosphere of a house still lived in. On the table in the dining room is a bowl of blue and gold enamel that was a favorite with Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother. It contains an arrangement of pink roses and baby's breath.

In the big library are the books accumulated through several generations. Over the fireplace at one end of the room is the Gilbert Stuart portrait of Isaac Roosevelt, who was active in the Revolutionary War and the Constitutional Convention. And through the long windows you can glimpse the distant Hudson. This was the view the President loved so well.

The visitors stop longest in the doorway of what was the President's bedroom. There on the couch at the end of the bed is his dressing gown. In the half-open door of a big, old-fashioned wardrobe, you can see a Panama hat, a pair of evening pumps, several suits on hangers. On Fala's chair is his leash and harness.

THE PROFESSIONAL Roosevelt-haters will grind their teeth and mutter that the money they pay for taxes is maintaining this idolatry. But that is not so. Each visitor pays 25 cents for admission to the house, and in 1947 that more than met the cost of upkeep and supervision. While it failed to do so by a small amount last year, the Park Service expects to break even on Hyde Park in 1949.

Visitors also pay 25 cents for admission to the Roosevelt library and museum, which is administered by the National Archives. In the museum are all the strange and wonderful and ridiculous things given to the President and his wife during their 12 years in the White House, along with mementos of the President's childhood.

To the library the President left the vast accumulation of his personal papers, which are being put in order so that eventually they will all be available to research students and historians. New and valued material is constantly coming in. Thus, Henry Morgenthau, jr., recently turned over to the library the 840-volume "diary" of his years as Secretary of the Treasury.

The experts in charge of this growing mountain of material estimate that already more has been written about Franklin Roosevelt, and in every language of the world, than about any figure in history except Napoleon. That is a joke on the Roosevelt-haters who, incidentally, contributed more than their share of the Niagara of words that flows on.

More conscious of the stream of history than almost any other President, Roosevelt was also conscious of his place in the stream. You might say he planned it this way and that, too, is something of a joke on his enemies.

High Court Rules On Civil Rights

In a series of seven decisions, the Supreme Court yesterday blocked out some more rules on important phases of American civil rights.

The court:

1. Reversed murder convictions of Negroes in Indiana, South Carolina and Pennsylvania because police had held the men long periods of time to obtain "confessions."

2. Ruled unanimously that a Pennsylvanian didn't get a fair trial because the trial court didn't provide him with a lawyer. He had said he didn't know he had the right to ask for one.

3. Ruled, 6-to-3, that States may use, in State trials, illegally seized evidence though such evidence is unlawful in Federal courts. At the same time the court reaffirmed its opposition to such illegal search and seizure by either Federal or State authorities.

4. Reversed, 5-to-4, the conviction of a counterfeiter because a Federal agent aided in a search of his hotel rom by State officials looking for violation of a local law.

5. Ruled, 5-to-3, that Federal agents may stop and search an automobile driven into a dry State by a man known to be a bootlegger. But the court declared this does not mean "every traveler along the public highway may be stopped and searched at the officers' whim, caprice or mere suspicion."

The opinions in the three murder cases were written by Justice Felix Frankfurter. He was joined by Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas, Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge in two of the cases and by Justice Robert H. Jackson as well in the third.

Frankfurter pointed to the lengthy questioning in each case, varying from most of three days to most of six. He declared in the Indiana case:

"A confession by which life becomes forfeit must be the expression of free choice. A statement to be voluntary of course need not be volunteered. But if it is the product of sustained pressure by the police it does not issue from a free choice. When a suspect speaks because he is overborne, it is immaterial whether he has been subjected to a physical or a mental ordeal.

Frankfurter said the American criminal law principle "is the accusatorial as opposed to the inquisitorial system" and that "to turn the detention of an accused into a process of wrenching from him evidence which could not be extorted in open court with all its safeguards" is a grave abuse.

Jackson, in his dissent in two of the murder cases, pointed out that none of the three murders probably would have been solved by any method "other than to take the suspect into custody for questioning."

On the question of having an attorney present during questioning, Jackson said:

"To subject one without counsel to questioning which may and is intended to convict him, is a real peril to individual freedom. To bring in a lawyer means a real peril to solution of the crime because, under our adversary system, he deems that his sole duty is to protect his client—guilty or innocent—and that in such a capacity he owes no duty whatever to help society solve its crime problem."

In the search and seizure case Frankfurter also wrote the majority opinion, joined by Chief Justice Vinson, Justices Stanley F. Reed, Harold H. Burton, Black and Jackson.

Police had seized, without a warrant, the private papers and records of Julius A. Wolf, a Denver, Colo., doctor. He was found guilty as a conspirator in two abortion cases. Colorado is one of 30 States permitting use of illegally seized evidence.

Frankfurter ruled such use was legal and that local public opinion can exert pressure against "oppressive conduct on the part of the police directly responsible to the local community . . ." while such pressure is difficult against remote Federal officials.

In a dissent, Murphy said it was "disheartening to find so much that is right in an opinion (Frankfurter's) which seems to me so fundamentally wrong."

The decision, he said, "will do inestimable harm to the cause of fair police methods in our cities and States. Even more important, perhaps, it must have tragic effect upon public respect for our judiciary. For the Court now allows what is indeed shabby business: lawlessness by officers of the law." Rutledge and Douglas also dissented.

ENTERING COURT—Mrs. Alger Hiss is shown with her husband going into Federal Court in New York, where he is on trial on perjury charges

Hiss Repeats His Denials

not guilty—and in fact, you are not guilty?"

"I am not guilty,' declared the former high State Department official slowly and firmly, in a voice that carried throughout the Federal courtroom.

Mrs. Hiss to Take Stand

His wife, Mrs. Priscilla Hiss, it was disclosed in answer to a question asked by Murphy, also will take the witness stand during the trial.

Chambers, the chief prosecution witness and former $30,000-a-year senior editor of Time Magazine, charges that Mrs. Hiss typed documents which Chambers obtained from Hiss.

Mrs. Hiss will probably take the stand immediately after her husband completes his testimony.

She has been present in the courtroom throughout the trial, and during the three days that Hiss has been on the stand they have frequently exchanged smiles during breaks in his testimony.

As in his previous appearances on the witness stand, Hiss today appeared relaxed and confident, ready with quick answers.

It was not apparent today if Murphy was just "feeling him out" with his questions, or laying the groundwork for a later attack. Hiss frequently picked up his questions to examine them in a sharp, professorial way, which at times bordered on cockiness.

'Appraises' Jury

At frequent intervals, he glanced with a cold, appraising at the jury of 10 men and 2 women, as a lawyer would try to gauge the effect of a point.

Murphy asked him if Chambers actually said the rug he gave Hiss was in part-payment for rent for an apartment which Hiss sublet to Chambers.

Hiss replied, "I could think of no other reason . . ."

"You implied it . . . ?" asked Murphy.

"I think he implied it," Hiss corrected. "I inferred it."

There was a pause in the questioning, as though sparks were about to fly between prosecutor and witness, but the hefty, mustached prosecutor passed over the incident.

Their sharpest clash came when Hiss was being questioned about the apartment at 2831 28th st. nw., in Washington, which he sub-let to Chambers and his family for several weeks in the summer of 1935.

Hiss has testified that he tried to collect rent for the apartment from Chambers but could not do so. Today he conceded that the sub-lease also included electricty, gas and telephone service, at no extra cost. Hiss said he "threw in" these services with the lease, because only a short period of time was involved.

Matter of Grammer

Murphy asked if this also included long-distance telephone service.

A. "If he had had a long-distance call of any size, I certainly would have taken it up with him."

Q. "You would have ran after that one?"

A. Excuse me?"

Q. You would have ran after him for that?"

A. 'I would have run after him," said Hiss pointedly, emphasizing the grammar, amid laughter from the spectators.

Q. (Grimly) "You didn't mean to correct me that way, did you?"

A. "I was merely giving my testimony."

"Q. "Just merely giving your testimony?"

A. "Yes, you asked me the question."

Q. 'I mean you had no intention there of being sarcastic?"

A. "No, Mr. Murphy."

Q. "It was merely your desire to use whatever correct grammar came to your mind?"

A. "It was merely that I was testifying in my normal speech."

While the strained exchanges were no stronger than this throughout the day, the tenseness between Hiss and Murphy was continually apparent and Murphy, when addressing Hiss, spoke to him as "Mr. Witness."

Lawyer Objects to Laughter

On one occasion, Murphy took pains to point out that although Hiss was graduated from Harvard Law School, served as a lawyer in New York and Boston, and later was an assistant to the solicitor of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration, he did not seek rent on the sublease with Chambers "until the lease was almost up."

Hiss countered that there was nothing unusual about this; that he had once sub-leased an apartment himself without paying rent in advance.

When Chambers brought the rug to his house "sometime in the spring of '36," said Hiss, he had a clear recollection of Chambers carrying the rug to the house, bringing it to the door himself.

Asked if he personally let him in, Hiss said he did not.

"I thought you said he came to the door?" asked Murphy.

"That's the way he entered the house," said Hiss, smiling, while the audience guffawed.

"Your Honor," said Murphy, turning to Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, "will you ask some of the clowns at the back to stop laughing?"

"I don't think there is any reason for that remark, Mr. Murphy," said the judge, who deemed the laughter one of the "spontaneous outbursts," but cautioned against demonstrations.

Called Chambers 'Crosley'

Murphy asked Hiss what he used to call Chambers, whom he says he knew only casually as a freelance writer named "George Crosley." Hiss, who says he met the man in December, 1934, or January, 1935, and last saw him in late May or early June, 1936, declared:

"I think I called him Crosley. I may have called him George, on occasion."

Chambers has said Hiss knew him only as "Carl," a Communist pseudonym, and that Chambers and Chambers' wife called Hiss "Hilly." Hiss addressed Mrs. Hiss, said Chambers, as "Dilly," or "Pross."

Hiss, who said he and his wife use the names "Hilly" and "Pross," said Chambers never called him "Hilly." And, he said, "I have never in my life called her (Mrs. Hiss.) 'Dilly.'"

Murphy asked Hiss if he had not, by his own statements, conceded he saw Chambers 16 times. Hiss said it was only "10 or 11 times."

Hiss said he loaned Chambers his old 1929 Ford roadster "for a day or two" in the spring of 1935 while the Chamberses subleased the apartment, and promised to let Chambers have the car when Hiss got a new car.

In addition, said Hiss, "in the fall (of 1935) he borrowed my car for a period of about two months."

At their final meeting, in May or June, 1935, Hiss said he gave Chambers the car, valued at about $25, as he was expecting delivery of a Plymouth, which he received in August of that year.

On July 23, 1936, according to a title transfer introduced today, an official certificate was signed by Hiss trasnferring the 1929 Ford to the Cherner Motor Co., in Washington.

Hiss said this was done to keep the car title straight, but he cannot specifically recall all the details surrounding it. The title transfer was motarized by W. Marvin Smith, a former Justice Department attorney. Smith last year committed suicide by leaping down a stairwell at the Justice Department.

Murphy brought out that this account differed with testimony by Hiss before the House committee, where Hiss first said he "threw in" the car when he subleased the apartment to Chambers, because the Hisses had the Plymouth at that time.

Questioned by Byrnes

Blocked by an objection from going further into conflicts in Hiss' House testimony, Murphy is expected to return to this subject at length later in the examination here.

Murphy asked Hiss if former Secretary of State Joseph F. Byrnes had ever asked him if he was a Communist.

Hiss replied that in 1946, Byrnes "called me into his office and told me that two or three members of Congress—he mentioned Eugene Cox by name, I don't remember the others—were going to make speeches on the floor of Congress saying there were a number of Communists in the State Department and saying that I was a Communist."

Asked what he did about this, Hiss said, "I went immediately to my office and put in a call for J. Edgar Hoover." Hoover, he said, was not available but he later spoke to other agents.

"I wanted to submit myself to a full investigation and inquire and see if we could get to the bottom of it," said Hiss.

Asked if he were questioned thoroughly, he said, "No, it seemed to me very perfunctory."

Questioned on Pressman

Asked what he told Byrnes of his relations with Lee Pressman, Hiss replied, "I told them the facts about my relations with Lee Pressman."

Pressman, former counsel of the CIO and also named by Chambers as a Communist underground worker, attended Harvard Law School with Hiss.

"I saw a great deal of Mr. Pressman on the Law Review board," said Hiss, and saw him again in New York and in Washington." In Washington, they were both employed by the AAA, and after Hiss left there in 1935, he said, "I saw little if anything of him . . ."

Asked if Pressman was ever in his home, he said, "not since that time, the Thiple-A period."

Hiss said that when he talked to the FBI, he said he had once been a member of the Internatoional Juridical Associatoin, in addition to clubs and societies.

No clear light was shed today on whether the defense will attempt to counter the testimony from an FBI agent that 64 of the typewritten documents in Chambers' possession were typed on the Woodstock typewriter owned by the Hisses.

Typewriter Search

Murphy, however, asked Hiss today if the defense had not employed its own typewriter experts.

Hiss said "My attorneys have consulted with experts from time to time."

Murphy then asked Hiss if he had not told the grand jury which indicted him that the defense experts had advised him the Chambers' documents were typed on a Woodstock typewriter, and on the same Woodstock he once owned.

"I have no knowledge," said Hiss, "as to whether the experts said specifically that these standards (documents for comparison which are admittedly from the Hiss' home) or the exhibits were typed on a specific machine. . . .

"I do recall that they were typed on a Woodstock. . . ."

He then conceded that "I had looked at a Woodstock (obtained by his attorneys, he said) to see if I could recall what the old office machine looked like." Mrs. Hiss also inspected it, he said.

Murphy examined Hiss in detail as to why he told the grand jury in December, 1948, that he had his Woodstock until 1938, and now gives different testimony.

Hiss said he gained the first specific informations to what happened to his own Woodstock when associate defense attorney Edward C. McLean spoke to a former maid for the Hisses, and her two sons, Raymond and Perry Catlett.

The sons have testified they received the typewriter from the Hisses, Perry placing the time it was received as 1937.

When McLean gave him this information about the typewriter, said Hiss, he realixed he was wrong in telling the grand jury in December that the typewriter was in his home during 1938.

"My knowledge today," Hiss said, "is that we gave the typewriter to the Catletts at the time we moved from 30th street (1245 30th st. nw., Georgetown) to Volta place, in December, 1937.

Murphy later asked:

Q. "And you had that knowledge for some period of time, had you . . .?"

A. "I had it sometime this winter when Mr. McLean talked to the Catletts."

Q. "But you did not have it at the time you testified in the grand jury?"

A. "No, I did not."

Q. "Now the day you had it after you did not have it, did you acquire that as a result of talking to Mr. McLean?"

Judge Kaufman: "I don't understand the question."

Murphy: "We are in the realm of metaphysics now, anyway, Judge."

Judge Kaufman: "You better get out of that realm."

The question was read:

Judge Kaufman: "I think you had better start over again."

Q. "There was a time during December of 1948 when you did not have it, any knowledge as to how it was disposed of, is that correct?"

A. "That is correct."

Q. "All you had was an impression?"

A. "Excuse me, I had not finished. I knew that it had been given away by my wife, but I did not know the details."

Asked if he had not told the FBI the typewriter had been sold, Hiss said he told them it might have been sold or given away.

Hiss will resume the stand for cross-examination, when the trial, now in its fifth week, continues Tuesday.

Coplon Case Nears Close

confidential FBI material found in her purse when she was arrested March 4 was to be used in connection with a novel she was writing on the Washington scene. She says she planned to see Shimkin that weekend.

Defense Rests

Shimkin testified that when Miss Coplon called in January or February and asked for an appointment he had not seen her since the days six years ago when he was attending Columbia University and she was going to Barnard College, the university's women's undergraduate division.

"Judy called and said she would like to see me," he said. "She said, as near as I can recall, that she wanted some help and I could help her. I suggested we have lunch together. Then she called later and cancelled the (January or February) appointment."

"Mr. Shimkin," Kelley asked in cross-examination, "did this defendant at the time she telephoned you or at any time ever mention that she had written a book, was in the process of writing a book, or contemplated writing a book?"

Shimkin said she hadn't.

In a few moments, then, Palmer was saying, almost offhand:

"We rest."

William E. Foley, the defendant's chief in the Foreign Agents Registration Section of the Justice Department when she was arrested, was called back to the stand as a prosecution rebuttal witness to refute claims made by Miss Coplon.

Foley Denies "Order"

She had testified that Foley ordered her to take to New York, and watched her put in her purse, handwritten notes as a "decoy." By so doing, she claimed, he was guilty of part in a plot to "entrap" her.

Foley denied he had ever ordered her to make the notes on the confidential FBI report, as she said, or ordered her to take them to New York.

These notes were among the many documents found in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested in the company of Valentin Gubitchev, 32-year-old Russian U. N. engineer. She is on trial on an espionage charge here. In addition, both face charges in New York of conspiracy to commit espionage.

The name of the now-celebrated H. P. Shapiro, Justice Department attorney, came into the trial again yesterday.

The brunette, 28-year-old Miss Coplon has admitted spending nights in out-of-town hotels and Washington apartments with Shapiro at a time when she says she was deeply in love with Gubitchev in a kissless romance which the defense claims was her whole reason for seeing the Russian, and not to give him Government secrets. The Government has asked her if she spent time "in fornication" with Shapiro but she denied this.

Foley was asked yesterday by Palmer if he didn't live in the same boarding house with Shapiro and the witness said he did for a few weeks last fall.

Then another witness, Harold Koffsky, attorney in the Internal Security Section of the Justice Department, was asked if it were not true that he played squash with Shapiro. Koffsky said he did play squash with Shapiro, also cards.

Judge Reeves turned down yesterday a spate of defense motions for acquittal, and the way was set for the final arguments today.

The jury of eight men and four women will have before them two counts on which Miss Coplon is charged here.

On these she faces a maximum penalty of 13 years imprisonment and $12,000 fine.

In addition, she is liable under the New York indictment of conspiracy to commit espionage to a sentence of 35 years and a fine of $20,000.

The first count under the indictment here charges that Miss Coplon took intelligence reports from Justice Department files "with intent and reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation.'

The second count identifies the documents as "certain extracts and summaries of reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, known as data slips, containing intelligence reports relating to espionage and counterespionage activities in the United States.'

Police Adjust Cleric's Ticket

Even though the Rev. Marshall C. Robinson, 66, 2220 Flagler pl. nw., got a ticket for it, there isn't such a charge as parking the wrong way on a one-way street.

So police obligingly cancelled the ticket for him. It was one of 95 traffic ticket adjustments by police last week according to a list made public yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Robinson said he was washing his auto and turned it around to face the other way while he rinsed it.

Five ticketees were excused because of diplomatic immunity, according to the police list. They were Rene Wegelin, embassy of Switzerland, parking away from the curb; Marguerite Randier, French embassy, overtime parking; Paolo Pansa, Italy, no parking zone; Gabriele Paresce, Italy, no parking zone, and Ovidio Pozo, Bolivia, no parking zone.

Senate Gets Bill To Handle Budget Of 3 Court Offices

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill to revise the budget handling of the Register of Wills, Probation Office and Commission on Mental Health.

Their budgets would be transferred from the District Government to the District Court at an annual saving to the District of about $45,000 under the bill.

House approval was given by a voice vote after District Committee Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) and District Judiciary Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) recommended its passage.

Wife Hurt Fatally As Husband's Car Hits Curb, Upsets

Mrs. Mabel Wise, 60, of 3214 9th pl. se., died last night at Providence Hospital as result of an accident earlier in the day on State Route 5, near Waldorf, Md.

Maryland State Trooper Maynard Whitney said Mrs. Wise and her husband, William C. Wise, 60, were returning from a beach, with Wise driving.

The automobile struck a curb, Whitney said, swerved across the road and into an embankment. The front wheels went up the embankment and the car turned over. Wise received cuts and bruises. Maryland police took Mrs. Wise to the hospital here.

Gilks Arraigned For Drunk Driving Pleads Innocent

William G. Gilks, 55, manager of the Government Agencies Unit of the Community Chest Federation, was charged yesterday in Municipal Court with driving while under the influence of alcohol and driving on the sidewalk.

He pleaded innocent before Judge Aubrey B. Fennell. Bond was set at $500 with jury trial scheduled for August 12. Gilks resides at 12 Ashby st., Alexandria, Va.

According to Park Policeman Nick Prencipe, Gilks' car on Saturday night wove through traffic, narrowly missed other cars, and then went 50 feet on a sidewalk in Potomac Park.

Gilks said he had been drinking at an "Irish wedding," according to police.

John Boettiger Given Public Relations Post

New York, June 27 (AP).—John Boettiger, former newspaper publisher, and son-in-law of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been elected vice president of Theodor Swanson & Co., the New York public relations firm said today.

He was assigned to the firm's Netherlands government account and will leave soon for Amsterdam, The Hague and Java.

The firm said Boettiger recently launched a new Sunday edition for the Lake Charles, La., American Press and will continue to work with the owner of the newspaper.

Four Slot Machine 'Mobs' Enter County

In Alabama

Big Business Held Backing Ku Klux Klan

By Robert S. Allen

Justice Department investigators have reported that the powerful business interests behind the Dixiecrat movement are the secret instigators of the hooded terrorism in Alabama.

The investigators have informed Attorney General Tom Clark that Alabama Attorney General A. A. Carmichael told them "orders for the floggings came from behind the mahogany desks of the big office buildings in Birmingham."

Carmichael's reference was to the steel, coal, oil, utility and railroad interests that dominate the economy of his State and control the Dixiecrat leaders of Alabama. The State Democratic Committee is ruled by Dixiecrats.

According to the Federal agents, the current revival of hooded terrorism in Alabama and other Southern States is for the deliberate purpose of inflaming race prejudice before the primary campaigns begin.

Meanwhile, in Washington, a group of Southern Senators is drafting a Federal anti-mask bill.

Among the reported authors of the measure are Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.), Senator Russell Long (D., La.), Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), and Senator John Stennis (D., Miss.). The bill would outlaw Klan paraphernalia under severe penalties.

Attorney General Carmichael told the Federal agents there is a striking similarity between the current terroristic operations and those that occurred in 1936. Both the forces and motivations are the same.

He cited particularly the 1936 kidnaping and flogging of Joe Gellers, Alabama State University mathematics instructor. Gellers was beaten because of his militant advocacy of the New Deal. The Senate Civil Liberties Committee, headed by former Senator Robert M. LaFollette, jr. (R., Wis.), investigated the case. In its findings, the committee charged that the order for the attack on Gellers had been traced to a long-distance call made by an official of a coal and iron company.

Big profits anticipated from legalized slot machines in Prince Georges County have attracted at least four outside gangs to compete for locations in the county, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

The competition has continued on a "bidding basis" despite the "residents only" provision in the law as approved, and despite a court ruling last Friday outlawing the entire plan.

The four "mobs," whose efforts thus far have conflicted only in persuasiveness and offers, are described as the "Costello" gang from New York, and outfits from New Jersey, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Offers to pay off a mortgage were made to the owner of one advantageous spot. A new heating plant was offered to another, rent payments to another, and to another, one of three slot machines for his own.

Meanwhile, slot machines are expected to be the principal topic at a meeting of the County Commissioners in the Court House at Upper Marlboro at 10 a. m., today.

Ruling to Commissioners

They will be handed the decree of Judge Charles C. Marbury of Prince Georges County Circuit Court, made last Friday, that the law under which voters balloted in a referendum to legalize the machines is unconstitutional. Only the Commissioners and C. Walter Hendrix, 10130 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, who brought the action, may appeal it.

Hendrix, resident of Montgomery County, who has a string of "non-payoff" machines now operating in Prince Georges, attacked the residence provision of the new law. But Judge Marbury held the entire law was at issue and threw it out.

Said to Oppose Appeal

At least two of the five County Commissioners last night were reported opposed to appealing the decision.

Also scheduled to appear before the County Commissioners today are representatives of the Prince Georges Hotel & Restaurant Association. Fred E. Mooneyham, president, confirmed a report that the Association will present a proposal to the Commissioners, but he declined to say if it will urge them to appeal Judge Marbury's decision.

FBI Names Him

Train Suicide Identified by Fingerprints

The FBI yesterday identified from fingerprints the man, who stood in front of a Baltimort and Ohio train near Beltsville, Md., Sunday until struck and killed, as Maurice Bradley, about 35, whose wife lives in Detroit.

Bradley, the FBI said, was an Army veteran and had a police record, having been released from a New Jersey work house last April.

The engineer of B. & O. train No. 35 from Baltimore to Washington told police Bradley stood facing the oncoming locomotive with arms folded on his chest until he was struck. The engineer said he tried to stop, but could not do so in time.

Prince Georges County police have sent notification to Mrs. Matilda Bradley, of Detroit, listed as the man's wife.

Falls Church Rules Schools

Richmond, Va., June 27 (AP). — The State Board of Education today designated the school district of the city of Falls Church as a single school division.

The action was requested by the city's school board in a resolution sent to G. Tyler Miller, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. It means that Falls Church, which recently became a city of the second class, will have independent control of its public schools.

The resolution explained the position of the city school board. It pointed out that effective August 16, 1948, Falls Church became a city of the second class by order of the Fairfax County Circuit Court and on June 2, 1949, the city was held by Judge C. C. Quesenbery to be a school district, separate from the school system of Fairfax County.

The resolution pointed out that the sentiment of the people was in favor of a single school division which would promote efficiency of operation and be consistent with plans for enlargement of the city by annexation.

After they had been informed of the State board's action, five of the nine Falls Church school board members met with Department of Education officials to discuss eligible persons for the position of school division superintendent.

Those who were here today were: Mrs. Mark Reagan, chairman of the board, and members James Lay, jr., Mrs. John A. Wallace, R. Lyle Webster, and Dr. John R. Miles. LaRue Van Meter, city attorney, accompanied the group.

Parking Lot Rules Braced

The District Commissioners yesterday approved a tightening of local parking lot regulations, to become effective October 31.

Under the Commissioners' order, parking lot operators must notify police whenever any automobile, not stored on a weekly or monthly arrangement, remains in a lot over 72 continuous hours.

Officials explained that the move is partially aimed to assist police in tracing stolen automobiles.

The new regulations also will require all parking lot attendants to obtain a special license from the District Superintendent of Licenses. The license fee will be $1 and each attendant will be required to wear a special badge.

Board Insists On Segregation

30-minute free swimming period at 10 a. m. The pool was used for swimming lessons from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m.

With withdrawal of recreation personnel, operation of the pool was continued with two GSI lifeguards. Yesterday at 4 p. m., the pool was still in operation, with about 250 children swimming there. Of this number, GSI official R. J. McCarthy said, 245 were Negroes.

At the Anacostia swimming pool yesterday, another racial incident was reported during the time the pool was operated under GSI management.

Witnesses said that a group of approximately 30 Negro youths came to the pool at about 2:30 p. m. dressed in swimming trunks. While the youths were in the shower room, a fight started, in which one Negro boy's nose was broken, and another youth received a cut over his eye. The disturbance was broken up by park police, and the Negro youths left the pool.

Recreation Department officials yesterday estimated that an average of 6000 children use the six pools each week. They pointed out, however, that because of the tension over the two conflicting policies, McKinley Tech, which normally is frequented by between 2000 and 2500 persons on Sunday, had a paid attendance of only about 300 all day last Sunday. Most of those at the pool were Negroes, it was said.

One Recreation Department official pointed out that the decision to withdraw its personnel from the disturbed areas was based not only on the department's segregation policy, but also was a safety measure.

Milo F. Christiansen, Recreation Department superintendent said yesterday the department's swimming program will continue to be carried on pending GSI action unless there is repetition of "incidents," in which case the instructors will be withdrawn.

Irving C. Root, National Capital Parks superintendent and a member of the Recreation Board, held a meeting on the pool situation with representatives of the Recreation Department, GSI, the Park Service and the Interior Department yesterday.

A spokesman said later that "several courses of action" were being considered in the event the Recreation Board withdrew from the pools.

Several Channels for Funds

If the GSI trustees, which must act on any future plan, decide to withdraw from pool operation, the spokesman said Interior would "immediately exhaust every possibility" of continuing operation of the pools. He said there were "several channels" through which funds might be secured, all of them through Government sources to Congress, he said.

Dr. Paul Cooke, chairman of the recreation committee of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said his group "has not created this effort. We were not acquainted with what is going on." Dr. Cooke said NAACP has "not encouraged any group in this sort of thing. Our efforts lately have been to try to convince the President of the United States to step in and urge a change."

The GSI contract with the Interior Department for operation of the six pools goes to March 31, 1951, and provides that no one shall be excluded from GSI activities because of race, creed or color.

The Recreation Board recently adopted as its policy a "gradual" end to segregation, with an initial experiment in interracial activities on two playgrounds being jointly sponsored with the American Friends Service Committee.

Yesterdays' Recreation Board action was taken as the result of a telephonic poll, in which members were asked to approve or reject the following recommendation:

"The contract of the Interior Department with Government Services, Inc. for the operation of the six large pools under the jurisdiction of the Office of National Capital Parks provides that these pools shall be operated on a nonsegregated basis.

"As a result of the enforcement of this regulation, employes for the free swimming and instruction periods in the mornings on these pools are unable to conform to the regulations of the board requiring the staff to serve on a segregated basis.

"Recommendation: That the Recreation Board notify Government Services, Inc. that unless the program of free swimming and instruction conducted by the Recreation Department at Government pools is operated as in previous years, on a segregated basis, the Department of Recreation staff on these pools for the morning period will be withdrawn."

Voting for the resolution were Chairman Harry S. Wender, Walter L. Fowler, representing the District Commissioners, and Albert E. Steinem, representing the School Board. Voting against the recommendation were Irving C. Root and Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, board secretary. Out of town and not voting were James Schwab and Mrs. Gregory Hankins.

Letter to Krug

In a night lette rembodying its resolution, the federation called Secretary Krug's attention "to the present emergency state of racial tension created in the District by your department's ill-advised interference in the long-established pattern of segregation in the swimming pools of the District."

"This situation," the letter continued, "approaches that which created the recent racial explosions in St. Louis and Youngstown. We remind you that in your hands lies the power to prevent a similar explosion that can only reflect discredit upon you, your department and upon the Federal Government.

"We demand the immediate rescinding of the Interior Department's order establishing a policy of non-segregation in those swimming pools of the City of Washington controlled by your department.

"We call upon you to do this as your public duty to prevent disorder in this city, which, once started, would be to the eternal disgrace and sorrow of all residents of the District.

"It is our sincere hope that your interest in the safety of all people residing in our National Capital is the same as ours and that you will act at once to preserve peace in our city."

The letter was signed by John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Cubs Stop Cards on Sauer's Homer

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BLUE PLATE SPECIAL:

TV DEPT.—The Philadelphia Eagles, first pro football team to heave the television cameras out of its park, are trying a strange, new tack in their campaign to sell more season tickets. They're asking television-set owners to rally 'round and support the team.

The Eagles have hired their ace halfback, Steve Van Buren, for the off-season job of promoting season ticket sales. They've bought five-minute spots on Philadelphia's largest television station for Van Buren who is appealing to set-owners to buy tickets. He is talking to the same audience which the Eagles' owners snubbed by their decision to discontinue telecasting.

POVICH

On the face of it, Van Buren will have to be the supersalesman. His employers set up the worst kind of sales resistance for their product before handing him the selling job. In Van Buren they selected a wonderful customer's man, but the Eagles' owners are something less than popular with television fans. They've handed Van Buren the ball on the toughest play any businessman-quarterback ever called.

ALL-STAR DEPT.—In the craw of the National League as the annual All-Star game with the American Leaguers on July 12 draws near, must be the dismal record of the NL ever since the annual midsummer contests started. That was back in 1934, and 11 times in the subsequent 15 games, the American Leaguers have whipped the proudest lineups the NL could present.

Most painful of all the National League defeats was that at St. Louis last year when for perhaps the first time in history, the National League was the pre-game favorite. The American League literally limped into the contest. Incapacitated was its brightest stars, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Hal Newhouser, George Kell. And Bob Feller wasn't in uniform. Yet at the finish it was AL, 5; NL, 2.

That was a notable game in one respect. Tommy Henrich struck out twice. That fact was so sensational that Henrich was asked, after the game, how come he happened to take a 3-and-2 pitch with his bat on his shoulder. He calmly admitted he had been fooled and tossed in a nice bouquet for Brooklyn pitcher Ralph Branca. "I didn't think he'd dare to curve me on a 3-and-2 pitch," said Henrich. "I thought my reputation would scare him."

DIXIE DEPT.—Anything can happen in baseball, and a lot of the same happened last week in the Southern Association, George K. Leonard reports for the Sporting News. Proceedings elsewhere were tame, indeed, in contrast to the episodes that took place in that Double A league. Willie Miranda, Chattanooga shortstop, was ordered to take his base on balls by the umpire over the pitcher's protests. Miranda, with his meager knowledge of English, didn't quite understand, took one more swing and struck out. And over in Memphis, a laundry owner who offers $200 for every home run hit over the centerfield wall 400 feet distant, was forced to shell out $800 when Little Rock and Memphis sluggers were done shooting at the barrier.

Chattanooga and Mobile played a pair of double-headers, and in each of the four consecutive games, the winning team scored three runs. Center Fielder Jim Kirby of Nashville made a putout on a fly ball he caught, but it wasn't unassisted. He grabbed the ball before it hit the ground, after it bounced from the glove of Shortstop Hal Quick. Atlanta took over the league lead from Birmingham by stealing six bases in one inning.

MEMORY DEPT.—The Ezzard Charles-Joe Walcott fight for the heavyweight title has been roasted, and somewhat properly, as a horrible exhibition by two guys who were supposed to stir up some action. Walcott was forever eliminated from the title picture, and Charles came into recognition as something of a cheese champ.

It was, indeed, unbecoming a title fight, after the throne has been occupied by such knock-'em-dead figures as Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis. But it wasn't the worst title fight in the heavyweight division, and the fact is that both Dempsey and Louis figured in even tamer battles.

Louis' last defense of his title against Walcott, for sheer inaction, was even worse than the Charles-Walcott thing until Joe saved the show with his eleventh-round knockout. And to that point it was the most-booed fight in heavyweight history. Twelve years before, in Philadelphia, when Dempsey lost his title to Tunney, there was nothing resembling a knockdown, nobody was bloody, nobody got hurt, and nobody fought much. Tunney became champion on a 10-round decision, you remember.

Training Trip a Month Away

Sandifer and Quirk, Rookie Aces of '48, Sign With 'Skins

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A REMINDER that their 1949 training grind will start in slightly more than a month was issued by the Washington Redskins yesterday as they announced the signing of two promising second-year men.

On the line for '49 are Halfback Dan Sandifer, former Louisiana State star, and Fullback Ed Quirk, from the University of Missouri. Both will catch the train leaving Washington on July 29 and headed for Occidental College near Los Angeles.

Though both Sandifer and Quirk played exceptionally well as rookies last year, no two collegians ever had more contrasting starts in pro football. Quirk, a blocking back at Missouri, was converted into a ballcarrier and was almost released because he was so clumsy. The first time Sandifer touched a football in a Redskin uniform he took a kickoff and raced 94 yards for a touchdown in an intra-squad game.

BRIEFLY—From Rotan, Tex., comes an Associated Press report that Sammy Baugh is almost as skillful handling a rope as a football . . . Slingin' Sam last week led a quartet of calf ropers from Rotan to victory in a match with Rochester, Tex. His time—12.5 seconds—was the best of the meet by a couple of seconds. The Redskins now have 23 players signed for 1949, including 13 rookies and 10 veterans . . . Twenty other players, all but one of them veterans, have been sent contracts . . . The list of last year's dependables who WON'T be back has now grown to five with the sale of Quarterback Youel to the Detroit Lions . . . End Paul McKee will coach at Rochester University, Fullback Jim Castiglia will concentrate on the moving business, End Doug Turley will coach the Wilmington Clipploom almost equally large in Redskin plans, mostly on the strength of last year's play.

Nats Open Stand Against Elite

Haefner Opposes 2d Place A's Tonight

From the company they'll be keeping the next two weeks, you'd think the Nats were in the high society part of the American League instead of the tenement section.

Starting tonight when Mickey Haefner faces the second-place Philadelphia Athletics, the sixth-place Griffs clash head-on with nothing but first-division clubs until July 13, when they head West again to mingle with the masses. Alex Kellner, rookie left-hander, with a 10-3 record, will start for the Macks.

Of the 14-game, first-division competition scheduled for them, seven of the affairs are with the league-leading Yankees, five with the runner-up Athletics and two with the red-hot third-place Red Sox.

As you see, it's not a bright future facing a team that's tail-spinned from second place to sixth in three weeks, losing 11 of its last 16 games.

Yost Out Another Week

Manager Joe Kuhel was hopeful that his athletes could make up a little of the lost ground against the Western division teams invading Griffith Stadium, but his hopes were dashed as the White Sox took two out of three, the Tigers two out of two and Cleveland three out of four.

Along with his powerful schedule burden, Kuhel also must carry on without the services of Eddie Yost for another week. The injured third baseman has been working out for the last few days, but his sprained ankle is still too swollen and painful to permit him to play.

On the brighter side of the picture has been the fine play, offensively and defensively, of Shortstop Sam Dente and the good job Pitcher Mickey Harris turned in against Cleveland Saturday.

Dente Flexes Muscles

Dente has been fielding with the best of 'em and has also blossomed out as an extra-base hitter, smashing seven last week in boosting his average to around .290.

Ineffective in his first start, Southpaw Harris turned in an eight-inning, six-hit effort against Cleveland Saturday and bids fair to bolster a pitching staff that can stand it.

On the whole, however, the Nat pitching hasn't been too bad.

The chief reason for their poor showing has been their inability to come up with a clutch hitter, the guy who could produce the key hit when a hit meant a run.

One little single, or even a long fly, meant the difference between victory and defeat in two Chicago losses and two defeats to the Indians.

West, Godoy Win Features At Ball Park

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Sonny Boy West, Washington's lightweight hope, climaxed a rousing three hours of boxing for 2304 Griffith Stadium fans last night by flooring Jesse Underwood twice and winning a unanimous 10-round decision.

In the co-feature, Arturo Godoy, Chile's former heavyweight contender, survived a badly cut right eye and 10-round knockdown to win a split decision over Elkins Brothers.

The Latin, at 200 pounds, outweighed the 23-year-old local boy by 19 pounds.

After hitting, clutching and outpointing Brothers through four of the first six rounds, Arturo was stung into wild action in the eighth, when the bout erupted into a brawl.

Brothers landed his best punch of the fight in that heat, a left hook which set the blood flowing under the Chilean's eye.

Godoy's bleeding eye caused him trouble in the ninth, but his 20 years ring lore and lots of fortitude kept him in business.

The local boy won the tenth by a wide margin, staggering the Latin twice and finally flooring him with a straight left and right to the head a second before the final gong. The fans gave Godoy a big hand.

West, 136, had no trouble with the 133½-pound Underwood, winning nine of the 10 rounds on aggressiveness. He put the game but out-generaled West Virginian down in the fourth and ninth rounds with right hooks for "eight counts."

Gross gate was $4827.33, and the net $3425.73.

The all-D. C. card of preliminaries got off to an explosive start with a pair of one-round TKOs. Joe Wilkinson, 116, stopped Jim Jennette, 121, in 2:56, and Chink Williams, 137, stopped Herbie Stowe, 142, in 2:16.

Roland Randall, 157½, former local Golden Gloves middleweight champ, outpointed Johnny Pratt, 155½, in a four-rounder. In the dull prelude to the two main bouts, Ben Harrison, 205, decisioned Frank Stetka, 180.

Tack Hardwick, Harvard End of '14, Falls Dead

Cuttyhunk, Mass., June 27 (AP).—Huntington R. (Tack) Hardwick, All-American football end from Harvard in 1914, died today of a heart attack while clamming at Church's Beach. He was 58.

Ernest Soucy, a friend who was with Hardwick, said the former Harvard football immortal suddenly toppled over into the water as they walked along the shore.

Chief Petty Officer Albert L. McMullen of the Cuttyhunk Coast Guard station, applied artificial respiration for nearly two hours before the former athlete was pronounced dead by Dr. Alan Kaufman of New Bedford.

Nora Abbe's Sprint Wins Trot Feature

Finishing with a burst of speed, Nora Abbe, a five-year-old bay mare, owned by H. Quillen, and C. V. Townsend, of Frankford, Del., won the feature seventh race, a $1000 pace for 18-conditioned horses, before some 6200 persons last night at Laurel Raceway.

It was Nora Abbe's second straight at Laurel, and the horse, piloted by the veteran Tom Lewis, returned her backers $10.40, $5.80 and $3.80.

Nora Abbe was expertly handled by Lewis, and in winning tied the track mark for the six furlongs in 1:33 3-5. Frisky Queen was the previous record holder.

The combination of a favorite and a long shot paid off at a neat $150.40 in the daily double. Nola, driven by Bob Phillips of Wilson, N. C., won by 4 lengths in the opener and returned a mere $5, $2.80 and $2.80. In the second half of the double, Follow On, by The Great Up, upset the dope with Willie Webb in the sulky to pay $45, $22.40 and $11.40.

Big Leagues Go to Bat for Sandlotters

By Bus Ham
Post Sports Editor

Brooklyn, June 27.—Big league baseball did a big thing in New York tonight for the kids.

On an open date of the major leagues' schedules, two American League teams and two National League teams met in inter-league games at Ebbetts Field and at Yankee Stadium.

Here were the Bums are kings, a capacity crowd of 32,000 saw the Dodgers meet the world champion Cleveland Indians—a pairing that might be repeated next October in the World Series.

Over at the Stadium, the Yankee faced the Giants before 40,000.

Proceeds from both games will be donated exclusively to the kids—to sandlot baseball in Greater New York.

Attorney General Tom Clark was on hand for the Dodgers-Cleveland game. His efforts to keep the kids busy in wholesome sports as an antidote to juvenile delinquency helped to inspire the playing of both of these New York games.

Clark was introduced at Ebbets Field home plate by John Cashmore, President of the Borough, Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York also took a bow.

Ted Schroeder Wins, Is Last U. S. Hopeful

London, June 27 (AP). — Ted Schroeder came from two sets behind in a storming stretch finish today to keep the American flag flying in the semi-finals of the Wimbledon men's singles tennis championship.

Trailing three games to none in the fifth set, the Californian from La Crescenta eliminated the young Australian champion, Frank Sedgman, 3—6, 6—8, 6—3, 6—2, 9—7.

But two other Yank aces lost to British Commonwealth stars in broiling heat that sapped their energies.

John Bromwich, veteran Australian Davis Cup captain, eliminated Defending Champion Bob Falkenburg, of Beverly Hills, Cal., 3—6, 9—11, 6—0, 6—0, 6—4.

Eric Sturgess, the South African stylist who was runner-up in the 1948 U. S. championships, ousted Frankie Parker, of Los Angeles, 3—6, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Jaroslav Drobny, the stout Czechoslovakian lefthander, captured the other berth in the last four by tripping Geoff Brown, of Australia, 2—6, 7—5, 1—6, 6—2, 6—4.

The women's singles field was boiled down to eight, half British, half American. The Yanks are Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Bellevue, Del.; Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and Mrs. Helen Rihbany of Boston.

There was one upset in that division when Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, fifth seeded player, lost to Mrs. Betty Hilton of Britain, 4—6, 6—1, 6—4.

Mrs. Rihbany disposed, 6—4, 6—4, of Gem Hoahing.

In the women's doubles (third round), Louise Brough and Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont, defeated Miss P. F. Hermsen, Netherlands, and Miss M. Brennan, Britain, 6—2, 6—0.

Schmitz Chased But Wins, 6 to 4

St. Louis, June 27 (AP).—Hank Sauer poled a terrific two-run homer in the fifth inning to give the last-place Chicago cubs the margin by which they defeated the red-hot St. Louis Redbirds in an error-riddled game tonight, 6 to 4.

It was the only game scheduled in the major leagues and dropped the Cards a full game back of the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers.

The contest started out to be a comedy of errors, each team committing three in the first four innings. Every run scored in those frames was tainted.

But there was nothing tainted about Sauer's four-base clout in the fifth. The ball cleared the left field bleacher wall and landed in Sullivan ave. Gene Mauch, who had singled, scored ahead of Hank. Sauer had previously singled in a run in a three-run rally in the third.

Meanwhile, the Cards kept pecking away at their old Nemesis, Johnny Schmitz, and finally forced his retirement in the seventh. Walt Dubiel came in with two out and two on base and retired pinch-hitter Ron Northey on a fly to Sauer. Dubiel held the Birds hitless in the eighth and ninth.

Gerry Staley started for the Cards, but was a victim of poor support, as well as Sauer's big bat. Fred Martin, Mexican League jumper, who recently rejoined the Cards, made his first mound appearance and retired the Cubs in order in the sixth and seventh. Bill Reeder also stopped the Bruins cold, but the damage had been done.

Stan Musial accounted for three of the Birds' 10 hits and batted in two runs.

Ward Pacing Golf With 69

Ames, Iowa, June 27 (AP).—Harvie Ward, a 23-year-old North Carolina University junior, rapped out a two-under par 69 today in a storm-halted opening qualifying round in the National Collegiate Golf Tournament.

Play in the first half of the 36-hole medal play test was stopped in the early evening by thunder storms and darkness. There were 76 contestants unreported when activity was suspended until tomorrow morning.

Ward, who tied the competitive course record with his 35-34, did his stint in the morning. His mark was untouched by the 149 players able to finish their work on the 6055 yards Iowa State College Course.

A stroke behind the former North-South amateur champion were Arnold Palmer, Wake Forest sophomore, and L. M. Grannell, jr., of North Texas State.

'Little Boat' Anglers Getting a Break on Nearby Waters

By Ralph Murdock

THERE IS NOW an increased demand among anglers for small motor driven fishing boats due to the difficulty of organizing sizable parties that warrant the expense of larger craft.

Crowding of fishermen on the larger craft has not helped the situation. The purse of the average angler today is not bulging with the greenbacks that were so prevalent just a little while back. He still wants to continue his fishing and, like most of us, he is forced to stay within his means. Some far-sighted boat owners have grasped the situation and now supply both types of equipment to the anglers.

There are several spots on the Patuxent river where the dual service is rendered. Anglers who have been going out from Benedict declare that the setup fits the pocketbook perfectly. You only order what you can comfortably afford. Reports show the rowboat fishermen caught just as many fish in this spot as the anglers on the larger craft. For example, Vernon Palmer, McLean, Va., made seven trips to Benedict and caught a total of 81 hardheads. Not bad for small boat fishing.

THE OUTDOOR Anglers Club, further down the Patuxent has 20 small motor-driven plywood boats, and several very good catches have been reported there.

For the fishermen who have been calling and writing in about a similar type of service on the Chesapeake Bay, here is an ideal spot. Deep Creek Farm, near Shady Side on the Upper Chesapeake has 20 inboard motor boats, 5 row boats for anglers who wish to use their own outboards and (believe it or not) a 30-foot cabin cruiser if you wish to hire it by the day or week. The cruiser is a drive-it-yourself proposition. In other words, you can become a full-fledged captain overnight.

But that isn't all. If you are in a rush and don't wish to drive down by auto, just hop into your airplane because there is a landing field at your convenience, phone number, West River, Md., 6315.

Incidentally, Herbert H. Goodman, branch manager of Remington Rand, was officially made a member of the Eastern Air Lines Flying Fishermen's Club. Goodman, local angler, on a recent trip to Acopulco, Mexico, brought in an 8-foot sailfish that weighed 87 pounds. Herb is now in a sick bed at Doctor's Hospital and should be up and at 'em in two weeks. His many sport friends wish him a speedy recovery.

MR. AND MRS. Edward Forman and son Larry, age 13, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farley and son Mickey, age 12, while fishing with Captain Wells at North Beach, Md., caught 21 hardheads. Their trip was abbreviated by strong southeast winds which chased them to port. The two youngsters, making their debut as fishermen, qualified by hauling in seven big beardies as their share of the catch.

Our Thursday's suggestions, "Where They Are Biting" included the Gooses as the best bet for rockfish. Capt. Jim Corby from the Rod and Reel Club verified our note by boating 507 pounds of big stripers at this location.

We also selected the Gooses as the "three-star special" for hardhead fishing. A south-southwest wind did not hinder the fishing aspirations of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trent, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Raezer, Jerry Jones and Milton Clark. The eight anglers caught 120 hardheads which weighed 250 pounds. Capt. William Welch was the successful skipper.

Johnny Gross, who makes accomodations for the fishing boats leaving the Rod and Reel Club at Chesapeake Beach, said, "All of the boats that left our dock Sunday came back with plenty of fish. One of our boats hit the jackpot by hauling in 300 hardheads. Some of them must have weighed 4 pounds." Johnny adds, "We will not crowd mixed parties on our boats. We want the fishermen to have plenty of fishing room. You will be fishing with your own crowd."

Root Rides Sure Gift to Length Victory in Perry Purse

AT CHARLES TOWN

DEAR FOLKS:

Apprentice Jimmy Ulmer rode the fortieth winner of his career on the Monday program. Under the rules, a boy has the five-pound allowance for one year or until he rides 40 winners. Before the program Ulmer said that he was going to quit the saddle as soon as he used up "his bug," the mark that goes with the apprentice allowance in the entries. Ulmer has been having trouble with increasing weight. He believes he will soon grow out of the jockey class and maintains he wants no part of reducing to make weight. It takes a lot of will power for a youngster to start a new career after having tasted the fruits of riding for a living. Many of the present jockeys live on crackers and salads and spend half of their life in Turkish baths and sweat boxes. In the end it undermines the health of many. Whether young Ulmer keeps his promise to himself remains to be seen. He's a nice kid and, apparently, smarter than the average. More power to him . . . BILL.

1. Trigger Moose, Gerleon, Mary Vash.

2. Waylass, Air Defense, Matoaka.

Dr. Johnson Second to $6.40 Shot

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 27.—Sure Gift, lightly campaigned son of Swift and Sure, carried the colors of Wayne Kendrick of Washington, D. C., to victory today in the Thornton T. Perry Purse as racing was resumed at this turf point.

With Jockey Buddy Root putting up an excellent ride, the 6-year-old gelding forged to the finish line a length in advance of J. K. Wynkoop's Dr. Johnson. A half dozen lengths farther back came J. Farris' Loving Robert to be third in the starting field of eight.

Sure Gift, making his fourth start of the year, turned in his second success and was an identical cofavorite wth G. S. Gladney's Warchamp which finished fourth. Sure Gift paid $6.40. He was clocked in 1.21 3/5 for the six and a half furlongs.

Jockey Freddie Kratz, one-time steeplechase rider, gave a fine saddle performance in winning with H. C. Beaty's Junior Girl, the $4.20 favorite in the third race.

The daily double on the four and six combination paid $15.40. L. Angel's Tolteca won the first race at $8 and Kratz rode his first winner of the afternoon in the second, getting Dr. H. B. Langdon's Some Moose home at $3.20.

Williams' 71 Wins in Pro Division

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Spencer Overton came in off Army Navy Country Club's rolling fairways yesterday complaining that he had three-putted three greens. Someone asked the Rolling Road amateur what he had shot. Spence nonchalantly replied, "69." ty-nine."

His 35, 34—69 was two strokes better than anyone else could do in the pro-am tournament held there yesterday, and easily assured him first place in the amateur sweepstakes.

The Chevy Chase blasters, Bobby Brownell and Ralph Bogart, and Col. Jim Wilson of Army Navy and Will McFerren, Indian Spring, were all bunched at even par 71 in the amateur sweeps. Brownell had 36, 35—71; Bogart, 35, 36—71; Wilson, 33, 38—71, andMcFerren, 35, 36—71.

Lipsch's 64 Low Net

Low net prize among the amateurs went to Sidney Lipsch, Bonnie View, 40, 43—83—19—64. Tied for second net were Ray Spaulding, Washington, 42, 42—84—18—66; and David Weinberg, Catoctin, 39—37—76—10—66. Along in the fourth low net slot was Spencer Overton who added a 2 handicap to his gross 69 for a net 67.

Bobby Williams, Naval Academy pro, won the pro sweeps with a 34, 37—71, card. Johnny Musser of Allview, 34—38—72 and host pro,* Allan Burtno, 35, 37—72 shared runner-up honors.

Charlie Bassler, Rolling Road; Andy Gibson, Country Club of Maryland; Jimmy Duke, Bonnie View; Joe Reposkey, Catoctin; Hugh McLellan, Langley Field; and Ralph Beach, Suburban, were all tied for fourth with 73s.

Overton combined with Johnny Bass for a best ball of 63 which landed them in a three-way tie for first in the pro-am division. Also at 63 were Bobby Grove, and David Weinberg, Catoctin, and Joe Reposkey and Stewart Bowen, Army-Navy. Williams and Comdr. J. G. Cooper of the Naval Academy took fourth with 64.

Four teams tied for fifth, Williams and Comdr. J. A. Smith; Irving Schloss, Mount Pleasant pro, and N. A. Halpin, Prince Georges; Andy Gibson and Lou Kreamer, Country Club of Maryland, and Jimmy Duke, Bonnie View, and Billy Ball, Army-Navy, all carding 65s.

D. C. Pilots Grab Laurels At Radford

By Happy Walker

EVERY MEMBER of the Washington contingent of outboard racing addicts making the weekend jaunt to Radford, Va., walked off with some part of the honors. The regatta, sponsored by the Radford Junior Chamber of Commerce, featured a top ranking field of some 60-odd nationally known racers including Henry Shakeshaft, Vic Scott, Doug Creech and Melvin Harrison.

Walker

Of the D. C. crowd, Ike Hale, veteran of many hotly contested outboard classics, ran up a total of 1190 points, took two firsts, one third and one fourth place; Jimmy Baden took a second with 466 points; Dean Wooster totaled 477 points and a third; Hudson Moses made 320 points and a fourth, while Jim Broaddus tallied 300 points and a second place.

WORD HAS REACHED this department from "East View" on the River Retz, Matthews County, Va., that the combined P. R. P. S., Mobjeck, and C. Y. C. annual cruises with 25 Washington cruisers, their skippers and guests are out on the briny for a full 10-day rendezcous of summer cruising. The C. Y. S. flagship Magenta, with Commander Allen Carney commanding; the C. Y. C. flagship Old Timer, with Hillman Wills, commanding, and flagship Makio II, with Fleet Captain Boots Boothby are convoying their squadrons over some fine scenic waterways. All hands are expected to make home port July 5.

INDICATIONS POINT to an all-time high in entries and spectators to nearby regattas this year, if the Wilson Point Men's Club is any indication. This very popular power boat festival last weekend on the Middle River, just outside of Baltimore drew a record crowd.

Quattrochi Changes Mind

$1000 are exaggerated exactly $1000. . . "I ain't got the money, so I guess I ain't sold him," Stevenson explained very simply . . . That man you saw rushing in and out of Loew's Capitol the last few days was Orchestra Leader Sammy Kaye, who was either going to or coming from Griffith Stadium between shows. He's just wild about baseball. . .

Gun Factory Wins, 13 to 7

Glen Burnie Killer Sentenced to Hang

Baltimore, June 27 (AP).—Still claiming he was "made to say" he killed a Glen Burnie couple, Thomas A. Edwards was sentenced today to die by hanging.

"You found me guilty of this crime," the 23-year-old Negro told the three judges before they sentenced him. "I don't feel guilty of it. They made me say it."

Edwards had sought to refute at his trial a statement he gave police in which he admitted slaying John Mahlan, 25, and Mary Kline, 18. He testified that police cuffed him, threatened him and made promises.

His attorneys, in an unsuccessful attempt to get him a new trial, said Edwards had been "framed"—not by police, however, but "by someone else."

Judges Robert France, Joseph Sherbow and Emory H. Niles convicted Edwards in February of first-degree murder. Judge France announce their sentence of death. The only alternative was life imprisonment.

Defense Attorney William J. McWilliams said the State Court of Appeals would be asked to review the case.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Kline, parents of the slain girl, were among the spectators hearing the death sentence pronounced.

First inkling of the double murder last September came when Mahlan's bloodstained car was found abandoned on a side road the morning after he took Miss Kline for a ride. Three days later their bodies were found 26 miles away in a clearing off Chesterfield rd.

Several weeks later Anne Arundel County Police Chief John Souers announced the arrest of Edwards, who lived in the Marley Creek section. Baltimore city police obtained the statement from the defendant.

In the statement Edwards said he shot the couple in anger over being forced from the road by Mahlan's car. He said he followed the car until the couple parked.

2 Teen-Age Girls Accuse 3 of Rape

Four Prince Georges County youths from 17 to 21, were arrested yesterday after two Hyattsville girls, 12 and 15, told police they were raped after leaving a movie Sunday night.

Three of the youths were charged with rape by county police. The fourth, said to have been in their company but not a participant in the alleged assaults, was held on a parole violation.

Charged with rape, police said, were Carl Meredith Caudell, 19, a pet hospital orderly of 5028 Geronimo st., Daniels Park Md.; James Eugene Largent, 21, a sign painter, of 4108 33d st., Mt. Rainier, and Robert Henry King, alias Polly King, 20, a construction worker, of 3700 Upshur st., Brentwood, Md.

The other boy, a juvenile, was turned over to probation officer Roy D. Bright.

16 Jurymen Approved at Scott Trial

Roanoke, Va., June 27 (AP).—Lee Scott sat almost expressionless today in a sweltering courtroom while a judge examined the qualifications of jurors to try him on a charge of slaying Dana Marie Weaver.

Judge Dirk A. Kuyk approved 16 jurymen for the required panel of 20 and two alternates before recessing until Tuesday. Three of those disqualified objected to the death penalty as a matter of principle. The other nine said they had formed definite opinions.

Most of those approved were parents of teen-age boys or girls—several in the 16-year group like Scott and Dana Marie.

Supreme Court Denies Woman Award in Potomac Rape Case

By The Associated Press

The Supreme Court yesterday ordered retried a damage suit growing out of the rape of a woman passenger aboard a Government-owned vessel in the Potomac River.

The decision involves awards totaling $56,000 made by the U. S. District Court at Richmond. That court had held the company operating the ship for the Government was a common carrier. The high tribunal ruled it was not.

But it said the firm—Dichmann, Wright and Pugh, Inc.—might be liable for negligence in hiring unsuitable crew members.

Justice Reed for the five-man majority specifically refrained from expressing an opinion as to what circumstances might fix liability upon the company for alleged negligence. Justice Black, Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge disagreed with the majority, without stating their position.

Dichmann, Wright and Pugh, Inc., acted as general agent for the steamship Meteor during World War II. The vessel operated between Norfolk and Washington.

The cook, Jack Lester Barnes, crawled through a window to enter the stateroom of Mrs. Lillian A. Weade and Mrs. Roberta L. Stinemeyer. He raped Mrs. Weade and threatened Mrs. Stinemeyer. The attack occurred on the night of August 3, 1945. Barnes later was executed by the State of Maryland for the attack.

A jury in U. S. District Court in Norfolk awarded Mrs. Weade $50,000, her husband $1000, and Mrs. Stinemeyer $5000. The U. S. Circuit Court in Richmond threw out the awards, however, on the ground that the general agent was not liable to pasengers. Mr. and Mrs. Weade and Mrs. Stinemeyer then appealed to the Supreme Court to reinstate the award.

The high court refused to do so but also held the Circuit Court erred in throwing it out entirely.

2000 Gun Factory Employes to Get Notices of Layoffs

Friday—July 1—will be Layoff Day at the big Naval Gun Factory here. Approximately 2000 of its 10,300 employes will be given 30-day notices of discharge at that time. The notices will go out via registered mail Thursday for delivery on Friday.

About 1200 of those to be laid off have regular Civil Service status. Among them are career nonveterans with as much as 20 years of service. The factory has fewer than 800 war service and temporary workers—the first to go in any reduction of force.

The layoff at Washington's largest single industrial concern will be felt in other naval activities in this area. A-1 and A-2 employes who will get the pink slips (career veterans and nonveterans) will have the right to "bump" employes with fewer retention points in similar jobs in other naval activities in a commuting distance of this city.

For example, a career machinist who is laid off from the factory could bump a war service machinist from his job at the Alexandria Ordnance Plant.

Admiral F. G. Fahrion and his Gun Factory staff are doing what they can to find other jobs for their displaced employes. They are meeting with partial success.

It now appears that all the typists, stenographers and clerks to be laid off will be given the opportunity to transfer to other Federal agencies. A number of the professional employes to get the ax are expected to find jobs at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, the Naval Research Laboratory and other Naval scientific and research activities in this area.

However, the office is finding it difficult to locate jobs for the bulk of the employes to be laid off—skilled mechanics and laborers. A few of these people will be offered guard jobs at the factory.

The factory has a "freeze" on hiring and it will be continued. When jobs open up, career employes who were laid off will be given the first opportunity to fill them.

Conversions from temporary and war service to permanent status also have been stopped at the factory. The only exception since May 12 has been made for firefighters. All firefighters at the factory had either war service or temporary status. Those recently certified by Civil Service will get status and retain their jobs. The others will be laid off. There was no question of job competition from career workers in their line of work.

PAY HEARINGS open today before a subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee. Members of Congress who introduced the pay and reclassification bills for classified and postal employes have been invited to testify at the opening session.

Chairman Murray heads the subcommittee. He will be assisted by Morrison (D., La.), Davis (D., Ga.), Williams (D., Miss.), Whitaker (D., Ky.), Rees (R., Kans.), St. George (R., N. Y.), Sadlak (R., Conn.) and Jenison (R., Ill.).

A majority of the committee is on record for a pay reclassification bill that would raise the salaries of both classified and postal workers. However, there is a militant minority whose members believe Federal workers will be fortunate to retain what they now have. It's a good bet that the subcommittee will be in no hurry to wind up the hearings and report a bill to the full committee.

NOTES: Representative Miller (D., Calif.) has a bill to allow employes who retired prior to April 1 of last year to recompute their annuities under the more liberal law. His measure would benefit those employes who have more than 35 years of service . . . John Murray of Boston, is the new director of organization of the AFL's American Federation of Government employes. A good man . . . The Disabled American Veterans is fighting the Humphrey bill to give veterans with major disabilities absolute job preference. Its amputee chapter is supporting it just as vigorously. The Senate Civil Service Committee has indorsed the measure.

JOBS: Civil Service has exams open for chauffeur, truck driver and motor vehicle dispatcher. No written tests required. Starting salaries are from $2152 to $2799.

3 Appointed To District Board of Education

Mrs. Magdeburger And Lee Renamed; Hayes Is Replaced By Dr. P. T. Johnson

The judges of District Court yesterday announced three appointments to the Board of Education.

Adelbert W. Lee, real estate and insurance agent was named to a third three-year term.

Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, was reappointed. Mrs. Madgeburger was first appointed April 13 to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle.

Dr. Phillip T. Johnson, 49-year-old Negro orthopedic surgeon and veteran of both wars was named to take the place of George E. C. Hayes, attorney.

All appointments are for three years.

Reappointment of Lee and Mrs. Magdeburger, and the failure to rename the incumbent Hayes, was counter to the recommendations of the Federation of Civic Associations. The Negro association last week urged that Hayes be reappointed and that the District Court judges find others to replace Lee and Mrs. Magdeburger.

Mrs. Magdeburger drew the association's fire for telling a "colored joke" at commencement exercises at Anacostia High School. Lee was opposed on the ground that he had never advocated any of the association's policies.

Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws, following a 2½-hour executive session, yesterday said that Hayes had not made application for reappointment.

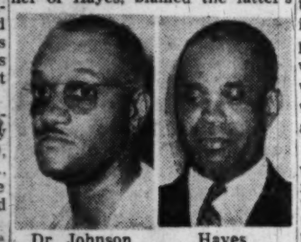
Dr. Johnson, a native Washingtonian, was educated in public schools and at Howard University. He entered practice in 1924.

He has been associated with Freedmen's Hospital and Howard University as head of their orthopedic departments. A veteran of both wars, he is active in American Legion work. He is a founder of the Johnson & Robinson Clinic at 1742 6th st. nw.

Magdeburger — Lee

Married and the father of one son, he lives at 6111 Dix st. ne.

Judge James A. Cobb, law partner of Hayes, blamed the latter's "outspoken opposition" to segregation as the reason he was not reappointed.



Dr. Johnson — Hayes

Dr. Johnson reported that he also opposes segregation. "But," he added, "I think it takes a matter of education to bring about. My experience has been that you must educate the people to it."

City to Ask Funds to Add To Bell School

The Commissioners agreed yesterday to ask Congress for a $225,000 deficiency appropriation to enlarge the new quarters of the Bell Vocational School.

Members of the Board of Education had appealed for the money at a morning conference with the city heads. It was pointed out that the funds were needed to transfer the heavy shop equipment from the old Bell Building at 7th and O sts nw., to its new home—the former Powell Junior High School.

If Congress grants the new fund request, the school board plans to put an addition on the Powell building to accommodate the Bell Vocational School work shops.

The $225,000 item was not included in the regular District supply bill when it went to the President last week. Senate and House conferees explained then that the school request was dropped because the Commissioners had never given formal justification for the project.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who asked his colleagues to seek the money now, said last night that the request might be sought in the third deficiency appropriations bill. The bill has passed the House and is awaiting Senate hearings.

The expected discussion on whether a white high school should be given over to Negro students next fall to relieve overcrowded conditions did not come up at yesterday's conference.

School spokesmen said the Commissioners asked that the subject be passed over at the meeting.

However, C. Melvin Sharpe, School Board president, told reporters School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning would make a report on the matter at the board's year-end meeting Friday.

Seized in Counterfeit Raid Near White House

HELD BY TREASURY MEN—William F. Hughes and his wife, Josephine, sit with gloomy faces after their arrest yesterday on charges of passing bogus money to make bond, fixed at $25,000 for Bebar, and $15,000 each for the other four, and all were taken to District Jail.

$100,000 Fake Bills Seized

Attorney for Bebar is Denny Hughes. The Hughes couple (no relation to the lawyer) are represented by Milton Kaplan. Assistant United State Attorney Edward L. Carey was prosecutor.

Secret Service agents cited Bebar, who allegedly made the multilith plates used in manufacturing the notes, as ringleader.

They said they recovered about $50,000 of the counterfeit notes hidden in Creighton's car, when they arrested him yesterday morning as he drove up to his Delafield pl. residence. Almost $50,000 more was found hidden in the room, which Creighton shared with Kidwell, and where the latter was arrested.

Agents said the Hugheses, who were implicated by their co-defendants, had the entire $100,000 worth of fake money in their possession at one time, and later turned it over to Creighton and Kidwell.

Creighton was charged specifically with passing a $20 bogus Federal Reserve note on June 14 in Washington, and Kidwell was charged with passing a fake $20 bill on June 9.

Bebar was specifically charged with manufacturing the counterfeit 20s, and the Hugheses with "keeping in their possession with intent to defraud falsely made $20 notes."

According to the Secret Service, the fake $20 notes were manufactured in suite No. 3 at 1807 H st. nw. in early April, after the defendants had a clause inserted in the lease permitting them to operate a "duplicating machine."

The year's lease, renting the two-room suite within a few blocks of the Treasury Department for $65 a month, was signed March 30 by a "George Cordova," according to Mrs. Dorothy Barry Vicek of the David E. Barry firm, which owns the property.

Landlady Grew Suspicious

She described "Cordova" as a "tall, dark-haired man who always wore sun-glasses," and wanted the suite for a commercial photography concern which would photograph "boxes of chocolate candy and canned goods" for advertising layouts.

He had no references, a not unusual occurrence in this transient city, Mrs. Vicek said, and gave no home address since he said he had just got in from California and hadn't had time to get settled.

She said she got suspicious of the two, however, when a "reddish-blond, chubby man" who accompanied "Cordova," gave two different names for himself, and then refused to be cosigner in the lease.

"Cordova" asked permission to work nights, since the firm was "so busy," Mrs. Vicek said, but seldom appeared with his chubby friend before noon each day.

Tenants Disappeared

The last time she saw them was April 25, Mrs. Vicek stated. David Barry discovered the flat empty with "not one thing in the room" a couple of days later when he got no answer to a knock, used a pass key to enter a storage room off the suite where he had left some lumber.

Nothing more was ever heard from the tenants, Mrs. Vicek said.

Secret Service agents said yesterday they believed the manufacture of the notes was completed in early April.

The notes were stored for a time with the Hugheses, the agents alleged, and ring members had recently finished a round-the-country airplane tour to get rid of the notes in various large cities, before their arrest.

The gang hired autos at various cities along their tour, and distributed most of the bills at theaters and ice-cream parlors, the Secret Service said. The tour included St. Louis, where the first note was passed April 28, Kansas City, Omaha, Dallas, Fort Worth, Atlanta, Richmond, Baltimore and Washington.

15 Passed Here

Only about 15 bills are known to have been passed here, the Treasury said.

Secret Service agents began trailing the men late in April. They have been watching the five alleged ring members here for about two weeks.

A Cleveland man, George J. Strombos, 28, picked up there when an alert theater cashier recognized a $20 bill as bogus, confirmed details of the ring's distribution set-up, Secret Service men said. Although the gang apparently passed all the Washington notes themselves, they worked with field agents in some cities to get rid of them, he explained.

No equipment was seized in the raid yesterday, but agents said Creighton and Kidwell had admitted passing the bills, and added they are on the trail of the $500 multilith machine used for the job and later sold.

Plates have apparently been destroyed by the counterfeiters, according to a Secret Service official.

The five agents assigned to the investigation here, including Russell Daniel, supervising agent of the Washington District, were highly praised by Treasury Secretary Snyder for their quick and effective work.

Court Dwellers Get Water Again As Bill Is Paid

Payment of an overdue water bill yesterday restored the flow of water to more than 20 families living in Pierce ct. nw., who were cut off Thursday.

It was 90 degrees in the shade and 3 p. m. when a check for $54.75 was delivered to the office of Raymond B. Ward, water registrar and service was restored an hour later.

The bill was paid by Fides Settlement House, 1123 New Jersey ave. nw.

Miss Emily Milburn, assistant director, said the money was obtained partially from contributions and partially from funds raised toward purchase of a motion picture projector.

Bills for the meter, at 1101 and 1103 Pierce ct., between New Jersey ave. and 1st st., near L st., had not been paid for "three or four months," Ward said.

Senate Votes to Bar Government Lawyers From 3 Judgeships

Only 2 of Present 12 District Judges Could Be Appointed Under New Terms

Only two of the 12 current District Court judges would be eligible for appointment to that bench under the terms of the bill for enlarging the Federal judiciary, records showed yesterday.

The terms of the bill states in part: "Each of the three additional district judges appointed for the District of Columbia . . . shall have been actively engaged in the private practice of law, and shall not have been regularly employed in the executive branch of the Government . . . during a period of at least three consecutive years immediately prior to his appointment . . ."

Only Chief Judge Bolitha Laws and Judge Jennings Bailey of the entire 12 composing District Court would qualify under this section.

Laws had been engaged in private law practice for 16 years immediately prior to his appointment in 1938, while Bailey had been in private practice for 28 years right before his appointment to the bench in 1918.

A check of the records of the other district judges showed:

F. Dickinson Letts, member of Congress from Ohio prior to appointment in 1931.

T. Alan Goldsborough, member of Congress from Maryland prior to appointment in 1939.

James W. Morris, assistant to the Attorney General when appointed in 1939.

David A. Pine, United States Attorney for the District when appointed in 1940.

Matthew F. McGuire, Justice Department attorney when appointed in 1941.

Henry A. Schweinhaut, assistant to the Attorney General when appointed in 1944.

Alexander Holtzoff, executive assistant to the Attorney General when appointed in 1945.

Richmond B. Keech, legal administrative assistant to President Truman when appointed in 1946. Earlier he had served as D. C. Corporation Counsel.

Edward M. Curran, United States Attorney for the District immediately prior to appointment in 1947.

Edward A. Tamm, assistant to FBI Chief Hoover when appointed in 1948.

Hearings Open On Home Rule Bills Today

Four Congressional Sponsors to Testify Before House Group

House hearings on Washington home rule bills will start at 10 a. m. today before a House District Judiciary subcommittee.

Today's hearings will be limited to testimony of four congressional sponsors of home rule legislation, but the subcommittee headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) also may decide when the hearings will be resumed to accommodate more than 50 persons who have asked for time.

Scheduled to Testify

The hearing will be in Room 445, Old House Office Building. Scheduled for testimony today are:

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chief sponsor of the Senate-approved Washington home rule bill.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), member of the Harris Subcommittee, leader of the House drive for home rule in the last Congress.

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), member of the District Committee who has introduced the Kefauver bill as a separate House measure.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (A. L. P., N. Y.), who wants local fair employment practices and other civil rights measures incorporated in any home rule charter.

Chief Feature of Bills

A chief feature of all the bills is establishment of a representative city council and a city manager form of government for Washington, to replace the appointed commissioner system, in effect for 75 years.

On the eve of the hearings, Harris reiterated his opposition to a home rule council, and said he favors instead starting with a nonvoting District delegate in Congress.

District Committee Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) said he plans to attend as many of the subcommittee hearings as possible, and that he hopes for a full attendance by other members.

Judge Voices 'Grave Doubts' Of Real Estate Violations

Judge Alexander Holtzoff said in District Court yesterday that he has "grave doubts" whether Washington real estate dealers have violated Supreme Court rulings in their practices of fixing commission rates.

His comment came during argument of a civil case in which the Government seeks permanently to enjoin the Washington Real Estate Board from continuing its method of charging fees for real estate transactions.

Beside the local board, the National Association of Real Estate Boards and 16 individuals are defendants in the case, which alleges violation of the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

Decision Expected Today

Judge Holtzoff hinted, after he said a decision probably will be handed down at 10 a. m. today, that an appeal is inevitable. He remarked that District Court may be "just a whistle stop before the case goes higher."

Holtzoff said he was in doubt during arguments yesterday about applicability of what he considered the "crux of the case."

This he described as whether price-fixing, if it exists, is illegal per se in payment for personal services (such as those rendered by real estate brokers) as well as for commodities. He cited a rule showing price-fixing on commodities is per se a violation of the law.

If Washington real estate men are found guilty of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act, Holtzoff said he would give the Government further opportunity to show that the National Association of Real Estate Boards was involved in a conspiracy, as charged.

The prosecution contends that local boards are bound to conform to set commission schedules through adherence to the association's "code of ethics."

Victor H. Kramer, Justice Department attorney who argued the Government's case, indicated that a victory for the prosecution may presage similar suits against the New York Stock Exchange.

The civil action argued yesterday was filed by the Government when a criminal action was dismissed last year by Judge Edward M. Curran. A record of the criminal action was admitted in evidence by the court yesterday.

Commission Scale

Herbert N. Maletz, assisting Kramer, reviewed the evidence, and contended Washington real estate dealers pledged to a commission scale "fixed" by the real estate board.

After the criminal action was dismissed, the Government received a favorable ruling from Judge T. Alan Goldsborough to proceed with the civil case. The United States Court of Appeals upheld his decision this year.

Roger J. Whiteford, attorney for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, argued that a restraint of trade does not exist in the brokers' practice of setting fees.

William E. Leahy, representing the Washington group, contended that commissions are based on fair practices "upheld by the courts and approved by the public."

McGrath Prediction Ban Will Result In Veto of Bill Is Called 'Threat'

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday voted 41 to 25 to see that three new U. S. District Court judgeships here are filled by lawyers in private practice, not by Federal attorneys.

After this decision, the Senate approved and returned to the House for conference a bill creating the three new District Court judgeships, three additional judgeships for the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District, and a score of other new circuit and District judgeships elsewhere in the United States.

McCarran, McGrath Clash

Before the roll call, Senators Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), and J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), clashed over whether the new District Court judgeships here should be limited to lawyers in private practice or open as in the past to Federal lawyers.

Senator McGrath, sharply protesting the ban on Federal lawyers, warned that it would result in the President's vetoing the bill. He predicted the measure could not be passed over the veto.

Senator McCarran came to his feet with a charge that McGrath was throwing a threat in the faces of other Senators. McGrath said there was no threat, only his personal opinion that the President, as head of the executive branch, could not sign a bill which barred Department lawyers from a chance at the judgeships.

McCarran sponsored the private practice qualification. His plan applies both to all three new judges and permanently to three judges of the District Court as enlarged by the bill to 15 judges.

It says that at all times, three of the District Court judges here must have been, at the time of their appointment, engaged in the private practice of law. For two of them, the private practice must have been in the District for the five preceding years. For the other one, three years' private practice immediately preceding appointment is required, but not necessarily in the District. For all three, there would be the further requirement that during the three preceding years they must not have been regularly employed in the executive branch. In counting consecutive years of private practice, there would be excluded time spent in the armed forces, or as a judge of the Municipal Court, Municipal Court of Appeals, or Juvenile Court here.

The House of Representatives voted two additional judges for the District Court and three for the U. S. Appeals Court here, but made no private practice qualification.

McCarran is former chairman, and McGrath present chairman, of the Senate District Committee. McCarran heads the Senate Judiciary Committee of which McGrath is a member. McGrath is a former U. S. Solicitor General and chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Called Slap At U. S. Lawyers

McCarran said the practice of appointing Government lawyers to be judges was "erroneous" and should not be encouraged. He said that with all the suits brought in the District against the Federal departments, a decision for the Government made by a judge who had been a Federal lawyer could send a citizen away "disgruntled."

McGrath denounced McCarran's plan as "rank discrimination against Federal employes," and a "slap" at the lawyers who work for the Government when they could earn twice as much in private practice.

Sex Case Conviction

Charles J. Garris, 29, a laborer, 1432 Corcoran st. nw., was convicted yesterday in District Court of taking indecent liberties with his 6-year-old daughter on April 29. Sentencing was deferred pending a probation report.

Area News In Brief

Sasscer Would Hold Slum Sites in D. C.

..Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) said yesterday he does not want slum clearance in the District of Columbia to result in building low-rent housing projects in Maryland for people from those areas.

He told a reporter he plans to offer today an amendment to the housing bill to require that sites for such District projects be within the District.

"I want to be sure that the bill will set up rehabilitation for District areas within the confines of the District," he said.

Building such projects in Maryland to help the district, he said may result some day in Maryland having added charges from members of the low-income group.

Wife Faints As Husband Denies Rape

The wife of a defendant in a rape case collapsed in Municipal Court yesterday when her husband testified that all actions of the woman allegedly raped had been voluntary.

The defendant was Oakley J. Powers, 29, of 1723 G st. nw. Charged with him in the case is Beaman Heath, 24, of 540 20th st., South Arlington. Both are married and have children.

She testified she had been introduced to Powers previously in a tavern. Last Friday, Powers and Beaman came to her place, and she admitted them, she said. She testified they forced her to drink champagne, then attacked her.

Nathan Lubar, attorney for Powers, obtained consent of Judge Ellen K. Raedy to put him on the stand.

When Lubar asked if all her actions were voluntary, he said they were and his attractive wife, Ann, collapsed.

The judge commented, "This is not as strong a case as I thought when it was first presented here." She held both men for the Grand Jury under $5000 bonds.

275 Donate Blood

A total of 275 District employes gave blood in the District of Columbia Blood Donor program during the six months' period ending April 30, Public Welfare Director John W. Tramburg announced yesterday.

Top honors for participation in the program went to the Division of Sanitation, Department of Corrections and the Health Department.

Realty Tax Rate Approved

As directed by the recently enacted District revenue act, the District Commissioners yesterday officially approved the new real estate tax rate of $2.15 per $100 value for the year ending June 30, 1950. The present real estate tax rate is $2 per $100.

Cigarette Theft Reported

Theft over the weekend of 500 cartons of cigarettes was reported to police yesterday by George W. Gates, manager of the Baltimore Transfer Co., 1900 Fenwick st. ne.

Boys Leave Sweltering Capital for Summer Camps

TOO YOUNG TO GO ALONG—Jimmy Mulcare, 6, says goodby to his brother, Tommy, 10, who has just made the age limit for the Washington Boys Club camp. Their father is Joe Mulcare, 4741 Homer ave. se.

OFF TO CAMP ERNEST W. BROWN—Three hundred members of Police Boys Club No. 4 took off yesterday for a two-week vacation at the Scotland (Md.) camp. Here, a few of the boys, ready to board the bus, say goodby to Morris Cafritz, chairman of the club camp committee

Cabinetmaker Killed By Fall Down Stairs

Louis R. Granger, 634 East Capitol st., a cabinetmaker at the Mayflower Hotel, died in a fall downstairs from a second-floor workshop in the rear of his home at 6 p. m. yesterday. Relatives said he had gone to the workshop for tools for a small repair job.

Surviving are his wife, Grace; a daughter, Miss Sennie Granger; a son, Roy P. Granger, and a grandson.

1100-Unit Apartment House, New Hospital Win Rezoning

Approval of spot zoning changes yesterday cleared the way for building the proposed 400-bed Providence Hospital and an 1100-unit apartment building in Northwest Washington, but start on construction still is a long way off.

The Board of Zoning Adjustment granted the appeal of Providence Hospital to build a five-million-dollar center at 12th and Varnum sts. ne., an "A" semi-restricted area, on a 15-acre unimproved tract of land.

The new institution would supplement the existing Providence Hospital at 2d and D sts. se., which dates back to Civil War days. Under present plans, the old building will be kept in partial operation as an out-patient clinic.

Zoning variances were extended to Edward C. Boltz, president of the Perpetual Building Association, for an eight-million-dollar apartment building at the site of the old Martha Washington Seminary at 16th and Oak sts. nw., now used as a boarding house.

The apartment will be eight stories high. Jonathan Woodner Co., which will hold title, said plans are in the "very early stages." Zoning changes will also permit an accompanying public storage garage and open parking space for occupants.

In other actions, the board:

1. Gave the green light to Alphonso and Elizabeth B. Williamson to operate a nursery school for not more than 15 children in a home at 1401 Franklin st. ne., an "A" restricted area.

2. Approved an appeal of Christ Chapin to put up two semi-detached dwellings on vacant land at 1309-11 46th st. se., also "A" restricted.

3. Denied the request of Protestant and other Americans United for Separation of Church and State to use their building at 1633 Massachusetts ave. nw. for philanthropic and charitable purposes.

F.D.McKenney Dies at 86; D. C. Lawyer

Mr. McKenney

Until he became ill four years ago, Mr. McKenney was the senior member of the law firm of McKenney, Flannery and Craighill, one of the two oldest law firms in Washington.

He was the son of James Hall and Elizabeth Walker McKenney. His father was the seventh Clerk of the United States Supreme Court, serving from 1858 until his death in 1913.

Mr. McKenney's mother was a descendant of Isaac Walker, a Scottish immigrant who obtained a patent to lands in what is now Prince Georges County from Lord Baltimore.

A graduate of Princeton University in 1884, Mr. McKenney took his bachelor's and master's degree in law at Columbian College, now the George Washington University.

He was admitted to the District bar in 1887 and began more than 40 years' practice before the Supreme Court three years later. A trusted friend of many of the Supreme Court justices incumbent during that time, Mr. McKenney was chosen by former Chief Justices Edward Douglas White and Oliver Wendell Holmes to handle their estates.

Before he became associated with McKenney, Flannery and Craighill, Mr. McKenney was a law partner of Samuel F. Phillips, former Solicitor General of the United States, and later of Wayne MacVeagh, former Attorney General of the United States and Ambassador to Italy.

Mr. McKenney served for many years as special counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad, counsel and director of the Riggs National Bank, and counsel and director of Mergenthaler Linotype Co. He also specialized in international law and engaged in numerous proceedings before the Hague Court and other international tribunals.

His wife, the former Kathleen Handley of New York, died in 1938. Mr. McKenney is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Wallace Dunn and Mrs. William Washington Rapley, both of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments.

He was a member of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, the Princeton Club, the University Club of New York, the American and District Bar Associations, and the American Society of International Law.

Funeral services will be held at noon Wednesday in St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, 1772 Church st. nw.

Lerroux, Foe Of Alfonso, Franco, Dies

Lerroux

He spent 50 years, part of the time as a fugitive, fighting the reign of King Alfonso XIII, and then late in life fought in the losing political battles against the rise of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The Falangist ruler let Lerroux return in 1947 from exile in Portugal where he took refuge after the Spanish civil war.

His family said he finally renounced lifelong agnosticism and and took the sacrament of the Catholic Church on his deathbed.

Lerroux was a leader in pushing King Alfonso off the throne in 1931. He maneuvered between right and left, and with a minority block was in and out of the premiership five times in the 1933-35 period.

Auto Accident Proves Fatal To Capt. Zott

Capt. Robert C. Zott, 28, U.S.A.F., son of Mrs. John H. Zott, of 3726 Connecticut ave. nw., was killed on Long Island, N. Y., Saturday when his automobile rolled off a hydraulic lift and crushed him beneath it.

Capt. Zott

Capt. Zott, a veteran of 27 months service in the Pacific theater during World War II, was a native of Des Moines, Iowa. His father, Lieut. John H. Zott, died shortly before his birth as a result of injuries sustained in World War I.

Captain Zott attended Powell Junior High School here and was graduated from Central High School in 1939. Following attendance at Millard Preparatory School, he was graduated at West Point in 1944 when he was business manager of the "annual."

Following attendance at the Air Force School of Technology at Dayton, Ohio, in December he was assigned to Columbia University to work toward a master's degree. As a part of his work he had been assigned to the Republic Aviation Corp., Long Island, for the summer.

Besides his mother, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Robert A. Campbell, of 6606 Hillandale rd., Chevy Chase, Md., and a brother, Maj. John H. Zott, jr., now in Saudi Arabia.

Services will be held at West Point at 2 p. m. Wednesday, with burial there.

The following West Point classmates will be pallbearers: Capts. Robert M. Shoemaker, Robert S. Rivers, both of Washington; Roy A. Bahls, John S. Eisenhower, Alexsius A. Norton and William Land, of the academy. Col. Lemuel E. Bolles, (retired), and Col. Henry E. Tisdale, both of Washington, will be honorary pallbearers.

City Workers Ask Manager To Keep Job

More than 80 Alexandria city employes, including 12 department heads, signed a petition yesterday asking City Manager Robert S. Marshall, jr., to apply for permanent appointment to his job.

Marshall, executive director of the Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority, took the position on a temporary basis last March, after the sudden dismissal of Nicholas A. Colasanto. The city council last week advertised for applications for a permanent manager.

The petition was circulated yesterday only among workers at city hall. It still has to go to the fire, health and recreation departments, and other agencies. Those circulating the paper said only two persons approached declined to sign.

Marshall was away from the city all day. Reached at home last night, he said the whole thing was a surprise to him, and would not comment. Last week he indicated he would not apply to stay in the post.

Councilmen, for the most part, reserved comment on the spontaneous development. At the time of Marshall's appointment, however, several of them stated that Colasanto's permanent successor would be an experienced city manager.

The Associated Press yesterday quoted W. Guy Ancell, city manager of Portsmouth, Va., as saying he had just turned down an offer to become city manager of Alexandria.

R. Samuel Luckett, chairman of the city council committee appointed to seek applications for the job, said he didn't know who had approached Ancell, and added that no one had authority at this stage to offer the job to anyone.

Fred E. Lewis

Allentown, Pa., June 27 (AP).—Fred E. Lewis, 84, one-time Pennsylvania Congressman-at-large and three-time mayor of Allentown, died early today at his home. He was 84. Lewis was elected to Congress in 1912 as a Republican. He became a friend of President Theodore Roosevelt and joined the Bull Moose Party movement.

Montgomery May Up School Fund $217,965

The Montgomery County Council has tentatively decided to approve an additional $217,965 in school funds for 1949-50.

Such an increase was the largest item in a list of proposed additions totaling $308,877 made public yesterday. The increases will probably be added to the 17-million-dollar budget recommendations of County Manager I. G. McNayr.

McNayr had recommended appropriation of $3,352,918 to county schools for the year beginning July 1. The council yesterday said it had decided tentatively to allocate $3,570,883 to schools—an increase of $752,481 over 1948-9.

The announcement was made to conform with a county charter provision requiring public announcement of proposed increases in the county manager's budget before the budget is finally adopted.

A hearing on the increases has been set for Thursday at 9 a. m. in the Rockville courthouse, after which next year's budget will be formally adopted.

D. C. Welfare Checks to Be Out on Time

Persons dependent on public assistance here probably will receive their July 1 checks at the usual time after all, John W. Tramburg, Public Welfare director, said yesterday.

Board of Public Welfare members expressed concern last Friday over an expected delay of 10 days to two weeks in the payments, due to the slow course of the 1950 fiscal year appropriation bill.

They reckoned without the foresight of A. R. Pilkerton, District auditor, who told Tramburg yesterday that the 5149 assistance checks were drawn and the account was set up.

The appropriation bill was passed in Congress at about the time the Welfare Board was meeting on Friday.

Mrs. Matenia N. Sakell

Mrs. Matenia N. Sakell, 72, wife of the Rev. Nicholas Sakell, retired priest of the Youngstown (Ohio) Greek Orthodox Church, died Sunday at her home, 300 Woodland ter., Alexandria, Va.

Mrs. Sakell, who made her home with her son, Dr. Achilles Sakell, State Department lecturer, had lived in the Washington area about six years.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Church of St. Constantine and Helen, 6th and C sts. nw.

Besides her husband and Dr. Sakell, she is survived by another son, the Rev. James Sakell of the Greek Orthodox Church of Birmingham, Ala.

Broadmoor Cooperative Wins Appeal

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday upheld the right of cooperative buyers for the Broadmoor Apartments, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., to evict 23 nonparticipating tenants.

The case had been taken by the tenants to the appellate court after District Judge Edward A. Tamm ruled last December that the co-op members were in effect landlords, and could evict the others under the District Rent Control Act if they wanted the premises for personal use.

Amendatory Act Cited

Crux of the matter, the appellate court held, was an amendatory act approved April 19, 1949.

Among other provisions relating to the eviction, the act held that no evictions shall be maintained unless membership in the cooperative includes tenants "who are or were in occupancy of at least 65 per cent of the dwelling units . . ."

The appellate opinion, written by Circuit Judge Henry W. Edgerton, admitted that "there is no evidence that 65 per cent of the Broadmoor tenants became members of the cooperative."

Another Provision

However, the opinion cited another provision of the act which stated that "as a holder of membership in the association prior to March 1, 1949, a stockholder or member was entitled to possession of a dwelling unit in the structure . . . by virtue of a proprietary lease or otherwise."

"In other words," the opinion said, "if a cooperative meets the percentage requirements, a member need not meet the March 1 deadline, and if the member meets the deadline the cooperative need not meet the percentage requirement."

Man Seriously Injured When Stabbed in Back

Walter Barwick, 20, of 4219 29th st., Mt. Rainer, was stabbed in the back last night at 6th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Barwick, said by police to be a tree surgeon, was taken to Emergency Hospital where his condition was reported "serious."

Police broadcast a lookout for a dark-skinned Negro wanted for assault with a dangerous weapon, who fled south through a park at 7th st. and Constitution ave. nw. He was described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds; wearing a dark blue shirt, dark trousers, and bareheaded.

Adventists Told Of Health Needs

A call for capable, fully manned, nonpolitical public health services in every community in the United States of more than 50,000 population was sounded here last night by a Federal Security Administration official.

Dr. Coffey

The official, Dr. E. R. Coffey, director of FSA's Region 3, spoke at the annual 10-day camp meeting of the Potomac Seventh-Day Adventist Conference at Takoma Park. Approximately 3000 persons are attending the meeting.

Declaring the Nation's health would greatly improve if individuals and families showed more direct interest in health matters, the speaker made his plea under a three-point formula:

1. That the entire United States be blanketed with full-time local health services.

2. That sufficient qualified personnel be obtained to man these services.

3. That people as a whole become informed in matters of disease prevention and health protection.

"Don't expect," he said, "that merely increasing taxes will solve all your health problems. No matter how much money is spent by State and Federal governments, little will be accomplished without cooperation of individuals and families."

He said one of the greatest handicaps in the development of public health programs, has been the tendency on the part of many communities to employ public health workers on basis of "friendship and personal acquaintances" rather than their "ability to accomplish service."

Dr. Coffey was introduced by Dr. Robert A. Hare, medical director of Washington Sanitarium, at Takoma Park, who said a new eight-story, one million dollar addition to the sanitarium, now under construction, will be finished early in 1950.

Attending the camp meeting are members from 53 churches in Washington, Virginia and Maryland. The churches represented have a total membership of 6500.

In earlier sessions yesterday, the Adventists voted against proposed calendar revision, voicing disapproval of bills for such now in Congress.

The action climaxed a four-day discussion led by Dr. Benjamin G. Wilkinson, president emeritus of the Washington Missionary College.

Julian Will Probate in Md. Sought

A fight to have the will of the late William A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States, probated in Maryland has been opened before Montgomery County Orphans Court at Rockville.

A niece, Mrs. Elizabeth Julian White, of Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., has petitioned the court to have the will probated there. Another petition, by the Cleveland Trust Co., seeks an order for local administration of assets while the will is probated in Ohio. It has already been admitted to probate in Cincinnati, where Julian lived many years before coming to Washington. The estate is estimated at between five and six million dollars.

Henry Glassie, attorney for Mrs. White, said if it is determined Julian was a legal resident of Maryland, she may benefit materially under Maryland inheritance laws. Maryland tax officials will watch the case closely, since substantial inheritance taxes would be due if Julian were determined to be a resident of that State.

Julian, who maintained a home in Montgomery County, died in an automobile crash May 29 while driving to a Sunday morning golf date.

In his will, Julian had inserted a hand-written proviso that one-fourth of his estate was to go to the Seventh-Day Adventist Church with headquarters at Takoma Park, Md. A Cincinnati court has held it invalid because it was not witnessed.

Millward C. Taft, judge of the Montgomery County Orphans Court and also chief counsel for the Adventist Church, will not contest the will because Maryland laws are the same as Ohio's on the unwitnessed change in the will. He said he will not disqualify himself to sit in the contest because the Adventist Church will not be a party to the dispute.

Helen Keller Now 69

Laconians, Foes of Reds, Gather Here

Not at all laconic, though, are the Greeks attending the convention of the Pan-Laconian Federation of the United States and Canada at the Hotel Statler.

Among the 500 persons attending the convention is Elias Mavromihalis, whose surname means "Black Michael." His great-great-grandfather was chief of the Laconian state and a hero in the Greek war against the Turks in 1821.

Mavromihalis, 68-year-old Baltimore business man and American citizen, said yesterday, "Communists are like cannibals. They are the greatest destroyers of everything that is good in civilization."

Mavromihalis's views are those of the Federation, a Greek organization which reconstituted itself in a convention in Chicago in 1948 with the avowed purpose of encouraging loyalty to the United States, and in Canada to the Dominion, and "combat militantly the spread of 'totalitarian communism.'"

According to C. M. Bucavalas, a Boston lawyer and supreme president, in addition to encouraging loyalty to the United States, the federation wants to encourage the Greeks overseas "spiritually, morally, and if possible, financially," in their fight against the Communists.

The convention, of which Peter L. Dounis of 2480 16th st. nw., was elected chairman, opened yesterday, and the Greek Ambassador, Vasilli Dendramis, extended greetings.

A banquet was held last night, and the convention will conclude with a farewell ball Wednesday evening.

Rape Is Denied In Case of Man Jailed 26 Years

Chicago, June 27 (AP).—A 54-year-old Negro who has spent 26 years in prison on a rape charge heard a physician testify today the woman had not been raped.

James Montgomery is seeking his liberty on a writ of habeas corpus, claiming that evidence that would have cleared him had not been introduced at his trial.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment at Waukegan, Ill., on January 9, 1924, on a charge of raping Miss Mamie Snow, 62.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe termed the case "shocking," and took Montgomery's plea under advisement after hearing the testimony of Dr. John E. Walter, Waukegan.

Dr. Walter identified a photostatic copy of a record of his examination of Miss Snow, which showed no mention of indications of rape. He said he recalled the case clearly, and that a careful examination convinced him the woman had not been raped.

Dr. Walter declared that she later was committed to a mental institution, where she died.

Woman Blamed

Dual Insanity Plea Made In Slayings

New York, June 27 (U.P.).—Defense Attorney Rosenberg opened his case for the "lonely hearts" killers today by placing the entire blame on 200-pound, swarthy Mrs. Martha Beck, 29, whom he described as a sex-tortured woman.

Rosenberg said the thrice-divorced Mrs. Beck's lover, Raymond Fernandez, 34, knew nothing about the January 4 slaying of Mrs. Janet Fay, Albany, N. Y., widow, until after her head had been bashed in with a hammer.

He painted a sordid picture of Mrs. Beck's life since she was 10 years old. He said Mrs. Beck was "molested by a man" when she was 10, was "raped" when 13, and had become pregnant from "incestuous relations." Despite her three marriages, he said, she was "left at the altar several times."

Fernandez, four-times married Lothario, and his poker-faced paramour confessed the slaying of Mrs. Fay after they were arrested in Michigan, but they pleaded innocent in court here with a specification of "folie a deux," or insanity of two persons caused by association with each other.

Rosenberg said Fernandez did not report his kiss-and-kill sweetheart's crime to police "because they were so involved sexually that it was impossible for them to act as normal persons."

The couple also have confessed the slaying of Delphine Downing, 28, and her 3-year-old daughter, Ranelle, near Grand Rapids, Mich. Mrs. Beck, mother of two children, said Fernandez could not kill the child, so she held it under water.

B-29 Can Almost Outfly Jet Plane, Maneuvers Show

London, June 27 (AP).—Britain's mock air war has proved that the United States B-29 Superfort bomber can come close to outflying intercepting jet fighters at high altitudes, obsevers said today.

First phase of the nine-day war games which started Saturday and were planned to test this island's defenses, ended today. Operation Foil, as the games are called, will continue for another week. British bombers and fighters, American Superforts and jet fighters and Dutch jet fighters are taking part.

The observers said operations above 25,000 feet over the weekend showed the attacking Superforts to be more maneuverable than United States and British jets at that altitude and almost as fast.

Some B-29 pilots said the four-engined ships speeded up to more than 400 miles an hour and that at the six and a half mile altitude jet fighters could just keep up with them.

Suicide Verdict Found In Death By Sleep Pills

North Beach, Md., June 27 (U.P.)—Dr. Hugh W. Ward, Deputy Medical Examiner of Calvert County, returned a verdict of suicide today in the death of Paul Kreitzmann, 63-year-old Washingtonian, whose address was given as 223 E st. ne. Kreitzmann was found dead yesterday in a summer apartment here.

The death was caused by an overdose of sleeping pills.

Ex-Barber, 89, Indicted in Shooting Here

An 89-year-old man was indicted here yesterday on charges that he aimed a shotgun at a woman, narrowly missed her son, and shot her daughter in the lip.

Indicted on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, assault with intent to kill, and carrying a deadly weapon was Nick Bitsikas, a retired barber of 404 6th st. sw. The shooting took place in a bakery at 58 E st. sw.

According to the charges, Bitsikas went armed with the weapon to settle a $4400 debt he claimed was owed by the late George Pappas who operated the bakery.

Bitsikas was quoted as saying he would kill Pappas wife, Aphrodite. He aimed wildly, police said, and the pellets sailed over the head of her son, Mike. A missile ricocheted off a wall and hit Frances Pappas in the upper lip, it was said.

In other indictments returned in District Court, seven persons were charged with operating numbers lotteries here. In all cases, police reported, undercover men made bets with marked money.

The defendants are Robert R. Spencer, 38, of 1401 Fairmont st. nw.; Beatrice Hughston, 38, of the same address; Samuel Brown, 43, of 627 2nd st. sw.; George W. Carter, 45, of 1267 3rd st. sw.; Charles J Lippey, 44, of 1610 Newton st. nw.; Albert H. Frye, 55, of 1489 Newton st nw., and Harry J. Weil, of the Soldiers Home.

Three men were charged with carnal knowledge of young girls. The defendants in the sex cases are Harrel Parker, 21, formerly of the Dunbar Hotel; James Jackson, 24, of 329 E st. se., and Lonnie Cameron, 39, of 17 D st. se.

Rico D. Tancous, 22, of 1919 16th st. nw., was charged with burglary of the home at 2121 Massachusetts ave. nw. of Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State. Paintings valued at $4200 were stolen from the residence.

Tucker Finally Issued Patent for New Auto

The Patent Office finally has issued to Preston T. Tucker a patent on the new-type automobile he proposed to build.

Government records showed yesterday that Tucker was granted Patent No. 154192 on a "design for an automobile." The application was filed March 15, 1947, in Tucker's name, and was assigned to the Tucker Corp., Chicago, now facing bankruptcy proceedings. The patent covers what the certificate calls "the ornamental design for an automobile" for a period of 3½ years.

Two Women Indorsed

D. C. Federation Calls For Aid to Hungry Hawaii

THE District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday called upon the President of the United States "to take action under existing law" to relieve the Hawaiian situation.

Copies of the resolution passed at the monthly meeting of the D. C. Federation at the Hamilton Hotel which was sent to President Truman, were also sent to Vice President Alben Barkley; Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, and Senator Elbert Thomas, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

"The half million people of Hawaii have been suffering from a shortage of food for eight weeks due to the action of 2000 longshoremen, striking for higher pay, who will allow no ships to come in, none to go out," the resolution read.

The resolution reminded the President that "it is still fresh in the minds of all that because of a blockade, our Government, for nearly a year, maintained an airlift, costing untold millions, to feed the German people in the American zone of Berlin."

Unjust Situation

"We, the members of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs," the resolution continued, ". . . protest against this cruel and unnecessary strike and respectfully petition the President of the United States to take such action under existing law, as would relieve this (Hawaiian) unjust situation affecting our fellow citizens, living at the portals of our Nation."

The resolution added that "if existing law proves inadequate in this crisis that we respectfully ask the Congress to enact other and suitable legislation to remedy this situation and to prevent its repetition."

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman of the department of legislation, in reading the resolution to the members quoted The Washington Post editorial on Saturday stating "the least the President should do . . . is to ask for an injunction under the Taft-Hartley law."

A highly debated subject at the morning meeting yesterday was the indorsement of two women for District jobs. Two Women's Christian Temperance Union resolutions were read indorsing Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews for one of the two new judgeships on the D. C. Court of Appeals, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox to be judge of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia.

Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, president, appointed three chairmen of committees who were accepted unanimously by the members. They are Mrs. H. S. Mattson, department of American citizenship; Miss Cornelia Hill, department of international relations; and Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, radio chairman.

Indorsement Questioned

When it was pointed out that the standing rules of the D. C. Federation did not permit indorsing the names of any individuals for specific jobs, Mrs. Wiley reminded the club members that an informal petition could be drawn up with members indorsing the two women signing as individuals.

The next item of the indorsement to come under discussion was the stationery on which it was to be written. Although a majority of members individually approved the petition, they questioned whether it should be written on D. C. Federation letterhead stationery.

The ensuing discussion indicated the members thought the Federation official stationery only should be used for official business according to the rules and regulations of the club. The informal petition, signed by members individually, on Hotel Hamilton stationery, reads as follows:

"Since it is contrary to the Standing Rules of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs that we endorse the names of any individuals for specific jobs, but since we sincerely believe at this time that the two following women are well qualified for the jobs mentioned, we individually wish to endorse: Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews for one of the two new judgeships on the D. C. Court of Appeals, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox to be judge of the Home Canning Methods Improve With Each Season

Booklets on home canning and freezing, published only a few years ago, may be antiques today, the United States Department of Agriculture counsels homemakers who are putting up food this summer.

Old direction should not be relied on year after year because improved methods are being developed by research. It pays to retire those antiques in favor of the most modern methods. This is especially true of booklets and bulletins on home freezing. So much research is in progress on this subject that methods are improved each year.

Canning directions also may need to be replaced. Many of the long processing times recommended for safe canning of vegetables during the war already are out of date. Research at the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics has shown that many vegetables keep safely with shorter processing, and are better in flavor, texture and color.

However, many old recipes for jam, jelly, preserves, conserves and marmalades still hold good today, the specialists say. The greatest changes of method are in the newer arts of canning and freezing.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

BY DR. ERNEST G. OSBORNE

Letting Children in on Vacation Plans

Perhaps you've already made up your mind about your vacation this summer. If you haven't and you're going to be thinking about whether it will be the mountains or the beach, a car trip or a visit to Grandma, why not include the youngsters in the planning? Many parents do and find it very much worth while.

Children have very few chances to help in making decisions in the kind of world we live in today. Vacation planning is something that is a "natural" as far as taking part is concerned.

As the family sits down together, each one might start by telling of the things he would like most to do if he had the entire "say." Some will have the same ideas. Perhaps one of the youngsters or even Mom or Dad will have an especially good one. Then comes the business of figuring out which plans can be taken care of by the family pocketbook. Usually some agreement will come through discussion. Much of the fun, of course, is anticipating what will occur during the vacation days.

It may take a little longer to arrive at a decision in which all the family has participated but it will build a feeling of closeness that's important. And it does provide experience in learning to think and plan together, something very important in our living today.

Vishinsky's a Bird-Like Diner-Out—Until the Vitamins Are Served

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HUMOR, as associated with Soviet bigshots, is practically blasphemous and almost unretrievable. So, picking up a little laughable and highly authentic gem about Vishinsky made the heat really bearable.

The No. 1 Red negotiator, it seems, takes no chance, however, slight, of being unceremoniously bumped off. Dining out privately appears to be the major security hazard. At banquets and such functions he's more at ease, because slipping poison into the Vishinsky Vichyssoise presumably might involve doing away with others. But eating in a private house involves such great risk that he seldom accepts.

One day, however, Comrade V. accepted and actually turned up to break bread with the John McCloys. Though few United States public servants are more friendly and genial than our new civilian boss in Germany. Vishinsky broke very little bread. He toyed with fork and plate, scarcely swallowing a mouthful.

As the meal ended, the McCloys were conscientiously downing their vitamin pills when their stellar guest, obviously still hungry, made a grab for the bottle and swallowed a whole handful of capsules!

Sir Oliver's 5200 Guests

BRITAIN'S quiet Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, recently completed his first year in Washington and sailed home on consultation. During the past months he's made a very real success, officially and privately as well. In addition, the former Provost of Queens College, Oxford, has garnered no little recognition of his intellectual ability.

He's received honorary Doctor of Laws degrees from Amherst, Columbia, Harvard and Princeton. And though not on the receiving end, the Ambassador has given commencement addresses at the University of Virginia and at the George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tennessee. His favored topic is stressing the Western European tradition. A still dynamic tradition, according to Sir Oliver, which emphasizes the sanctity of the individual and should be upheld at all cost.

Because of his academic background, before the Frankses arrived there was considerable, scarcely flattering conjecture about their social capabilities. However, no one needs to worry now, for the Frankses have gotten along swimmingly and, it's estimated, some 5200 separate individuals have been invited to the embassy either for a drink or a meal. This pleasant tally is exclusive of the occasions when the embassy was thrown open for some such event as the tea served during the Embassy Tour for the benefit of the Home for the Incurables.

The Frankses will return the first of August and stay until Labor Day in the same house they vacationed in last summer at Nantucket. Incidentally, their pet cat, Lulu, which disappeared on the boat during their initial trip, has never been found. So far, the Frankses have resisted all replacement offers.

The Price of Diplomacy

SPEAKING of embassy entertainment, comparatively few people realize what an ambassador and his wife, stationed in an important post, have to put up with.

Jefferson Caffrey, who, man and almost boy, has been an Ambassador for some 23 years, recently admitted that during his last year as our representative in Paris more than 15,000 people darkened the door of No. 2 avenue d'Iena. Averaging this staggering total on a daily basis, it seems as though an Ambassador must not only be bankrupt but in a state of total physical collapse.

As far as the latter is concerned, lean, wiry Ambassador Caffrey looks currently in the pink and seems eager to take on more of same when he gets to Cairo a few weeks hence. It takes very special stamina to be a good Ambassador—and a very special bank account—if you happen to be an American.

C. V. Whitneys To Visit Cody For Unveiling

Under Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney will leave on Friday for Cody, Wyo., to take part in a ceremony honoring Mr. Whitney's mother, the late Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney.

A quarter of a century ago, Mrs. Whitney, a gifted sculptress, modeled a statue of the famous Buffalo Bill. She unveiled it in Cody on July 4, 1924, where it now stands. On July 4, Mr. Whitney will put up a memorial plaque on the statue in honor of the anniversary. It will be unveiled by his young daughter, Gail.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney and Gail, will be guests during their stay in Cody, of Mrs. Mary Jester Allen, granddaughter of the famous Buffalo Bill Cody. There will be a three-day fiesta in Cody, with a rodeo and stage coach parade as features.

Mrs. Whitney will remain in Cody until July 10, but Mr. Whitney will leave earlier, arriving here on July 6.

The late Mrs. Whitney's sculpture includes two pieces in Washington—the statue in honor of the Titanic dead in Potomac Park and the Mayan fountain in the Pan-American Union Building.

Lillian Hill Is Christened in Maryland Church

Lillian Willett Hill, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sasscer Hill, was christened Sunday afternoon at Trinity Church, Upper Marlboro, Md. The Rev. Curtis Draper officiated. The baby's dress made over 100 years ago by her great-grandmother, Henrietta Sasscer Hill, was trimmed with a band of hand-made eyelet embroidery around the edge of the long skirt.

The baby was born February 25 of this year. Mrs. Hill is the former Miss Lillian Hathaway Willett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jean Willett. Godparents at the christening on Sunday were Mrs. Murray Sanders, Miss Mary N. S. Whiteley, who is traveling in Spain, and who was represented by her mother, Mrs. Richard Peyton White; and William S. Willett, brother of Mrs. Hill. The latter was sponsored by Phillip Rigg.

After the christening ceremony, a reception was held at "Pleasant Hill," Upper Marlboro. The Misses May, Margaret, Marie and Fredricka Hill assisted in receiving.

At Least We Can Try To Keep Cool

Here are a few little suggestions to help you weather the heat wave:

Lighten the work of your digestive system by concentrating on green salads, jellied consommes, fruit and vegetable juices, buttermilk and raw vegetables.

Try cool or tepid showers instead of cold ones which can make you feel warmer later. Pat, don't rub yourself dry, and sprinkle your skin with a flower-scented cologne. A bottle of this fragrance, kept in your office desk, can refresh your face and neck during the long, hot afternoon hours.

At the end of the day give your feet a sudsy, cool bath to help reduce any swelling or puffiness. A dash of foot powder in your shoes is helpful in sticky weather.

Use plenty of soap and water on your face, unless your skin is abnormally dry, which it probably is not during these days.

Keep make-up to a minimum. If you feel you must use a cream foundation, choose a light one, preferably in liquid form. A good trick is to splash your face with cold water after applying make-up, and blot gently with a linen towel. This "sets" the base and tends to keep it fresh longer.

Choose clothes that are cool in both texture and color. Thin, porous weaves, loose fitting and crisp looking are the best. Reds and oranges are not good color choices for summer. Try green, lavender, gray, beige, turquoise, lemon yellow, and of course, white.

Warm Gray Popular With Decorators

To meet increased interest in the use of gray for walls and home furnishings, "Sunset Gray," a new warm color, has been formulated by the Martin-Senour Paint Co., Chicago.

A study of the grays most favored by the consumer revealed to Frederic Rahr, color consultant, the need for the warmer hue. Introduced at his suggestion, Sunset Gray is designed as a suitable companion to any color furniture, draperies, rugs, or wood.

Sunset Gray, part of the company's trade sales line, is available as an all-purpose enamel called Kolor-Brite; Glos-Tone, a medium gloss finish; and Neu-Tone, flat wall finish.

Martin-Senour explains that each of these sheens has preferred applications. The enamel is suggested for bathrooms, kitchens, and furniture; medium gloss for large wall areas and woodwork; and the flat finish for living rooms, dining rooms, and bedrooms, to take advantage of its soft decorative effect.

White can be added to modify each finish, making available six new grays altogether.

Rings on Their Fingers

Col. and Mrs. John G. Ladd announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annette Thomas Ladd, to Cadet James Louis Guion, jr., son of Col. and Mrs. James L. Guion. The bride-elect will leave in a few days for Honlulu to spend the summer with Colonel and Mrs. Guion who are presently stationed at Fort Shafter, Oahu, Hawaii.

Miss Ladd was graduated from Sidwell Friends School and Skidmore College of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., class of 1948. During the past year has been teaching art in schools at Whitesboro, N. Y.

Cadet Guion was graduated from Landon School, after which he served in the United States Air Force, until the end of the war. He is at present attending the United States Military Academy at West Point and is in the class of 1950.

Calvo—Van Story

Mr. and Mrs. Demetrio Calvo of Mexico City and Washington have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Alicia Calvo, to James Cornelius Van Story, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Van Story of this city. The announcement was made at a cocktail party on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvo.

The bride-elect was graduated from National Cathedral School and received her B. A. degree from George Washington University. Mr. Van Story was graduated from the same university and at present is working on his M. A. No date has been set for the wedding.

Rosmarin—Elvove

The engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie B. Rosmarin of New York, to Elies Elvove has been announced by Dr. and Mrs. Edward E. Forman. Mr. Elvove is the son of Mrs. Simma Elvove of Washington. The wedding is planned for August 7 in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Miss Rosmarin attended Columbia University and was graduated from the University of Michigan. She is publicity director of the magazine Antiques and the New Republic.

Mr. Elvove was graduated from the University of Maryland, received his master's degree from the University of Illinois, and is working on his doctorate in engineering at Columbia University. He served with the Army Signal Corps for five years and was discharged with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Pereda—Tornquist

Of interest to Washington's diplomatic society is the announcement of the engagement of Senorita Teresa Pereda to Ricardo DeBary Tornquist.

The bride-elect is the niece of the former Secretary and Charge d'Affaires of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Racedo. Mr. Tornquist, an Argentine architect received his master's degree at Cornell University.

After their wedding in Buenos Aires in September, the couple will spend their honeymoon in the United States.

He attended the United States Military Academy and will graduate from Georgetown School of Foreign Service in September. He is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraterntiy.

The wedding will take place September 17.

Newspapers Must Appeal To All Tastes, Says Editor

By Genevieve Reynolds

HERBERT ELLISTON, editor of The Washington Post, last night charged that the generality of newspapers as quasi-public utilities fail to stand for the principles of right conduct. He issued his statement when he appeared as guest of honor and speaker at the Columbia University Alumnae Club's dinner held at the United Nations Club.

The speaker recently was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for distinguished editorial writing. Pulitzer prizes are awarded by the trustees of Columbia University upon the recommendation of the advisory board, Columbia School of Journalism.

In discussing "The Press on Trial," Elliston expressed a belief that newspapers should be regarded as quasi-public utilities.

He said that too often newspapers base their appeal upon "the sensational, the untoward, the exceptional and the peccant in human life and fortunes."

Hence "The illusion is built up by our press that society is made up of the Rita Hayworths and the Aly Khans, as it were," he explained. "This means that the press is not doing its part in encouraging a faithful observance of forms of behavior which are codified in law and the basic mores of our society. This is an indictment that could be leveled against our newspapers."

At the same time Elliston reminded his audience that part of the responsibility belongs to the newspaper reader "for wanting this kind of fare."

"All that even an idealistic newspaper can do is to cater to a varied taste," he said. "If its dominant fare is above the lowest common denominator of taste, it usually does not forget to appeal to that lowest common denominator somewhere in its pages—through comics, columnists and reading matter in general.

"That is why most newspapers are now days budgets," he continued, "aimed at catching every taste from high to low, and very low."

Mr. Elliston cited the fact that ideal newspapers failed for lack of reader support and that since papers must pay their own way, they cannot be written and produced in the clouds. In short, papers must have "ground appeal."

"If a community is good-newspaper conscious, and demands one, it will get one," concluded The Washington Post Editor.

Among the misconceptions the public holds toward newspapers are that advertisers run the publishers and publishers run the paper, according to Mr. Elliston, declaring that no newspaper could stay in business long if advertisers influence were paramount. On the contrary he said that the more independence an editorial page has the more advertising comes in.

In the long run, "newspaper policy is made by the pressure of environment," said the speaker, pointing out that not only the publishers, owners, and editorial board but the readers assist in forming the policy.

Some of the weaknesses of present day journalism as listed by the speaker are (1) not sufficiently competitive; (2) hiding of news; (3) rose coloring personalities; (4) tendency of some reporters to feel too much responsibility to the prevailing Government.

Miss Katherine Hall, alumnae club president, presided and introduced the speaker.

MRS. CHARLES CROSSFIELD 3D
... Married Yesterday

Lelia Dickey Becomes Bride

In a simple ceremony yesterday, Miss Lelia Sinclair Dickey and Charles Claude Crossfield 3d were married. The wedding took place in St. Joseph's Chapel of the Washington Cathedral at 5 p. m., with only members of the two families attending. Canon Albert Hawley Lucas officiated, and a large reception followed at the 1925 F Street Club.

Mrs. Crossfield is the daughter of Mrs. Newbold Noyes of Washington and Robert R. Dickey of Tuxedo Park, N. Y. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Claude Crossfield of Longview, Tex.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in eggshell satin, hand embroidered with palest pink roses and butterflies. Her veil was of illusion, and she carried a prayer book with streamers of roses.

Mrs. Dean Lewis, matron of honor, wore pale blue marquisette and carried a bouquet of white stephanotis and blue delphinum. William J. Dickinson, jr., was best man.

The bride was presented to Washington society at a tea at Christmas time, 1944. She attended Potomac School and was graduated from Chatham Hall in 1945. She also studied at the Abbott Art School and American University. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. George Barnett, widow of Maj. Gen. Barnett, former commandant of the Marine Corps, and the late Basil Gordon of Fredericksburg, Va., and Baltimore, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickey of Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. Crossfield was graduated from the Texas Christian University in 1941. He served in the Pacific in the Marine Corps for 33 months, taking part in combat operations at Tinian, Saipan and Okinawa. Returning to this country in 1945, he served as a White House aide until 1947.

Mr. and Mrs. Crossfield will make their home in Layton Castle, Monroe, Louisiana.

Mrs. Howard Coffin Feted at Luncheon

Mrs. Howard A. Coffin, whose marriage took place July 18 in Roslyn, L. I., was honor guest at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Clarence J. Brown, wife of Representative Brown of Ohio. Mrs. Coffin is the former Mrs. Thaddeus H. Brown.

Betty Williams Is Recent Bride

Miss Betty Ann Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Boyd Williams of Silver Spring, Md., was married June 22 to Kenneth Vincent Duckson, son of Mrs. Arthur J. Boehm, also of Silver Spring. The Rev. Ralph J. Maher performed the ceremony at St. Michael's Church.

The bride wore white marquisette and carried a white orchid and lilies of the valley with her prayer book. Miss Gloria Louise Williams was her sister's maid of honor and John Brummett of New York served as best man. William Perna and Frank Gossmann were the ushers. Following the reception at the Williams' home, Mr. and Mrs. Duckson left for their honeymoon. They will be at home in Silver Spring.

About Merits of Cooking Utensils

Will you discuss the relative merits of stainless steel and aluminum cooking utensils, especially in regard to pitting, fuel consumed, effect of metal on acid foods, life of pans, necessity of using water, etc.? E. M. G.

Discusing the points as you suggest them, stainless steel is a harder metal than aluminum and so is less likely to pit. Aluminum will pit if subjected to strong alkalis but with normal care and use, this should never happen.

Aluminum utensils spread heat quickly and evenly and therefore make very efficient use of heat. Stainless steel pots with copper bottoms are also good conductors of heat. In addition, the amount of fuel consumed by a pan depends as much on its shape as on the material in it. For most economical use of fuel, you need a pan with a wide flat bottom which completely covers the burner. The sides should be straight, not rounded, to avoid loss of heat around the sides. Also, to save fuel, the pots should have tight-fitting covers.

Neither stainless steel or aluminum affects acid foods from the standpoint of imparting foreign flavors. Acids will brighten aluminum without in any way affecting the acid food.

The life of the pans will be determined entirely by the weight, construction, and care they have. Too lightweight aluminum pans will bend and warp and are to be avoided. Aluminum ware is graded by gauge. The smaller the gauge, the heavier the metal. The 14 to 18 gauges are good. Gauges 22 or above will not give as good wear. Because of the hardness of stainless steel, most of the pans of this material are of a durable weight.

In chooing pans for durability and safety, be sure to check the handles. Be sure that they are securely attached, do not bend, and are comfortable to the hand.

Only those pans which are made with very thick bottoms and sides and have tight-fitting covers are recommended for waterless cooking.

Where may I find classes in decorative art, either privately or publicly taught? G. C. P.

Since you don't say just what kind of decorative art you are interested in, it isn't possible for me to be more specific than to tell you to look under "schools" in the yellow pages of the telephone book for the schools which teach creative arts. If you do not find a school there which teaches the sort of art you have in mind, perhaps I can help you find the school if you care to write again and be more specific.

What causes heads of lettuce to rust? Is it advisable to eat the leaves with rust in them? B. M. E. A.

If the weather has been unusually damp, some lettuce will rust in shipping. Also, lettuce will rust if stored wet in a tightly closed refrigerator pan. To avoid it, if you wash or rinse the lettuce before storing be sure to allow ample time for it to drip before putting in the pan. In order that the leaves will separate and make it easy to use later, cut just the core from the head and run a strong stream of cold water from the tap into the resulting hole. This water pressure will loosen the leaves, but the head should not come apart. When loosened and rinsed, let stand an hour or so hole side down to drain completely. Another precaution against rusting in the refrigerator is to keep an absorbent white cloth in the bottom of the hydrator to absorb extra moisture. Rusted lettuce is not harmful to eat, but neither is it too palatable.

How can an all silk blouse be bleached which has "yellowed" with age? B. M. E. A.

Silk can be safely bleached by using sodium perborate. Use 4 tablespoons sodium perborate to 1 pint of soapy water and let soak 30 minutes to an hour. Be sure to use only cool or lukewarm water and mild soap flakes.

How can leather be treated and restored to its original state after it has been covered with mildew? B. M. E. A.

If the mildew has penetrated the leather, you can't hope to remove it entirely. But, if the mildew is on the surface, you can possibly remove most of it by washing the article with saddle soap or mild soap and water. Be careful not to water-soak the article, and pat as soon as washed and rinsed with a soft absorbent cloth to remove as much moisture as possible. Allow to dry thoroughly and go over it with a good leather preservative.

PETUNIA!

If there weren't
A law agin it,
I'd take my clothes off
Right this minute!

But oddly enough, Petunia, you wouldn't be as cool that way as you would be when wearing a loose white robe or smock with nothing under it. The robe is lighter than the color of your skin and absorbs less heat.

Try This All-Time Favorite—

FEATHER devil's food cake is a leader among the 20 all-time favorite recipes, according to the editors of the Better Homes and Gardens Cook Book.

FEATHER DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

½ cup shortening
1 cup white sugar
½ cup brown sugar
2 beaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2/3 cup sweet or sour milk
3 one-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate
½ cup hot water
2 cups cake flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda

Thoroughly cream the shortening and sugar, add eggs and vanilla and beat until fluffy. Melt chocolate in hot water over low heat. Blend thoroughly and cool slightly. Add to creamed mixture. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating well after each addition. Place in two waxed-paper-lined, nine-inch-round layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes. Put layers together and frost with fudge frosting. Decorate with chopped California walnuts.

Here's the recipe for the creamy, rich fudge:

2 cups sugar
1 cup water
2 one-ounce squares of unsweetened chocolate
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook the sugar, water, salt, chocolate and corn syrup over low heat, stirring constantly until sugar dissolves. Cover saucepan two to three minutes to dissolve sugar crystals on side of pan. Uncover and continue cooking to soft-ball stage (236 degrees.) Remove from heat. Add butter and cool to lukewarm. Add vanilla and beat to spreading consistency. If frosting becomes too stiff, add small amount of hot water.

May Income Declines for Two Railroads

The Baltimore & Ohio and Western Maryland, the two principal railroads operating in Maryland, yesterday reported their profits are going down but still ahead of last year.

The two carriers said net income for May had dropped below the same month in 1948. However, both said they are ahead of 1948 for the first five months of the year.

The B&O reported net income for last month of $1,312,787, down $649,477. This brought income for the five months to $5,989,179, a gain of $1,110,196 over the same period last year.

Western Maryland's net income last month was $445,609, a drop of $264,533 from May of 1948. The five-months total was $2,487,290 compared to $2,104,043 last year.

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia, Washington 4, D. C., June 21, 1949. Ordered that Article XXVIII of the Police Regulations of the District of Columbia be, and the same hereby are, amended in the following respects: Amend Section 2 by adding the following paragraphs: Section 2(i). At the time of acceptance of the motor vehicle for storage in or upon licensed premises, the licensee shall supply to the person leaving such vehicle for said storage a claim check or receipt, distinctly numbered to correspond with a coupon which shall be placed upon such motor vehicle during the time the said vehicle is stored, which check shall show on its face: (a) the person or business name of the licensee; (b) the street address of the premises where the vehicle is stored. Section 2(j). Whenever any motor vehicle shall remain upon the premises operated by a licensee hereunder for a continuous period in excess of seventy-two hours, the licensee shall, not later than the beginning of the next day of business after expiration of the said seventy-two hours, notify the Major and Superintendent of Police or his designated agent of such fact; provided, however, that this subsection shall not apply in the case of vehicles stored under a weekly or monthly contract. Section 2(k). In all areas other than those zoned only for residential use, each licensee shall place and maintain, at a location or locations clearly visible from every entrance to the licensed premises, a legible and conspicuous sign or signs complying with all applicable regulations in force in the District of Columbia, which shall state the name of the licensee and the hours of the day and night during which said premises are open and attendant for the storage of motor vehicles, and shall also state, in letters not less than 4 inches in height, the hourly and daily rates charged for the storage of vehicles on said premises; and no licensee shall charge, or permit to be charged, any greater fee than is posted at the time of entry; provided, however, that rates applicable to weekly or monthly contracts need not be posted. In the case of parking lots located in residential zones, the foregoing shall also apply, except that the sign or signs shall conform to the sign regulations. Strike Section 5 and amend by adding in lieu thereof the following: Section 5(a). Except as permitted in Section 5(d) below, any person employed to park or supervise the parking of automobiles on an outdoor parking lot, or engaged in such parking or supervision must possess a parking attendant's license as hereinafter provided. Section 5(b). Any individual desiring a parking attendant's license shall fill out, upon a form prescribed for the purpose of the D. C. Superintendent of Licenses, an application on which shall be stated the applicant's full name, address, color, color of hair and eyes, date of birth and sex; the number and date of expiration of the applicant's D. C. Motor Vehicle Operator's Permit; and a statement of whether the applicant has ever been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor, together with the applicant's fingerprints. On receipt of this application the Superintendent of Licenses shall at once issue to the applicant a receipt, certifying that the application has been received; provided, however, that the Superintendent of Licenses is not authorized to accept the application or issue the receipt unless the applicant possess a D. C. Motor Vehicle Operator's Permit. Upon approval of the application by the Major and Superintendent of Police and by the Superintendent of Licenses, the latter shall issue to the applicant a license for one year or part thereof, expiring on the 31st day of October next succeeding the issuance date, which license the licensee shall carry on his person at all times while engaged in his occupation, and shall exhibit on demand to any customer of the parking lot or any authorized representative of the District Government. Section 5(c). When an applicant for a parking attendant's license has submitted his application and been issued the receipt therefor by the Superintendent of Licenses as provided in Section 5(b), this receipt shall have the full force and effect of a license until such time as the Superintendent of Licenses shall have either issued the license or denied the application. Section 5(d). The owner or operator of a parking lot, or his duly authorized agent, may employ an individual to park or supervise the parking of automobiles on an outdoor parking lot, who does not hold a parking attendant's license, for not to exceed seventy-two hours preceding the submission by the said attendant of his application to the Superintendent of Licenses and the issue of the latter of a receipt prescribed in Section 5(b), provided that the said individual is the holder of a D. C. Motor Vehicle Operator's Permit. Section 5(e). A fee of $1.00 shall be charged for each license issued hereunder, and there shall be delivered to each licensee by the Superintendent of Licenses and the ment of any additional fee, a badge showing the serial number of license issued. Each licensee shall attach said badge to his coat or shirt in such a manner as to conspicuously display the same at all times when engaged in the employment for which the license is issued. The license issued to any individual may be revoked at any time in accordance with the terms of the License Law of July 1, 1932, as amended. Further amend Article XXVIII by adding the following section: Section 6. These regulations, as amended, shall be in force and effect on and after October 31, 1949. J. R. YOUNG, G. MASON, G. R. YOUNG, Commissioners, D. C.

What's the Verdict?

WALNUT GROVE

Q. A farmer had a grove of walnut trees on a corner of his farm. He wanted the land cleared and made a deal with a woodsman on the following terms: The woodsman was to cut down and remove all the trees within three months, paying the farmer $300. Before the lumberman started cutting the trees, a man who thought the walnut grove was a fine building site offers the farmer an unusally high price for the tract, provided he leave the trees on it. The farmer accepts, and denies the lumberman access to the trees. The lumberman sues for the right to cut the trees, explaining that walnut is especially valuable. Will he succeed?

A. Ordinarily standing trees are treated as real estate, in law. And ordinarily, a promise to sell real estate is enforceable: that is, the buyer can get the land instead of money damages. But this case would constitute an exception. There is no showing that the agreement was in writing, an essential to enforcement of a real estate sale in most instances. And since the lumberman intended selling the trees as lumber, it would be perfectly feasible to find out what his damages in money would be through failure to get the walnut. In any case, the most he could get would be money damages, rather than specific performance.—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—This is the story told by Johnny Meyer, about his employer, Howard Hughes, and the day Hughes crashed in his plane and almost lost his life. As soon as Meyer heard of the crash, he tried to see Hughes in the hospital, but the patient was near death and the doctors refused all visitors. Meyer then remembered that on the beach near Balboa Mr. Hughes had a small cabin to which no one ever had been invited. The faithful employe felt that perhaps there were some things there which Hughes never wanted others to see—and which therefore must be destroyed, in the event that Hughes died.

Meyer immediately flew to Balboa, and found the cabin, on whose door was a warning: "No One Permitted to Enter Under ANY Circumstances." He broke down the door, and entered the dark room. His suspicions, that here were things Hughes wanted kept from the eyes of all men, were confirmed when he saw the windows covered with Army blankets. The room was in disarray—trousers over a chair, socks under the bed, and blueprints strewn in the corner. He studied the blueprints, but could find nothing super confidential about them. He looked behind the blankets covering the windows, but found nothing.

Meyer flew back to the hospital, and the doctors permitted him to see Hughes for a few minutes. "Don't talk, Howard," said Meyer. "Just nod or shake your head." He said that he had flown to the cabin at Balboa to search for anything Hughes might have wanted to destroy. "I found nothing," said Meyer. "Would you want me to go back for anything?" Hughes shook his head. Meyer asked: "Is there anything secret there you'd want removed?" Again Hughes shook his head. Meyer asked: "Then why the blankets over the windows?" Hughes opened his eyes and spoke: "Mosquitoes."

THE PAPER ON MacARTHUR'S WALL

A recent visitor at General MacArthur's office found only one document framed on his wall. It was the speech by Lucius Aemilius Paulus, a Roman consul selected to lead the war against Macedonia—a speech translated by George Baker, A.M. It read: "In every circle and truly at every table there are people who . . . know when and through what pass that territory should be entered . . . when it is proper to engage the enemy, when to lie quiet. And they not only determine what is best to be done, but if anything is done in any manner . . . they arraign the consul, as if he were on trial before them . . .

"If, therefore, anyone thinks himself qualified to give advice respecting the war which I am to conduct, which may prove advantageous to the public, let him not refuse his assistance to the state, but let him come with me into Macedonia. He shall be furnished with a ship, a horse, a tent; even his traveling charges shall be defrayed. But if he thinks this too much trouble, and prefers the repose of a city life to the toils of war, let him not, on land, assume the office of a pilot. The city, in itself, furnishes abundance of topics for conversation; let it confine its passion for talking within its own precincts, and rest assured that we shall pay no attention to any councils but such as shall be framed within our camp."

Bill Gold is on his vacation and will resume "The District Line" July 18.

Anne Lawler called this morning about next week's church supper. She wanted each of us on the committee to call a list of people so we'll know how many to expect.

After I'd finished the breakfast dishes, I sat down at the telephone and started calling one person right after another. I was down to the fourth name on my list before I stopped to think of the other folks on my party line. Here I'd tied up the line for fifteen minutes without a break. Supposing someone else on the line wanted to make a call!

Needless to say, I ended my "calling marathon" right then and there. I'll make the rest of those calls later on in the day, one by one and spaced several minutes apart.

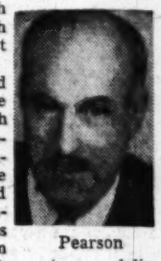
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Chiefs Worry About Europe Arms

By Drew Pearson

The State Department's Dr. Philip Jessup, trailing homeward after the failure of the Big Four conference in Paris, was reflecting on the high hopes which preceded that conference.



Pearson

Jessup had been in on the discussions with Gromyko before the conference, and he remembered May 3 particularly. That was the day when the final Russian note was delivered to him in New York, the day when all the world wondered what was in that note. Would the Russians say yes or no?

The note reached Jessup's office, No. 2 Park ave., in the morning, and he knew it was the fateful document that would tell whether the blockade of Berlin was to be lifted. He knew it was the climax of his weeks of secret negotiation and hidden meetings with Malik and Gromyko.

But nobody in his office could read Russian . . . frantic search for a translator . . . an hour passed . . . Jessup hid the secret document under his desk blotter . . . another hour passed . . . headlines in the press: "No Reply From Moscow."

Finally, after three hours—a translator, Jessup hurried to his desk, took the document from under the blotter, and said: "Here, translate this quickly. I'm tired of acting like a character in a dime novel!"

Recommendation

The joint chiefs of staff held one of their most significant meetings last week with Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson.

Johnson was about to testify before the Senate Armed Services Committee and, before he did so, the heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force told him that they seriously questioned the advisability of sending large amounts of arms to Europe under the North Atlantic Pact.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff were cautious in making their statement, pointed out that they were making no recommendation, that the final decision was up to State Department. Nevertheless, from a military viewpoint they said they could not justify the expense of arming 25 European divisions. They also expressed doubt as to what would become of these arms in the hands of western European armies, if Russia invaded.

Note 1—Private comment of Senators who heard about the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommendation was: "Why tell us so late? Without arms the North Atlantic Pact becomes an empty shell."

Note 2—While details weren't discussed at the above meeting, it's understood that the nub of the problem is tanks. The U. S. Army could send rifles, machine guns, some artillery with no loss. But it has no tanks to spare. European military, especially the French, point out that a modern army without tanks is like an army with pitchforks. It couldn't last week against the Red army's Stalin tanks—considered the most powerful in the world. Russia has eight tank divisions between the Vistula and Oder Rivers alone.

Blind Joan of Arc

"There will be no questions," said Chairman Percy Priest of Tennessee when pretty, 28-year-old Mildred Wiesenfeld of New York finished testimony last week before a congressional subcommittee.

"You have made one of the finest and best-documented presentations I have ever heard," said the Congressmen. "No questions are necessary."

The witness could not see the Congressmen. She was blind. She had come to urge Government funds for research into diseases causing blindness, which is increasing every year, with little being done to find out why. Every year 20,000 are stricken with polio, whereas 30,000 lose their vision.

Miss Wiesenfeld's story began three years ago when she founded the National Council to Combat Blindness with a capital of eight dollars and no office. Now she is the "Joan of Arc" of the blind and near-blind people all over the country.

Among the things she told the Congressmen: "There are 260,000 blind in this country . . . relief and welfare for them costs the Government 30 million dollars in a single year. Yet only $400,000 is spent annually for research into the reasons for blindness."

Three Senatorial Scalps—President Truman has ordered the Democratic National Committee to get the scalps of three Republican Senators at the next election at any cost! Taft of Ohio, author of Taft-Hartley; Hickenlooper of Iowa for smearing the Atomic Energy Commission, and Donnell of Missouri—because H. S. T. doesn't relish GOP Senators from his home State.

Messenger-Boy Vishinsky—The Foreign Ministers' conference convinced Secretary Acheson of one thing: Molotov is still boss of Russia's foreign policy, not Vishinsky. The Paris conference took twice as long as it should, because Vishinsky couldn't make even the most minor decision without sending to Moscow for instructions.
